Hurricane Beulah Pounds Rio Grande Valley

Public Support Asked

"We have within our state a society of 130,000 that is barely noticeable, a silent society of young children between the ages of one and 21, who must be classified as emotionally disurbed." Jack Stapleton Jr., of Kennett, publisher of the Daily Dunklin Democrat, said.

Stapleton spoke to 100 members of the Southeast division of Missouri Association for Social Welfare Tuesday night at the Holiday Inn. He is a past president of the Missouri Association for Mental Health. His speech was entitled "The Citizen Challenge of Mental Health."

The task that faces Missourians in 1967, goes beyond identification or establishing a research project in the field of the emotionally disturbed, Stapleton said.

"Like the farmer who passed up agricultural extension courses because he wasn't yet farming half as well as he knew how, we have already more knowledge than we are using.

"There remain great areas of ignorance, to be sure, and what we do know needs to be expanded and refined; but one of the major problems is that the field of mental health now possesses much knowledge that it cannot deal with, knowledge that creates delemmas and the need for difficult decision.

If we in the social service field are to be effective in securing care for the emotionally disturbed children of the state, we will have to confront these dilemmas.

"The challenge that enlightened Missourians face will be to risk controversy and recommend change. And if we are to meet that challenge we must receive the public's understanding and its support.

"Who takes care of emotionally disturbed children in Missouri?

"More importantly, who cares about emotionally disturbed children in Missouri?

"At this very moment, we have about 130,000 children who are emotionally distrubed in Missouri to a handicapping degree.

"Perhaps as many as 5,000 are severely disturbed; many are so out of touch with reality and with the everyday world that they must be defined with horror as already psychotic.

"One of the hardest facts to face is that only a tiny portion of these children--less than 1,000 get any help from our present array of psychiatric resources. In the course of a year, considerably fewer than 1,500 have even passing contact with a psychiatic agency or mental health professional, And of these, only about one third are considered to have been, in any sense, treated, "Stapleton said.

"Some who are counted as helped may be more properly counted as harmed.

The association elected officers prior to Stapleton's speech. The slate recommended by nominating committee chairman Mrs. Agnes Cunningham was elected.

Officers are Gerald Cook, Fredricktown, chairman; Bernice Bruce, East Prairie, first vice president; Evelyn Walden, East Prairie, second vice president; Mrs. Agnes Cunningham, Bertrand, secretary and June Hilpert, Cape Girardeay, treasurer.

Members at large are Winston Hall, New Madrid; Doctor T. P. Fenton, Charleston; Earl Williams, Anniston; John Underwood, Sikeston; Elaine Province, Charleston; and Fred A. Walker, Farmington.

Past Chairman Dave Ragan presided. Mayor Kendall Sikes presented a welcome speech and Dr. Robert Lively, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church, led the prayer.

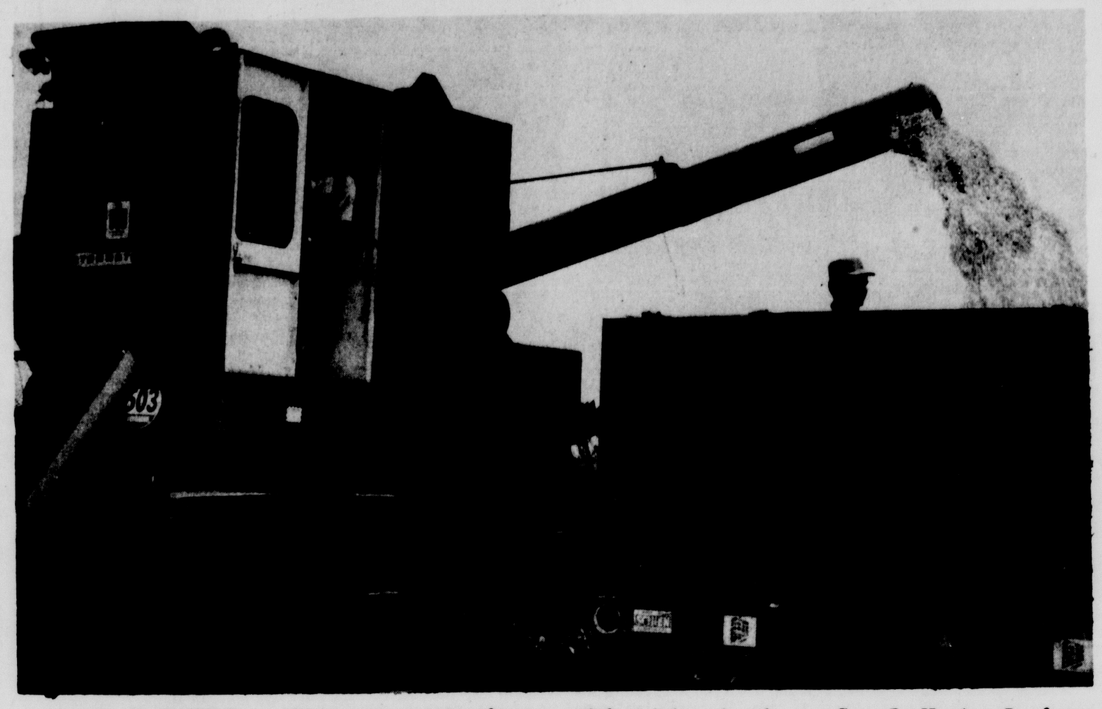
The planets Venus and Jupiter are now near each other in the east in the morning twilight. Venus, the brighter of the two, is now beginning to move slowly eastward among the stars.



A GOOD HARVEST is this corn pouring from a picker into a truck on a Sam L. Hunter Jr. farm north of New Madrid. The yield from 130 acres averaged almost 135 bushels per acre. It is farmed by R. B. and B. G. Schaffer. R. B. Schaffer is on the truck. Herschel Breece is at the controls.

Sharp Says Haiphong Port Closing Could End War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disputing gloomy forecasts that the costly Vietnam war could run on another five years, Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp says the quickest way to end it is to close North Vietnam's main port of Haiphong by mining it.

Sharp, U.S. commander in the Pacific, told senators he has recommended this frequently to "higher authority" in Washington.

"Mining is completely feasible and a very simple operation," the admiral told the Senate preparedness subcommittee Aug. 9. The 121 pages of closed testimony was made public today after hundreds of deletions by Pentagon censors. The gist of Sharp's testimony had become known last month.

Chairman John Stennis, D.Miss., and the other seven senators on the subcommittee already have unanimously recommended a step-up of the air war against North Vietnam as a result of testimony by Sharp and other top military leaders.

Sharp said he heard another halt in U.S. bombing had been considered as a means of encouraging a negotiated settlement.

"It generally would be a disaster to the United States in my opinion," Sharp said of such a bombing pause.

He said North Vietnam would rush supplies into South Vietnam because 500,000 to 600,000 North Vietnamese are occupied rebuilding and guarding against U.S. bombing strikes.

Basic Courses to Be Offered

Adult basic education classes for persons 18 and over who wish to complete their education through the eighth grade will be offered free by the Sikeston public schools.

Classes begin with orientation and registration at 7 p.m. Sept. 28, at building 5 at the Airport school.

The classes offer persons an opportunity to improve skills in reading, writing, arithmetic and social studies.

The teaching staff has been increased by utilizing personnel, who have worked with adults and students on a full - time basis. This is the third year the adult basic education classes have been taught.

Counseling services have been added.

A citizens advisory committee has been named.

Members are the Rev. T. A. McDonough, Wade Bedwell, Richard James, the Rev. J. W. Gwin, Bill Paylor, Willie Dixon, Jim Cornett, Wayne Collins, Alvin Fields, Louis Evans and L. L. Schuette.

The committee will elect officers in a meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Airport school.

A free bus service to and from classes will be started. The bus will leave Lincoln school at 6:15 p.m., Community Action Agency office at 6:20 p.m., Smith Avenue Bet-R-Valu Store at 6:35 p.m. and Barkett's Big Star at 6:45 p.m.

Interested adults may pre-enroll through Friday during school hours at the Airport school and Lincoln school, between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. at the Community Action Agency.

LINDA RIGSBY, center, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Rigsby, was named Miss Dexter last night. Judy Clark, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clark, was second runnerup, and Sue Robinson, right, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Robinson, was first runnerup.

Cyclists Involved in Two Traffic Accidents

A 14-year-old juvenile farm boy was injured while riding a motorbike and a 70-year-old man was treated for cuts and bruises in two traffic accidents Tuesday.

The juvenile, who lives near Sikeston, was riding a 1966 Suzuki Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. on an unmarked blacktopped highway, four miles northeast of Sikeston, when a 1963 station wagon, driven by Peggy Bollinger, 17, route two, Sikeston, backed out of a driveway and struck the right side of the motorbike.

The boy was knocked from his vehicle, receiving a concussion, fractured collarbone, leg fractures and lost teeth.

He was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital and referred to the juvenile authorities for not having a license, the state patrol reported.

Miss Bollinger was given a summons for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Monty Binkley, 70, Clarkton, was riding a bicycle down the middle of Interestate 57 at 10:20 p.m. Tuesday, four miles east of Sikeston, when a 1960 Cadillac, driven by Joseph Williams, 32, Chicago, swerved to miss him, ran into the median and overturned. The bicycle was grazed by the car.

Two passengers in the Cadillac, Ella Walker, 58, McGee, Miss., and Charles Lofton, 47, Chicago, and the driver, were cut, bruised and treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

The cyclist received cuts but did not require treatment.

Carnival Parade Entries Lagging

Organizations wishing to be represented in the Cotton Carnival parade may notify Parade Marshal Glenn McClellen by Friday.

Information needed is name of organization, type of entry and the name of the person in charge.

Units entered in the parade will gather at 9:30 a.m., Sept. 30, at Ranney and Tanner.

Only 12 groups have entered. Normally 50 or more organizations are represented.

Units include floats sponsored by civic clubs or commercial outlets and groups of Scouts, McClellan said.

McClellan's address is Box 733, Sikeston, and phone number is GR 1-1808.

Vernon Taylor Elected Mayor

BLOOMFIELD -- Vernon Taylow was elected mayor in Tuesday's special election.

Taylor, who polled 224 votes, defeated Everett C. Bess, who received 193.

The special election was called after Alvin Corbin resigned as mayor.

Stray Missile Cone Impact Point Spotted

VAN HORN, Tex. (AP) — A spokesman at White Sands Missile Range says a civilian helicopter crew has sighted what is "believed to be the impact point of a Pershing nose cone" from an Army missile that went off course.

The sighting was made Tuesday about 50 miles southwest of Van Horn in a secluded area of northern Mexico.

A 12-man team from the missile range gathered today in this West Texas community to await permission from the Mexican government to cross the border and recover components of the Pershing missile.

The two-ton, $750,000 artillery missile was launched Sept. 12 from Blanding, Utah, intended to impact 350 nautical miles to the south at White Sands in southern New Mexico.

White Sands officials said the missile's guidance and control section, contained classified material. It was designed to fall to earth separately from a dummy warhead.

Furtaw Files for Attorney General

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Joseph E. Furtaw of Lake Wauwanoka, Hillsboro, Mo., filed Monday for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Winds Reach 160 Miles Per Hour

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)— Hurricane Beulah, a vicious storm that took nearly 30 lives, crashed inland today and spun off killing and destructive tornadoes.

The Weather Bureau said at a late hour that the eye was between San Benito and Harlingen after smashing ashore at the mouth of the Rio Grande, which separates Texas and Mexico.

Hurricanes normally begin a great curve toward the northeast when they hit land and this does not rule out the possibility it might turn into the Gulf of Mexico again.

But it eased the severity of the forecasts for Corpus Christi, 160 miles north of Brownsville, where the Weather Bureau earlier predicted Beulah would hit with storm-driven tides of possible historic heights.

At Corpus Christi, rain and wind hit and some trees toppled, but traffic remained heavy on streets and many business houses remained open.

"She's about the biggest, nastiest storm I've ever seen," said the veteran pilot of a Navy hurricane hunter plane after flying through the eye.

Winds were estimated at 160 miles an hour at one point, but the Weather Bureau said the storm was expected to weaken slowly since some of its perimeter was over land.

Tornadoes spun off by the hurricane caused three deaths at Palacios, midway between Houston and Corpus Christi on Matagorda Bay. Another person was missing and five suffered critical injuries. State police said four tornadoes struck at Palacios, three homes suffered destruction and several automobiles were wrecked.

Tornadoes are a frequent companion of hurricanes and the Weather Bureau said they could be expected as far as 80 miles from the center.

More than 30,000 Texans fled far inland or took refuge in hometown shelters. The flight was orderly and appeared to be mostly cheerful, even taken as fun at first by some. But in neighboring Matamoros, Mexico, officials reported fear and confusion as residents scrambled for shelter.

The presence of her eye over a little bit of land made her course still uncertain.

At one point, the Weather Bureau predicted the eye would strike Corpus Christi, 160 miles up the coast from Brownsville and preparations for the blow already neared completion.

The Weather Bureau issued a tornado warning for the area from Corpus Christi to Baffin Bay, about 30 miles south of Corpus Christi. One tornado was sighted 30 miles south of Corpus Christi.

For comparison, famous hurricane Carla, which struck the Texas coast Sept. 11, 1961, had winds estimated at 175 m.p.h.— only slightly higher than Beulah. Although a half million persons fled inland, 40 persons died and damage was estimated at $500 million.

Ham radio operators reported the tiny town of Valle Hermoso, Mexico, 15 miles south of Brownsville, was almost wiped out as the hurricane winds swept through. Many residents had been evacuated before the storm hit.

No deaths or injuries were reported immediately.

Earlier Beulah had been blamed for 24 deaths— 23 in the eastern Carribbean and Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula and one when a 15-year-old girl was swept from her surfboard by rolling waves at Freeport, Tex., south of Houston.

Beulah uprooted giant palms, battered buildings and flailed Rio Grande Valley citrus groves as she surged to the coast.

The storm's blast knocked out all power in Brownsville. The city's lights blinked out in segments across the city as the storm's fury grew.

Rain fell in heavy bursts. Uprooted trees and ripped branches littered Brownsville streets. Some streets were impassable. Hospitals were on emergency power. One residence caught fire, cause unknown.

The Weather Bureau said tides up to 15 feet and torrential rains threatened dangerous flooding from Brownsville to Palacios, 50 miles northeast of Corpus Christi on Matagorda Bay.

In the 159-mile stretch from Brownsville to Corpus Christi there is little immediately along the coast except pastures of the huge King Ranch, lushly grassed coastal prairie so flat there is no barrier for winds or tides.

Some 15 to 30 miles inland along this unobstructed coastline lie a number of small towns, among them Raymondville, San Manuel, Rachal, Encino, Falfurrias, Kingsville, Driscoll and Robstown.

Corpus Christi is a city of more than 200,000.

Brownsville has a population of more than 50,000 and Matamoros, just across the Rio Grande, a population of about 100,000. Inland up the valley lie towns and farms containing at least another quarter- million people.

At 2:50 a.m. winds in Brownsville were clocked at 104 m.p.h.

Police said their cars were the only ones attempting to traverse Brownsville streets.

They reported several utility poles on fire, "hot lines" everywhere, palm trees ablaze and fallen trees all over the city.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY AND THE MEMORY OF MAN

COMES now Everett McKinley Dirksen, philosopher, to comment on the public's capacity for forgetting, and to suggest that what Gov. George Romney said about brain-washing may not long be remembered. The senator believes that in the months ahead there will be so many things to think about -- and worry about -- that no one will remember, a year from November, what the governor said about the brain-washing of Vietnam.

There is, we grant, a measure of truth in the Dirksen assessment of public reaction. On occasion, anyone in the newspaper business realizes (sometimes to his chagrin) how quickly people do forget. Few of us have anything like total recall, and that is probably just as well. But the memory is a tricky thing, and you have to watch it. Let an editorial be couched in the most glowing phrases, magnificently written and full of understanding, and it seems to fade ever so quickly. Let it be something that displeases a number of people, or let it contain -- as sometimes happens -- a slip of the type or a human error and, alas, it seems to be recalled nigh on to forever.

We mention this, not in the spirit of feeling sorry for ourselves (or for Governor Romney), but rather to point up the distinction which Senator Dirksen apparently did not make. The mind is a great and mysterious instrument and it has the habit of remembering that which it wants to remember and of forgetting that which it prefers to forget. In a sense, this is the mental equivalent of the physical reaction of shock to pain or injury.

THUS, while not wishing to trade phrases with Senator Dirksen at this distance or any other distance, we would have to enter an exception to his thinking. To be sure, there will be many matters to occupy the public thinking in the months ahead, and presumably, the President, if he seeks re-election (which seems rather likely) will discuss them, as will his Republican opponent, whoever he may be.

But unfortunately, Governor Romney -- like the other Republican aspirants -- must consider also the preliminaries, which is to say the business of winning the nomination. We have the impression that within the G. O. P. there are those who are less than enchanted with the governor from Michigan. Are they likely to forget the brain-washing comment? It seems unlikely that they will even if, in the heat of the ultimate campaign, Democrats might prove more considerate (which also seems unlikely).

Other presidential hopefuls, and, for that matter, politicians of less lofty ambition, have cause to regret the public memory. There were remarks by Senator Goldwater, for example, that came back to haunt him. Mr. Johnson is still reminded now and then of his program to economize by turning off the White House lights. Deeds, too, have a way of backfiring, and some dog-lovers may never forgive L. B. J. for the ear-lifting act with the White House beagles.

We are not suggesting that the Romney comment on brain-washing is comparable to these, and it is not for us to predict when -- or if -- it will be forgotten. Governor Romney made a comment that, by now, he probably wishes he hadn't made, and in quiet meditation he may see the problem he has created for himself. But the politician finds it difficult if not impossible to unsay that which has been said -- as, indeed, do we all. The governor can only hope that Senator Dirksen will prove to be an accurate prophet. Having had some experience with the public memory, we are not so certain.

This entire week, September 17-23, is being observed by patriotic citizens everywhere as CONSTITUTION WEEK. On this 180th anniversary of the adoption of our unique Constitution, special attention should be given to the Constitution's sound provisions, high principles, and unsurpassed ideals. Our Constitution is not merely a Bill of Rights; it is a Bill of Obligations. It is a covenant binding citizens, as well as the Government to its support. Let us protect it so that it may continue to protect us.

WELCOME ANNOUNCEMENT

The emergence of Thomas F. Eagleton of St. Louis, Missouri's 38-year-old Lieutenant Governor, as a formal candidate for United States Senator is a welcome announcement, not only because it was predicted several weeks ago by this newspaper but because Eagleton's candidacy should provide a full and frank discussion of the issues involved in the campaign. Although he may not be the only candidate to oppose the incumbent, Ed Long of Bowling Green, Eagleton is certainly one of the strongest candidates who could emerge. Others might well be former Governor John M. Dalton and Assistant Secretary of Treasury True Davis.

Eagleton possesses the capabilities of waging an active campaign, with some of the key issues to revolve around the questions of Vietnam and the rubber-stamping of administration measures. Sen. Long has had little to say about Vietnam in the past; seemingly his sole purpose in the Senate was to line up against illegal wiretapping, a rather safe and politically innocuous position.

But Missouri, represented by a senior U. S. Senator who has gained national and worldwide prominence for his leadership, his considered opinions on important subjects and his unblemished background, deserves a junior U.S. Senator of equal calibre, or at least one capable of attaining it. Tom Eagleton is certainly one of those who can qualify.

We are not about to endorse Eagleton or any other candidate for Senator at the moment. The filing time is a long way off, and most certainly there should be ample opportunity to discuss the issues of the campaign, including the position a U. S. Senator should take with regard to his private law practice and the acceptance of fees therefrom.

Sen. Long appears to have the wholehearted support and endorsement of organized labor, particularly in the St. Louis area. This is not surprising; union leaders have few, if any, better friends in the Senate than Ed Long. Organized labor has an obligation -- as well as a reason -- to support Ed Long.

On the other hand, many Missourians welcome yesterday's Eagleton announcement as an indication there will be a vigorous campaign for the Democratic nomination for the job now held by Sen. Long. We are among that group.

BOSTON (AP) — Supermarkets have become so big and crowded that many have established one-way traffic in their aisles. This can cause tremendous problems, especially for unwary males who are unfamiliar with supermarkets anyway.

Like for Ted Lumpke who was 39 when his wife got sick and he had to go to a supermarket for the first time. As soon as he got his grocery push cart he made a wrong turn down a one-way aisle.

Women began shouting at him: "One way, one way" and giving him dirty looks as they steered their push carts past him.

The store manager came rushing down the aisle waving his arms. "You can't push your push cart east on this aisle," he said. "This is a west aisle."

"Where are the eggs?" Lumpke asked.

"Row G, Section A, Shelf 3, eggs, beans and bacon," the manager said.

Lumpke backed out and went to Row G, but it was one way west at his end and he wanted to go east. He went around the store and came to Row G at its other end and there he saw a sign saying Row G was one way east.

That is impossible, Lumpke thought, because if Row G were one way east at the west end and one way west at the east end, then nobody could get into Row G.

Lumpke found the store manager. "There's something wrong with the signs on Row G," he said. "They're west at the east end and east at the west end."

"That's impossible," the manager said.

"Come and look," Lumpke said.

The manager came, looked and saw the signs.

"It means nobody can get into Row G," Lumpke said. "And what's worse, it means anybody who might be in Row G right now can't get out."

The manager thought about it. "Yes," he said. "But, of course, that's impossible," and he walked away.

So Lumpke threw caution to the wind and pushed his push cart in violation of the west sign east on Row G.

The shelves were almost bare and covered with dust. There was dust on the floor and foot prints, and grass had grown up in places between the broken linoleum.

The sign mixup must have occurred months ago, Lumpke thought, even years.

He pushed his cart over the cracked floor between the stripped and dirty shelves, the thrill of the explorer in his heart. He found the starved, emaciated woman against an empty carton of beans.

"Thank God," she said. "They've fixed the signs. I'm the lone survivor of a shopping party trapped in 1961 when the signs were mixed up. I've been existing on eggs, bacon and beans for six years."

"But the signs haven't been changed," Lumpke said.

The woman's thin, cracked face turned white. "But how did you get in?" she asked.

"I went east at the west end," Lumpke said, and the woman could only look at him in wonder.

"Come with me," Lumpke said. He helped the poor woman to the west end of the aisle where they met the store manager.

"Here," the manager said, "you can't come out. This is the west end of Row G, an east aisle."

"But if we can't come out by going west at the east end or east at the west end," Lumpke said, "then we shall have to stay here forever."

"I can't help that," the manager said.

"Without a chaperon?" Lumpke asked indignantly. "In a supermarket, the last bastion of middle-class morality?"

The manager, realizing Lumpke had appealed to a higher law, let them out. "The pure of heart always win in a supermarket," Lumpke said.

"I hope you plan to pay for the eggs, bacon and beans," the manager told the woman.

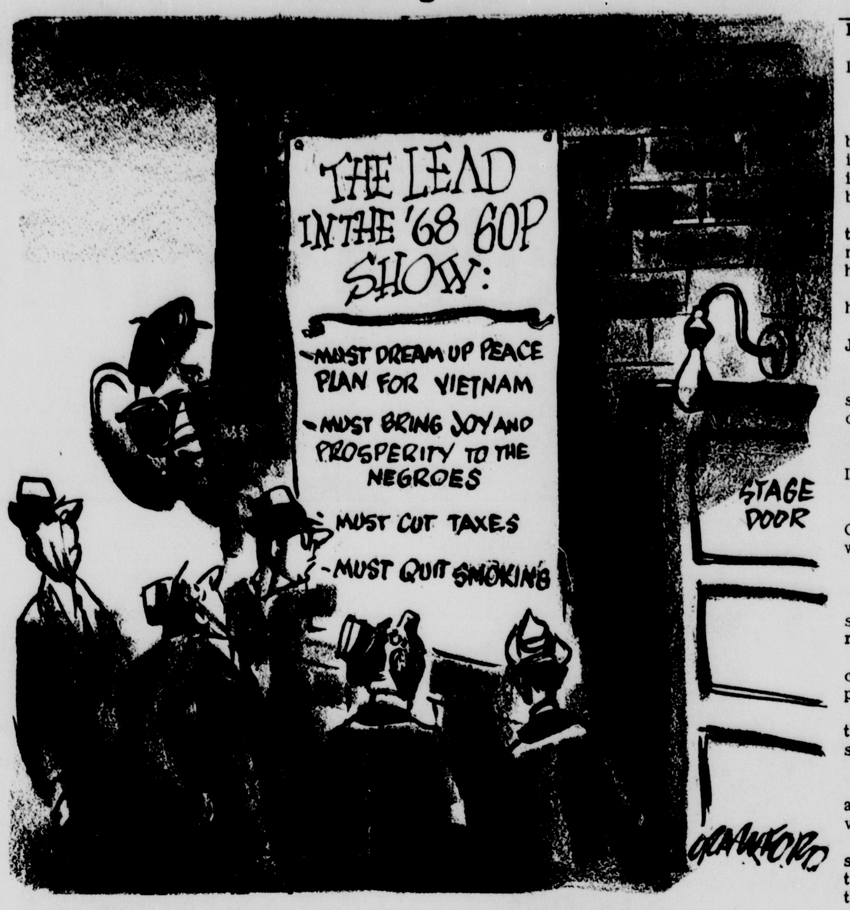
Casting Call



"How long have you been driving without a taillight, buddy?" demanded the policeman.

The driver jumped out, ran to the rear of his car, and gave a low moan. His distress was so great that the cop was moved to ease up on him a bit.

"Aw, come now," he said, "You don't have to take it so hard. It's not that serious."

"It isn't?" cried the motorist. "What happened to my trailer?"

The student nurse was beautiful, dedicated and dumb. Her bedside manner inclued mishaps with hypodermic needle, rectal thermometer and bedpan; but she was determined to devote herself to the sick and suffering, and she wasn't discouraged by disparaging individuals who suggested she might be better suited for spreading discomfort than alleviating it.

One particular afternoon, the doctor in charge of the ward left our neophyte Nightingale to care for a middle-aged executive, secure in the knowledge that this man's affliction was uncomfortable but minor, and the treatment prescribed was too simple to be misunderstood. But a few minutes later, the doctor was shocked to see his patient running down the hall, white hospital robe billowing out behind him howling at the top of his lungs, with the nurse chasing after him carrying a basin of steaming water.

"No, no, Miss Smith!" exclaimed the doctor, as the pair rushed past him. "I told you to prick his boil!"

FEDERAL FISCAL POLICY SCORES HITS, MISSES

Federal government attempts to steer the economy have produced a mixed bag of results, says a new Tax Foundation, Inc. study. Much of the result of the directing effort can be called successful; much can be labelled as mitakes, misjudgments or weaknesses, according to Research Publication No. 8, "Alternatives and Issues in Federal Fiscal Policy."

The study takes a look at Federal actions since government assumed its relatively new responsibility of producing "maximum employment, production and purchasing power" under the 1946 Employment Act.

A newly rising young sales manager came up with the ideal system for placing visiting buyers into a more receptive mood. When they reached this city, he arranged parties for them with the lushest call girls from the most expensive house in town, where he had credit. All went smoothly until there was a recession that left him short on funds, and he was unable to pay for the services rendered.

In desperation, as the girls began to dun him, the young sales manager consulted his lawyer.

"We could," suggested the attorney, "notify the press that you committed suicide. Then after a mock funeral, your troubles would be settled. You could leave town until things pick up financially."

So it was done -- with a most impressive funeral. Among the many mourners gathered about the casket were the unpaid call girls. "Poor Henry!" sighed one, a redhead. "I'm certainly going to miss him.

"Happy flying, Henry baby," sorrowed another, a shapely blonde. "I'm sorry it had to be you."

A third girl, a ravishing brunette exclaimed, "Henry, you rat! Committing suicide and leaving me holding the bag for all that money! I'll make sure you're really dead, you rat!" With this she drew a revolver from her bag and pointed it into the open coffin.

"Baby, take it easy," he shrieked, "I'll pay you!"

Doc. Duncan Says

DOC DUNCAN SAYS: All true American citizens agree all laws should be respected and obeyed. BUT, when they can see our freedoms our Forefathers died for being chipped away by a conspiracy of lawmakers, they apparently have no fear of God or man heck or high water whose only care is for the fast buck and the sly conversion of our nation into a dictatorship where the people have no more say than they did in Germany when Hitler ruled as dictator or when Stalan ruled in Russia. Looks like it's a sad fact our people will have to make their choice, wake up or give up our form of Government.

H.L. Hunt Says

DELEGATE VOTING IS BEST

In the current debate over reform of the Electoral College, it should be remembered that the direct vote system of elections has been tested and found good. The direct vote system of electing the President would be greatly inferior to delegate voting greatly inferior to delegate voting.

Any delegate voting system is better than direct voting. None would feel safe in the choice of the Secretary of Defense or an Army Chief of Staff by direct vote. In spite of the widespread deep disappointment with the present U.S. Supreme Court, there has never been a time in the life of our Republic that the people would have tolerated choice of a Supreme Court Justice by the direct vote.

Members of the Catholic faith venerate their Pope, who is elected by Cardinals serving as electors as effectively as presidential electors serve. The laity would never neverate a Pope who was elected by their own direct vote. When the heads of Protestant denominations are selected, it would be impractical to try to elect them by a direct vote of the laity; and few of the members of any denomination would have confidence in a head of their denomination elected by direct vote.

Nomiating committees are nearly always employed in the selection of the presidents of large corporations and associations. Donors to great universities and the students attending them would have little confidence in a chancellor or university president elected by direct vote.

The best way to reform the Electoral College is through adoption of a constitutional amendment placing the Congressional District Plan in effect. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The President's difficulty in conducting foreign affairs while Congress looks over his shoulder, was never better illustrated than in the debate over purchasing 16 wooden minesweepers from Britain in return for Britain's purchasing $2.5 billion worth of airplanes from us.

Woodrow Wilson had the problem after World War I, and the League of Nations was defeated as a result. The defeat paved the way for World War II.

Truman had the problem after World War II, but, thanks to such enlightened GOP leaders as the late Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, he was able to win out over Republican isolationists.

Eisenhower did not have the problem, chiefly because Lyndon Johnson, then Senate majority leader, cooperated with the White House right down the line on foreign policy. Even when Ike came back from the abortive 1960 Summit Conference in Paris after the U-2 incident upset his move to end the cold war, LBJ backed him up.

Johnson has continued Ike's policy of improving relations with the Communist Bloc, but now faces bitter Congressional opposition over relaxing trade barriers. The current battle is over whether the export-import bank can loan money to facilitate trade with countries which have aided North Vietnam. Actually the Ex-Im Bank loans money to U.S. companies to promote U.S. exports, and the ban proposed by Congressional isolationists would chiefly hurt American trade.

Johnson has to worry not only about the Senate, which under the Constitution has a right to "advise and consent-- on foreign policy, but about the House of Representatives, which has no such right.

HOUSE JUMPS TRACES

It was the House of Representatives, not the Senate, which slapped down the British over the relatively small but very significant 16 wooden minesweeper deal.

When Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., once involved with Bobby Baker in a flagrant conflict of interest, introduced the "kick-the-British" amendment, Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla., the majority leader, and Rep. George Mahon, D - Tex., Appropriations Committee Chairman, argued that this was a slap at our best friend.

They were howled down by Byrnes, Gerry Ford, R-Mich., and a combination of hawks and isolationists.

Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., countered that the minesweeper contract was part of $325 million in arms purchases the U.S. planned to make from Britain partly to offset the $2.5 billion the British will spend here for the F111. Sikes argued that the United States should stand by its commitment. But GOP leader Ford raised the phony idea that the House must be consulted on foreign policy.

"It is our responsibility in the Congress as a co-equal branch of the government to be fully advised before there is any agreement one way or another. In this case we were not consulted and therefore are not bound."

Proclaimed Byrnes: "Involved is the question or whether Congress will turn over to Secretary McNamara the responsibility given to us by the Constitution to provice and maintain the Navy. I ask that Congress assume its constitutional responsibility . . . I ask that we save Secretary McNamara from another needless risk involving the security of this country."

Sikes, hotly disputing this, explained that security wasn't involved, that the Constitution gave no foreign affairs power to the House.

"If we renege on this," he said, "the British will refuse to abide by their end of the bargain. And U. S. labor will lose eight times as much as it gains."

"We cannot live in a world all our own," said Sikes. "We must get along with other people. We have to trade with them. Trade can never be altogether one way. We have the better of the deal, but regardless let us not repudiate our nation's word.

"Let us not forget that we are dealing with one of the very few major countries which will stand with us in most of the questions which confront us in today's troubled world."

However, Sikes, Mahon and Albert pleaded in vain. The isolationists won. Later, because Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the majority leader, was in Japan, the Senate, under Democratic Whip Russell Long, D-La., gave in without a fight.

THEIR NO. 1 CROSS

Now that President De Gaulle has become the No. 1 cross which the United States has to bear in Europe, it's interesting to recall the famous Churchillian wisecrack about De Gaulle during the days when Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt first dealt with him.

Kay Halle, a close friend of Churchill, gives this version of the wisecrack in her recent book "Irrepressible Churchill."

At the Casablanca Conference in 1943, FDR remarked to Churchill, "I do now know what to do with De Gaulle."

"I am no more enamoured of him than you are," replied Churchill. "But I would rather have him on the committee than strutting about as a combination of Joan of Arc and Clemenceau."

Later Churchill said to his aide, Brendan Bracken, "You may have your single cross to bear, but I -- I have the double cross of Lorraine."

"But remember, Winston," said Bracken, "he thinks of himself as the reincarnation of St. Joan."

"Yes, but MY bishops won't burn him," said Churchill.

Cosa Nostra Combines Reach For Control of Nation's Airports.

New York: -- Everything is up to date in New York City -- including the Cosa Nostra. It even has a generation gap. Its "younger toughs look to the future -- like supersonic space freight.

They well know that the airports of tomorrow will serve as did the waterfronts of yesterday. Soon aerial cargo ships will be hurtling through the skies carrying ten freight cars. And the crime syndicates want control of the hauling and access to the runways of the nation's future transportation just as they once controlled and shook down the nation's docks.

So, troops, captains and dons of at least two Cosa Nostra combines, those of the Luchese family and the Carlo Gambino crowd, and trying to stake out priorities in the airfreight haulage business.

Weirdly enough, these are the same crowds with which Jimmy Hoffa used to run. Naturally, they're trying to move into the power vaccum created by Hoffa's move from the lush Washington Woodner Hotel to Lewisburg penitentiary.

Who would know better about such a vacuum than Hoffa's old comrade, the suburbanite extortioner Johnny Dio and the latter's chief, Tony (Ducks) Corallo, who may succed the late, unlamented Thomas (Three Fingers Brown) Luchese.

The Luchese combine appears to have decided to homestead at Kennedy airport. They haven't ignored the other metropolitan air depots, according to state and federal investigators. But Kennedy is the world's biggest. If the mob cracks that one, they'll push on easily to freight runways across the nation.

They "want in" on the delivery system, the unions involved in the road haulage and the freight forwarders' associations feeding the massive airport. They seem to have succeeded.

For more than a year now the State Commission of Investigation (SCI) has been probing the infiltration of the mob. And the commission now needs just a few more months to crack the operation wide open.

Specifically the SCI describes its mission on this front thus:

"Of particular concern is racketeer infiltration of freight handling, trucking and union activities at various airports in the metropolitan area. As part of the investigation of organized criminal activities in the field of legitimate business, the commission seeks to ascertain: (1) the extent and manner in which individual racketeers and organized criminal groups have infiltrated, exerted unlawful influence or control over the airfreight trucking field; (2) various labor unions active in the airfreight trucking field, and (3) various trade associations identified with the airfreight trucking field."

The investigators found what the commission describes as though criminal elements on the payrolls of some truckers. The muscle men are listed as salesmen, though the commission learned that they "had never produced any business for the corporation. In fact, there was no evidence that they had devoted any time to the company's business."

One of these "underworld" figures on the ghost payroll was an ex-con who fronted for Dio during the Hoffa Damon and Pythias days. The muscle man is Joe Curcio, once an officer in a teamsters "paper" local and Dio's regional director.

Curcio, a quaint fellow with a prison record and reputation for making bad moonshine in an old still, worked with Dio, then under the protection of the entire Luchese group. This was some 15 years ago. They dreamed of using their few local unions as the base for first seizing power in New York and then exploiting this infrastructure as a launching pad for power over the entire behemoth Teamsters brotherhood. They failed. But that's another story.

Now Curcio and his men, using the old technique, have attempted to move into the future again. Curcio, according to the commision, knows of racketeering infiltration of freight handling, trucking and union activity. He has been on the payroll of a firm know as Air Freight Haulage Co. The commission believes it now knows what Curcio knows. But its commissioners are so tight-lipped, their own dentists coulndn't open then up.

But it is certain that Curcio would not move without the approval of the Luchese dons. It is certain that the Gambino crowd is in this, too. Ir is positive that the Cosa Nostra stretches its modernity to airprots outside this metropolitan area. It is certain that "the mob is watching Kennedy Airport, through which comes narcotics from Turkey via Marseilles and Sicily; and smuggled goods bound for Mexico and Latin America." It is convinced that the multibillion dollar airfreight haulage industry is in danger. It plans to move in the next 90 days so that the Cosa Nostra does not become as gory an institution at the airdromes as the mob did on the waterfront.

The commission plans to shake them out before the Mafia shakes down the future.

Northern Conference Clash At Charleston

by JIM KLEIN

CHARLESTON -- After two successful home football outings, the Sikeston high Bulldogs go on the road Friday night.

Sikeston travels to Charleston to meet the Bluejays in one of the oldest and traditional football games in Southeast Missouri. The game is set for 7:30 p.m. and will be played at the now junior high school.

The Jays hope to turn the tables on the Bulldogs as they did in 1965, scoring an upset victory by a 6-0 margin. Last year they beat the Jays 28-0.

Sikeston and Charleston each have won two games this year. Sikeston defeated Chaffee, 27-0, and Perryville, 20-14. Charleston whipped East Prairie, 28-0, and Metropolis, Ill., 41-0.

Both teams are ready for the game. Sikeston's King Sidwell has taken over for injured defensive End Gary Long.

When the Bluejays and Bulldogs meet on the field Friday night, the teams will not only engage in a northern division conference bout but the winner undoubtedly will have a better shot at the title.

The triumph will enable the victor to keep in the running with the pre-season favorite, Poplar Bluff. The Mules venture to Perryville this week.

Charleston has been giving Sikeston trouble with the exception of last years game. Two years ago the Jays edged the Dogs, 6-0, which ended a Sikeston 17-year winning hex. In 1963 Sikeston won, 21-14, as did they in 1962, 13-7.

Coach William Sapp also said that he feels the team will be ready for the Bluejays for two reasons. "First, the boys weren't satisfied with the job they did n satisfied with the job they did in the Perryville Pirate game and they are determined to do better," he said.

Coach Herbert Marshall of the Jays feels "the team that gets the break will win as has usually been the story between Charleston and Sikeston"

"The Sikeston line outweighs us by about 30 pounds per man and has the two fastest boys in the conference in their backfield," remarked Coach Marshall.

But he also believes that third-year letterman, Halfback Everett Holley, and Quarterback Charlie Babb, who he considers "the best in the conference," will equalize Sikeston advantages.

Coach Sapp has respect for Charleston because he believes they "are the toughest passing team Sikeston will encounter this season."

"Art Jackson probably will replace Pat Hart is starting defensive left halfback. Ed Felker's safety spot will be turned over to Terry Bryant enabling Felker to concentrate more on his fullback duties," noted Sapp.

The Bluejays will be led by second team All-Conference Quarterback and Halfback Holley. Babb threw four touchdown passes and Holley scored four times in leading Charleston past Metropolis Friday.

Sikeston is led by first team All-Conference End Mike Garner and honorable mention Fullback Felker. Felker and Dennis Snelling were the workhorses in Friday night's victory over Perryville.

The Sikeston-Charleston game should be one of the better contests of the season.

Seniors' Tourney

At Jackson Saturday

JACKSON -- Members of the Southeast Missouri Seniors' Golf Association will hold its fourth annual golf tournament this weekend at Kimbeland Country Club.

According to C. C. Scott, Sikeston, association secretary, the club totals 90 members.

Golfers will be divided into age groups and will tour the course with handicaps subtracted for the final score.

Players will shoot for low gross and low nets.

Each golf club in Southeast Missouri is represented in the seniors' association.

While the men are golfing the women will be entertained at the Cape Girardeau golf course with golf and bridge.

Sikeston members are Scott, J. F. Cox, Melvin Dace, Oren Dahl, Bridwell Crenshaw, L.J. Flewelling, Ed Johnson, Duree Medley and T. E. Stallings.

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Rock, attorney for the New Jersey Americans of the American Basketball Association, said Tuesday the club has started legal action to make 6-foot-10 LeRoy Ellis play for the ABA club instead of the Baltimore Bullets in the older National Basketball Association.

Stanford has beaten San Jose State in football each of the last six years.

Scott Fourth At Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF -- Four golfers from Charleston and one from Sikeston and Malden placed in the Poplar Bluff Westwood Hills Country Club tournament over the weekend.

Virgil Powell of Malden shot a 136, good for a tournament record and the tournament title.

J. D. Byrne of Charleston tied for fifth in the championship division with a 145 but lost by a toss of the coin.

Charleston's Tom Hess shot a 148 to cap the championship in class A and Bob Byrne, also of Charleston placed fourth with a 154. He lost a flip of the coin for third place.

In class B play, Sikeston's Clarence Scott shot a 159 and tied for third but lost the flip. Bob Coon of Charleston placed second in B with a 155 score in the 36-hole tournament Saturday and Sunday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Oswaldo Rosado completed a $2,530 daily double at Aqueduct race track with Celtic Wind on Sept. 5. On Tuesday he won with Mecca's Sister, $97, to complete a $3,648 DD. Ron Turcotte brought in Crooked Count at $94.60 to start Tuesday's big payoff.

John Yovicsin, a native of Steelton, Pa., is in his 16th season as a head football coach. He coached Gettysburgh five years and spent the last 10 seasons at Harvard.

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — William Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., heads the U.S. team that will play against Canada and Mexico in the America's Cup amateur golf tourney here Oct. 7-8.

The other U.S. team members, as announced by the Mexican Golf Association Tuesday, are Donald Allen of Rochester, N.Y., Robert Dickson of Mcalester, Okla., Marvin Giles, Lynchburg, Va., and A. Downing Gray, Pensacola, Fla. Dr. Edgar Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz., will be the nonplaying captain.

College Football Picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Newest addition to the dress of a football forecaster is a chest protector.

That is to help keep the buttons from flying off one's vest because of an opening week with a 26-5 record for .840. May there be more of them through the season:

Notre Dame over California: The way some people talk you would think that quarterback Terry Hanratty and end Jim Seymour were the only two football players on the Notre Dame team. The truth is, there are several others.

Texas over Southern California: The Longhorns have a horde of young running backs plus Bill Bradley at quarterback. The Trojans' No. 1 field general, Toby Page, was severely shaken up last weekend and may not be at his best.

Alabama over Florida State: The Crimson Tide's defense supposedly is so strong it will need only a field goal for Coach Bear Bryant's team to pick up another victory.

Penn State over Navy: Jack Curry and Ted Kwalick give Penn State the East's best pair of ends. Navy counters with Rob Taylor, all-East as a pass receiver a year ago.

UCLA over Pitt: The Californians won, 57-14, last year but Pitt has improved.

Miami over Northwestern: The Hurricanes have added an offense to go with their potent defense of the past. It is centered around Jim Cox, end; Bill Miller, quarterback, and Jerry Daanen, a flanker.

Illinois over Florida: The Big Ten team seeks to redeem its prestige after the scandal of last winter that cost it its coaching staff.

Michigan State over Houston: The Spartans will win but Warren McVea will give them a workout.

Georgia over Mississippi State: Georgia's entire starting backfield, returns intact. Mississippi State relying heavily on sophomores.

Purdue over Texas A&M: The Boilermakers have their powerful defensive platoon back and claim their new quarterback, Mike Engelbrecht, is faster, stronger and a better thrower than Bob Griese.

Georgia Tech over Vanderbilt: Two brand new coaches in this one but Bill Pace at Vanderbilt didn't inherit any horses while Bud Carson at Tech did.

Washington over Wisconsin: The Huskies got all the kinks out of their system in last Saturday's encounter with Nebraska.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri's Board of Curators will consider bids for construction of a new press box at Memorial Stadium when it meets this weekend.

Paul R. Prost Co. of Columbia was apparent low bidder for general construction with an offer of $335,557 when bids were opened Tuesday.

In addition to providing more space for newsmen, the press box will have room for more than 250 guests of the university and contributors to the press box fund.

The three-story structure will be shorter than the present press box and thus permit addition of some 300 stadium seats.

Roland Goes 124 In St. Louis Loss

NEW YORK (AP) — Three running backs each gained more than 100 yards last Sunday on the National Football League's opening day but the big surprise had to be Bill (Please Don't Call Me Willie) Asbury of the Pittsburg Steelers.

Johnny Roland, the 1966 rookie of the year, ran for 124 yards at St. Louis in a losing cause. Dan Reeves, a key man on Dallas' champs of the East a year ago, gained 114 yards. That was expected.

Asbury, supposed to be playing second fiddle to Earl Gros with the Steelers, rambled fog 107 yards on 12 carries, scored two touchdowns and averaged 8.9 yards per carry.

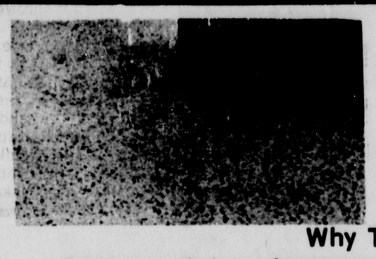
When Gros suffered a knee injury in training, Asbury got back his old starting job. He doesn't figure on giving it up.

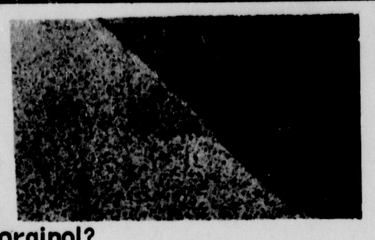
John Unitas of Baltimore leads the quarterbacks in the first weekly NFL statistics after throwing for 401 yards, a career high, in Baltimore's opener with Atlanta.

Former Michigan State varsity swimmer Pete Williams won the 400 - meter individual medley in 4:50.8 at the 1967 National AAU outdoor championships.

Henry King, defensive end for the New York Jets, intercepted 11 passes for 180 yards last season at Utah State.

American Football League teams listed 29 exhibition games this season, 16 of them with NFL clubs.





Why Torginol?

Compare these advantages! Compare these features!

ADVANTAGES
Torginol offers the widest latitude of colors, color combinations, designs and patterns of any other flooring material. In addition, a deep 3 - dimensional effect that intensifies its texture and beauty can be provided with additional coatings. Its wall - to - wall seamless beauty leaves no place for dirt or dust to collect and waxing is eliminated because of its durable finish. Maintenance is reduced to the fast swipe of a damp sponge.

DESCRIPTION
Torginol is an exciting, colorful, seamless floor composed of vinyl color chips imbedded in a clear polyurethane base. Recommended minimum thickness is one-sixteenth inches. A high gloss, semi-gloss or matte finish can be provided.

CHARACTERISTICS
Torginol is resilient, non-porous and highly resistant to most mild acids and alkalies. Its resistance to scuffing, scratching and even indentation by spiked heels is excellent.

RECOMMENDED USAGE

Birds Keep Flying On

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Outside the Sheraton Hotel hung a big sign: "Congratulations St. Louis Cardinals, National League Champions."

Inside, the flush of Monday night's pennant clinching victory over the Philadelphia Phillies have worn off, Manager Red Schoendienst made plans for the balance of the season and the World Series.

Schoendienst had recovered from the wild champagne celebration in the dressing room after the game and a later party at a downtown restaurant. He had even forgotten an early morning ride home in a $37,000 Rolls Royce.

The Cardinals' manager was all baseball again.

He said he planned to pitch Bob Gibson, 13-6, Steve Carlton, 14-8, Nelson Briles, 13-5, and Dick Hughes, 14-6, in rotation the rest of the National League season. The one exception would be to skip Hughes, who pitched Tuesday night, on his next turn.

Schoendienst said Hughes was a little arm weary and could use the extra rest. Hughes has pitched 213 1-3 innings and posted an ERA of 2.79. The 29-year-old first-year pitcher could be in line for Rookie-of-the-Year honors.

You couldn't tell the Phillies Hughes is arm weary. The right-hander blanked them 1-0 Tuesday night with five hits, striking out seven and looking strong enough in the ninth to go as long as he had to.

The Phillies didn't get a hit until the fourth, and only in the sixth did they place two men on base. Hughes met the challenge by retiring the hot hitting Tony Gonzalez with runners at first and third to end the inning.

The loser was Jim Bunning, a 16-game winner. Bunning lost his 14th, and fourth by a 1-0 score. He lost a fifth 2-0. Bunning went eight innings and gave up six hits while striking out seven, boosting his league leading strikeout total to 234.

The 44-year-old Schoendienst, a pennant winner in his third year as a manager, didn't say so specifically, but he indicated the Gibson, Carlton, Briles, Hughes quartet would be the pitchers for the series.

Schoendienst said he would juggle the rest of the line-up to give some of his regulars a rest. The last week of the season, the team which will open the series will play every game to keep them sharp.

Burglar Alarm Firm Not Liable for Loss

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Wimple operated a specialty shop. To protect his interests and the contents of his shop, he had a burglar alarm system installed. And, as fate would have it, when he opened the doors one morning the only thing he found intact was the burglar alarm. The rest of the shop was topsy-turvy. Burglars had been at work during the wee hours of the morning, but not the alarm. It had failed to go off.

Outraged, Wimple sued the alarm company for his losses. "I paid plenty to have that alarm put in," he complained in court. "Since it didn't work, they should be held responsible." "Nonsense," was the answer. "If the alarm didn't go off, we're prepared to give him a new one. But that's the full extent of our responsibility.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the alarm company liable for Wimple's losses?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that considering the early hour of the burglary, even if the alarm had sounded, there was no assurance the burglars would have been apprehended. Consequently, the alarm company could not be held responsible.

Chemical Hazard In Frisco Wreck

PORTAGEVILLE--The last two cars of the 16 derailed in the Frisco railroads 70-car freight train Sunday carried a toxic Fertilizer, anydrous ammonia.

These cars remained upright with only their front wheels off the tracks.

The wreckage was in a two-blocks area in the cotton gin district.

The cars carrying anhydrous ammonia were checked for leaks following the wreck.

Most of the other de-railed cars were empty, a Frisco spokesman reported. Among them were box cars, hopper cars and gondola cars.

The wreck was caused by a hot box on a switch engine from Blytheville that was being taken to St. Louis for a maintenance check.

The switch engine was being pulled and was in about the middle of the train. The hot box caused the switch engine to lose a wheel about a quarter of a mile south of the accident scene.

A large section of the train, which was in front of the switch engine, remained on the tracks and was taken on north by the crew.

Only one scheduled train had to be re-routed.

Crews said the wreckage should be cleared by the middle of this week.

Only one rail crossing, the southern-most entrance to Portageville, was blocked and it was opened during the night. That crossing was blocked by the rear section of the train which remained on the tracks.

Cairo School Bomb Threat Work of Crank

CAIRO - A telephoned bomb threat to Cairo high school early today has been labeled a crank call by authorities investigating the incident.

As a safety measure, all students were immediately evacuated from the school building. Principal Gale Dawson said students were originally instructed to report back for classes at noon, but that since early dismissal was scheduled Tuesday afternoon for the funeral of a student, classes would not resume until the regular time Wednesday.

Under direction of Fire Chief Lewis Edwards, a search of the Cairo high building was conducted. Chief Edwards said nothing was found and termed the building secure. Police immediately proceeded on the theory that the call had been placed by a crank.

Cairo junior high classes were also dismissed for the day after a number of parents, learning of the high school incident, asked permission to take their children away from that building. Junior high was also scheduled for early dismissal for the funeral.

All Cairo firemen and a large number of school employes were organized into a search party by Chief Edwards and the building systematically combed.

The call was received at the CHS office minutes after students entered the building to start classes this morning.

The person taking the call said a man, who did not identify himself, issued the threat that a bomb had been placed in the building and then hung up.

School officials pointed out that chances of a bomb being placed in the building were negligible. Watchmen had been in the school throughout the night and had left a short time before shcool convened.

State Park Water Now Fit to Drink

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Signs warning users of Trail of Tears State Park not to drink water available in the camping area came down Monday, Jim Bush, park superintendent, reported. He added that the water is now safe for consumption.

Bush said a chemical has been added to the water in a well found Wednesday to be contaminated. The chemical will kill the organisms per 100 mills. Four organisms per 100 mills is the state established maximum.

CLEARFIELD, Pa. (AP) — Volunteer firemen were called to the home of the H.W. Browns to rescue, not a cat, but a lizard from a tree.

Since the pet lizard was only two inches long and blended with the color of the bark, firemen finally located the lizard by shaking the tree. The lizard fell out.

Coffee Corner
by Cherie

A friend gave me this little child's memo, and after reading it I decided everyone would profit far more from these words of wisdom than from any I might be able to come up with. This was used in conjunction with the last St. Francis Parent-Teachers Association meeting, and I would like to thank them for this list.

I believe one of these pasted in a handy spot for mothers to quickly scan might just be a very good idea and the only thing I have to add is one memo: from your parents:

Don't forget to forgive and understand us when we don't always do what is expected or wanted of us. Remember that whatever we do, we always have you and your welfare first in our hearts and minds.

MEMO: FROM YOUR CHILD

1. Don't spoil me. I know quite well that I ought not to have all I ask for. I'm just testing you.
2. Don't be afraid to be firm with me. I prefer it. It makes me feel more secure.
3. Don't let me form bad habits. I have to rely on you to detect them in the early stages.
4. Don't correct me in front of people if you can help it. I'll take more notice if you talk to me in private.
5. Don't be too upset when I say, "I hate you". It isn't you I hate, but your power to thwart me.
6. Don't protect me from consequences. I need to learn the painful way sometimes.
7. Don't take too much notice of my small ailments. Sometimes they get me the attention I need.
8. Don't nag. If you do I shall have to protect myself by appearing deaf.
9. Don't make rash promises. Remember that I feel badly let down when promises are broken.
10. Don't be inconsistent. That completely confuses me and makes me lose faith in you.
11. Don't put me off when I ask questions. If you do you will find that I stop asking and seek my information elsewhere.
12. Don't tell me my fears are silly. They are terribly real and you can do much to reassure me if you try to understand.
13. Don't ever suggest that you are perfect or infallible. It gives me too great a shock when I discover that you are neither.
14. Don't ever think that it is beneath your dignity to apologize to me. An honest apology makes me feel surprisingly warm toward you.
15. Don't forget I love experimenting. I couldn't get on without it, so please put up with it.
16. Don't forget how quickly I am growing up. It must be very difficult to keep pace with me, but please try.
17. Don't forget that I can't thrive without lots of understanding love, but I don't need to tell you that, do I?
18. Don't forget that music is an important part of my life and I often have the urge to play a musical instrument. When I ask for this opportunity, please give my request serious consideration.
19. Don't forget that playing an instrument is a wholesome pastime and developes poise, posture, self-confidence, musical alertness and a spirit of teamwork and cooperation.

Plant Named Fred Outgrows Home

MAIDSTONE, England (AP) — Fred, the plant, needs a new home.

Fred lives in a small yard behind Ruby Martin's cafe in Maidstone. Mrs. Martin's problem is that Fred is a 9-foot monster— and still growing.

He appears to be a cross between a dahlia and a tomato plant. Fred erupted from a seedbox two months ago.

Said Mrs. Martin: "When I bought the seeds I asked for something small to fit in seed boxes, but then Fred started growing. It was a joke at first. But now he takes up so much water that the other flowers are dying. He will just have to go."

Results of Government Intervention

EIGHTEEN years ago the United States was producing about half of the world's output of cotton. This has shrunk to only one-fifth. Today it is generally known that we have lost the greater part of the world's cotton market because of an agricultural policy which maintained artificially high prices, and at the same time severely restricted crop acreage. The maintenance of the price of any commodity above the competitive level does two things:

1) It encourages others to increase their outputs. In the case of cotton this has meant increased production in other countries and further restriction of our markets.

2) It stimulates the effort to find substitutes of other goods and processes to replace those which have been priced at artificially high levels. In the case of cotton, maintaining high prices has stimulated the development of a great many synthetic fibers as a substitute for it.

Cotton production has been price-supported for more than 30 years, during which time we have lost most of our market for it. Harvested acreage declined from an average of 14.6 million acres in the 1961-65 period to only 9.6 million acres in 1966.

A third disadvantage of a subsidized market is the heavy expense levied upon the taxpayer. During the first 8 months of the fiscal year ending July 1, 1967, the loss to American taxpayers resulting from government regulation and control of cotton amounted to $1.11 billion. Of this sum $710 million was paid to producers, and $400 million represented losses on disposals of government-stored cotton.

Had there been no government intervention in the cotton industry, it is probable that ways would have been found to meet competition, and our country would have retained a much larger portion of the world production of cotton. As a result of intervention, however, we have lost four-fifths of the market, and have burdened our taxpayers. Our experience with cotton, as with government intervention in other economic activities of the people, only confirms the proverb that every government intervention in the economic activities of the people results in less human satisfaction. This is true because the intervention either shrinks the market or levies high costs upon the taxpayers, or both.

Americans paid an average of $290 in state and local taxes during fiscal 1966, $25 per person more than during the previous year. The range was from a low of $181 in South Carolina to a high of $410 in New York. New York also topped the list of states in tax revenues—$7.485 billion in 1966. Total state and local tax take was $56.7 billion, up $5.5 billion from the previous year.

Greek Soprano Coming to Met

By ERIC WAHA
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA (AP) — Jeanette Pilou, a fast-rising star of the Vienna State Opera, will go to the United States to sing her "dream part" at the Metropolitan and to discover America.

"I have never been in the United States and I am a little afraid," the Greek singer who makes her home in Milan, Italy, said.

Afraid of what?

"New York is so big and it frightens me," the dark-eyed soprano said. She is not afraid of the new Metropolitan, though.

"I don't expect any difficulties," she said, "the ac oustics there are very good, colleagues told me." She will arrive in New York in August.

The soprano said she was looking forward to learn about the American way of life, American food and everything else she can discover.

American men? The pretty, unmarried singer said she heard they were very nice and attentive to women.

As to herself, she said she would have preferred to be blue-eyed and blonde like her father, and to be tall.

A blonde, blue-eyed Violetta? Brunette and glamorous, Miss Pilou seems to be ideal for the heroine of "La Traviata," which she calls "my dream part."

It will be her first role at the Metropolitan in November. The other will be Micaela in "Carmen" which is to come out in a new production at the Met. Miss Pilou will return to Vienna for performances at the State Opera in January, after a recital in Philadelphia.

While "La Traviata" was Miss Pilou's dream part, it was Mimi in "Boheme" which was the turning point in her career.

JEANETTE PILOU

She was on vacation in Vienna in September 1965 when she was invited to give a guest performance in "Boheme" at the State Opera.

"The next day, my life changed," she recalled. "I think I did not sing any better than two years before that, but there were important people in the audience and they heard me."

From then on, she had the pick of parts. "I am very careful about the parts I accept," she said, "I don't want to tire and I don't want any parts which may be dangerous to my voice."

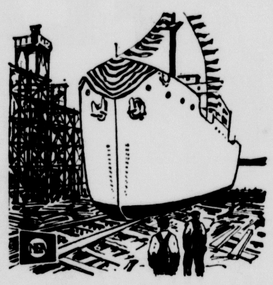
Miss Pilou, who refers to herself as "the other Greek singer" — the "one Greek singer" being Maria Callas — said "I don't suffer from excess of ambition. I want to sing the parts I like and to live well."

She added wistfully that sometimes a career and living well exclude each other.

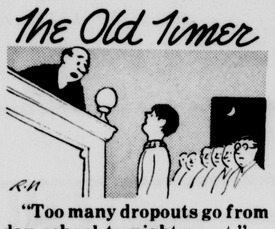
Miss Pilou was born of Greek parents in Alexandria, Egypt. Ten years ago, she went to Milan and began studying singing. She had her debut in a small Milan theater in "La Traviata" in 1959.

"I did not like myself then," she said, "I did not fulfill the role of Violetta. Now I think I am Violetta."

After touring the Italian provinces and appearing in theaters in Portugal, Switzerland and Belgium, the guest appearance at the Vienna State Opera started her on an international career.



The first concrete ship to cross the Atlantic was the Faith. Six weeks after the first concrete was poured, the ship was launched on March 14, 1918, says The World Almanac. The Faith was built at San Francisco and cost $750,000.



"Too many dropouts go from day school to night court."

RECORDS
'$10,000 Week' after One Record

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CAN a new group become "big" on one little 45 r.p.m. record which didn't quite make it to No. 1 on the popularity charts?

Logically, you wouldn't think so. But the answer is yes. Right now it's being done by Spanky and Our Gang.

Spanky and Our Gang is a new group, first seen performing in New York in March, first heard (and only) on the Mercury single, "Summer Will Never Be the Same."

From that beginning came word-of-mouth in the pop music business that Spanky looks like a "comer," TV guest shots, $3,000-a-night bookings at teen dances, a tour of county and state fairs lined up for this summer, a tour of colleges lined up for fall and "our first $10,000 week, at the Hilton Hotel in Miami Beach."

Spanky is the only girl in the quintet. Her name is Elaine McFarlane and her nickname has been Spanky since she was a child — after Spanky in the Our Gang comedies. Hence also, the Spanky and Our Gang title for the singing group. But the other members haven't taken "Our Gang" kids' names. Most of their fans are too young to remember the Our Gang comedies anyway.

Besides "instant stardom" Spanky and Our Gang personifies another state of pop music today, the acceptance of incongruity. From pretty boy singers, saying they were single and young, we went to what the Righteous Brothers called "getting together the ugliest guys in the world and forming a group." Now, however, groups thrive on no uniformity.

At an interview with Spanky and Our Gang, Oz Bach brings his wife and solemn, beautiful baby daughter and Nigel Pickering talks about having a son who is 20 years old. Spanky is 25.

All dress differently; some zany, some not. Drummer John Seiter, 23, has Indian beads on hat and shirt. Oz is the only one who talks in "put on" jargon. And names are offered which a few years ago would have driven their owners to stage names. Not only does Our Gang include a Nigel, but the member who does the vocal arranging is Malcolm Hale.

Even songs in the act are of all types. "Summer Will Never Be the Same" is rock. Some are jug band-style, with Spanky playing electric jug and Oz playing electric banana (a kazoo, electrified, inside a plastic banana). On "Coney Island Washboard" she plays washboard.

They also sing "Trouble" from "The Music Man," country-western, folk, and only one protest, against the Ku Klux Klan.

The variety stems partially from varied backgrounds. Spanky and Malcolm once sang in the New Wine Singers, a folk group, now disbanded. Oz performed rock 'n' roll. Nigel has been a Milwaukee disc jockey who booked and toured with Grand Ole Opry acts in Wisconsin.

Group history is short. Spanky, Oz and Nigel worked as a trio first, in Chicago. Malcolm made it four-part harmony. He joined after returning from a State Department-sponsored folk singing tour in Vietnam last fall.

This is the stage at which they "worked up an act" and signed a Mercury contract. First record out, "Sunday Will Never Be the Same," climbed to No. 9 on Cashbox Magazine's best-selling chart on June 17, stayed there June 24, started down July 1 when it slid to 11.

John joined as drummer two months ago; he doesn't sing as yet. The group is cutting an album for which they have designed a fold-out album cover and chosen old-time pictures. You'll know it when you see it. It'll be called "Spanky and Our Gang."

Barnes Leave to Make Home in Honolulu

50 years ago
Sept. 20, 1917

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnes departed Monday afternoon for Chicago, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. They will sail from the last named city on October 17 for Honolulu, where they expect to locate. They leave Sikeston with the very best of good wishes from a host of friends.

Vance Montgomery has accepted a position with the Farmers Supply Co., in this city. His family will join him as soon as he can find a suitable location.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Harris were called to St. Louis last Saturday by the death of the former's sister, Miss Betty Harris.

Marshall Myers went to Jackson Tuesday where he will be connected with the Ford garage, having been transferred there from the Scott Madrid Motor Co., in this city. Mrs. Myers and little daughter will join him later.

Sikeston High school news. "The Imaginary Invalid," by Morehere, is the name of the three act comedy to be presented in November by Miss Frances Burch, English instructor. The complete list of characters has not as yet been decided upon.

Morehouse -- Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Herrin are the proud parents of a baby born to them last Friday.

The Rev. Thos. B. Mather, former pastor of the Methodist Church in Sikeston, has been assigned to Jefferson City.

Harry Blanton left Thursday for Columbia to attend the State Bar Association.

Ann Landers

Teen Age Boy Ties Up Bathroom with Brushing

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 15-year-old son who is driving us crazy. It is his teeth and his hair. He ties up the family bathroom for one hour every morning while he brushes his teeth. But he flatly refuses to put a comb through his hair.

Here is his routine. He gets up, brushes his teeth for 20 minutes, eats breakfast, goes back to the bathroom and brushes his teeth again. Then he gets dressed. Befor he leaves the house he returns to the bathroom a third time and brushes his teeth once more.

All the while his hair is matted and straggly and he says it doesn't bother him because "nobody brushes their hair anymore."

What is wrong with this boy? Do you think he will ever grow up and act like a civilized human?---WE'D LIKE THE BATHROOM

Dear W.L.T.B.: Yes. He'll probably meet a girl one of these days and then he'll tie up the bathroom for two hours.

In the meantime, for those second and third brushings, provide him with a jug of water and a basin and free up the bathroom for other members of the family.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an unwed mother who wrote to you two weeks ago and asked what I could do to get support money for my child. I am only 16 and I can't get a job.

Well, the situation has changed since I wrote. The father got married three days ago, but not to me. I went to the welfare agency as you suggested and they told me I could not get any support money out of Barney unless I can prove he is the father. If I say he is the father and he says he isn't the father, whose word are they going to take?

By the way, Barney just got out of the service and he doesn't have a job. The baby will be a year old next week and Barney hasn't given me one dime. What do I do now?---CONFUSED

Dear Confused: Since you are in touch with the welfare people, I suggest that you do as they tell you.

I wish I could be more optimistic about your chances but you've got a tough battle on your hands if Barney is denying paternity. It may be that the best you can get, if you win, is to put him in jail. And what good would that do you?

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is to say "Amen" to the appeal made by "Voice of America" to the country's dress designers. May I add a word?

I understand that half the adult population of the United States is over 26 years of age. (This is the half, incidentaly, that pays most of the bills.)

I can tell you from experience that it is darned near impossible for a 40-year-old woman who is 5 feet 7 inches tall to find anything decent to wear, at any price. If her bust is larger than 32 she can forget it. I haven't bought a new outfit in two years and I feel positively seedy, but I refuse to wear a dress that fits like sausage casing, or, heaven forbid, the tent-style monstrosities which make every woman look pregnant.

Please tell me how the manufacturers can afford to ignore a large segment of their best customers. - - - PROSPECTIVE NUDIST

Dear Pro: The manufacturers say business is good. So someone is buying the nutty styles, even though you aren't. And, P. S., Sister---neither am I.

Want to say "no" to drinking without your buddies putting you down? Get cued in. Write for "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

An overdose of medicinal pills taken by two year old Frieda Lucille Vaughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spence Vaughn, who lived four miles south of Sikeston, proved fatal Monday.

Emil Steck of Fornfelt was named treasurer of Scott County Tuesday afternoon by Gov. Lloyd C. Stark.

The Baptist Church issued a call to the Rev. E. W. Millner, state missionary of Little Rock, Ark., to become pastor of the Sikeston church.

Fifteen students in the high school were voted into the Red Peppers, cheer organization for sports events. New members are: Senior, Johnnie L. Hutchinson; junior, Geneva Probst, sophomores, Mary H. Waggener, Eleanor Right, Betty Lou Barger, Mary Lou Schroff and Esther Shuppert; and freshmen, Rosemary Putnam, Betty Jane Taylor, Mary Emma Donnell, Vonda Lee Lufcy, Josephine Shuppert, Margaret Anthony, Anna Louise Sitzes, and Colleen Rayburn.

Mrs. John J. Reiss, aged 63 years, died at her home, 721 Sikes avenue, early Saturday morning after a prolonged illness of carcinoma.

Hospital notes. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Gooch of Sikeston are parents of a boy born September 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kelly of Canalou are parents of a boy born today.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Spears of Sikeston are parents of a baby girl born September 21.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Highway Patrol has been selected as a member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's new national crime information center.

Data on stolen automobiles, wanted persons and other police information will be fed into computers at Washington and a response will be available in about 30 seconds.

Col. E. L. (Mike) Hockaday, patrol superintendent, said "we are looking for young men with technical or operational experience in communications to work in this new activity."

NEW DELHI (AP) The government reports that the number of foreign missionaries in India has increased by more than 100 in the past year up from 4,111 to 4,214.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

"This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you." (John 15: 12, RSV)

PRAYER: Eternal God, we dedicate our hands and our feet, our knowledge and our skills, our hearts and our minds to serve Thee faithfully. Accept us for service. For the Master's sake. Amen.

Farm Chemical Stolen At Essex Recovered

CARUTHERSVILLE - The sheriff's department recovered 68 gallons of Trefian, used in farm defoliation, Saturday before the Stoddard county firm found it was missing.

Deputy Sheriffs Tommy German and Wesley Mayo were called to Steele early Saturday after Steele police observed a heavily loaded car and gave chase. Two men left the car and escaped through a soybean field.

The deputies confiscated the car which contained 35 gallons of the farm chemical. Later in the day a tip led the officers to another 33 gallons of the chemical in a soybean field near Steele. All had been taken from Monsanto Chemical Company in Essex, Mo.

Arrested that afternoon Walter Nichols of Steele. Nichols, who was recently released form the Dunklin County jail, was turned over to Stoddard county authorities.

Deputy German reported that he also recovered five cases of Tinneron, another farm chemical, which had been taken from an Armorell, Ark., warehouse. This was found in an empty farmhouse after German was given another tip.

Officials of Henry Meldrum Post No. 114, The American Legion, are opening the campaign to build up for the 21st annual Cotton Carnival, scheduled to be held Sept. 25-30, and first on the list of the important events will be the "Cotton Top King and Queen" contest, which will be held, Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Any youngster, boy or girl, in the area, between the ages of three and six is eligible except he, or she, must have blond hair.

Parents interested in entering their youngsters in this contest are requested to fill out the following blank and mail it to W. B. Pinnell Box 129, Sikeston, Mo.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 20, the 263rd day of 1967. There are 102 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, President Harry Truman asked Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace for his resignation following a speech Wallace made criticizing U.S. policy toward Russia.

On this date:

In 1797, the American Frigate Old Ironsides was launched at the Boston Navy Yard.

In 1850, Congress voted to ban the slave trade in the District of Columbia.

In 1873, the panic of 1873 reached a climax when the New York Stock Exchange closed its doors.

In 1881, Vice President Chester A. Arthur took the oath of office as 21st President following the death of President James Garfield.

In 1938, a hurricane swept over Long Island, New Jersey and New England, taking an estimated 682 lives.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy addressed the U.N. General Assembly and proposed a joint American-Russian expedition to the moon.

Ten years ago — Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas obeyed a federal court order and withdrew National Guard troops who had been barring Negro students from entering Central High School in Little Rock.

Five years ago— James Meredith was kept from enrolling at the University of Mississippi by Gov. Ross Barnett.

One year ago — The U.N. General Assembly opened its 21st session with a call for constructive negotiations which would lead to an honorable peace in Vietnam.

Neighborhood Service Centers May Be Closed in Area

PORTAGEVILLE-- The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation which met here Monday night was informed by Wayne Thomas, regional director of Community Action Programs for the Office of Economic Opportunity, that its program funds had been cut from $2 1/2 million to $600,000 for the coming year.

Thomas, who presented recommendations resulting from an evaluation made in July of the DAEOC program under the direction of the OEO office, told the representatives of the six-county area which makes up the corporation, that the remainder of the $2 1/2 million might be later if DAEOC shapes up to qualifications demanded by OEO.

The $600,000 will be granted, Thomas said, for administration if DAEOC and for two current programs-home aids in Stoddard county and after school tutoring centers at Kennett.

This will mean, he pointed out, that Neighborhood Service Centers will be closed down, unless -as the OEO office has specified-DAEOC meets requirements necessary to continue.

Rather than dividing into separate organizations, the evaluation team recommended that the six counties stay together, rebuild their organization and staff, employ a management consultant to rebuild the staff (and recruit top personnel nation-wide if necessary to find qualified persons to administer the $2 1/2 million program) and initiate an intensive communication program both for the general public and for personnel employed in the 24 community action agencies.

Thomas was of the opinion, when questioned, that it would take six months or more before these recommendations could possibly be fulfilled and DAEOC would be in shape to qualify for funding of the several programs that will have to be dropped for the present.

He announced that if DAEOC gets busy and is in shape, the Head Start program - now being carried by the University of Missouri - night be given back to this agency in the fall of 1968.

During the meeting Southeast Missouri Development Corp. turned the Neighborhood Youths Corps back over to DAEOC and presented a check to cover expenses of this program which is financed by the U.S. department of labor.

Another major recommendation from the team was that a personnel officer be among the new staff members and that a merit system be installed, from the administrative office down through the 24 community agencies, and that a complete file be kept in the Portageville office.

Another observaion reported was that the administrative staff in the past did not wield the authority needed to keep the six-county program unified and, at times, there seemed to be 24 separate programs in operation. The team said DAEOC had a good system on paper but no one seemed to pay much attention to "orders from headquarters."

The team also suggested that an adequate training program be set up since many persons observed or questioned by the group last July lacked knowledge about how to carry out their responsibilities.

The only official action taken by the board of directors last night was to vote to dontact three consultant firms in view of hiring a management consultant at the earliest possible date.

Among outsiders present for the board meeting were Dean Lupkey of Kansas City, assistant to Don Thomason at the regional OEO office, and John Wandeless, a field representative from the Kansas City office.

Dale Beaird

Beaird Chairman Of Scout Night

Dale Beaird has been appointed Okeechobee district school night for Boy Scouting chairman by Dr. Bill Dillon, who is district organization and extension chairman.

The night will be observed Oct. 2 throughout the three-county district of Scott, New Madrid and Mississippi.

Any boy wanting to join the Scouts may report to his school with his parents. Scout leaders will explain the organization and how to join.

Picture Reversed

The Sikeston Shrine mounted horse patrol picture was reversed in some copies of Tuesday's Daily Standard. In the reversed picture, identification of the persons should have been from right to left. Jeannette Alcorn should have read Juanita Alcorn and Frank and Henrietta Farrell should have been Frank and Henrietta Ferrell. The bus driver was not identified. He is Bud Hanna.

Wallace Pallbearers

Pallbearers for Wallace Francis, 72, who died Monday night, will be, Elmo Meeks, Virgil Ramsey, Jay Hinton, Roger Francis, John Garrett and Ken Cauthorn.

Queen Christens New Ocean Liner

CLYDEBANK, Scotland (AP) Queen Elizabeth II cracked a magnum of champagne on the graceful bows of Britain's great new ocean liner today and launched it into the River Clyde with the name millions were waiting to her— her own, Queen Elizabeth II.

An emotional roar erupted from 30,000 throats as the Cunarder glided down the shipway and set up a huge wave across the river.

"May God bless her and all who sail in her," said the queen.

The name of the ship had been kept secret until now. She had been known only as Q4.

Mako Shark styling seen in

Sophisticated 1968 Corvette Coupe

Dramatically new and different is the 1968 Corvette. The revolutionary coupe roof design includes removable panels and rear window for sophisticated open-air driving. The Mako Shark-bred Corvette boasts of longer and lower aerodynamic lines that are enhanced by a graceful sloping hood and retractable headlamps. Grille, rear deck and recessed taillights are all new. Both coupe and convertible have a new ventilation system with full door glass styling. Concealed windshield wipers and light monitoring system are standard 1968 Corvette features.

DETROIT -- A new peak in individuality among Chevrolet's six car lines is reached for 1968, E. M. Estes, general manager, said today.

"Each member of our automotive 'family' has a distinct pace setting personality with features that fully span its market," Estes said. "This matches the growing customer desire for one-of-a-kind cars built in mass production."

A total of 41 new Chevrolet, Chevelle, Camaro, Chevy II, Corvair and Corvette models go on sale on Thursday, September 21. Highlights include:

-- All new advance design bodies for Chevelle, Chevy II and Corvette, with introduction of two wheelbases within the Chevelle line.

-- A longer, more luxurious regular Chevrolet, new sportiness for Camaro and continued stress on the special features offered only by Corvair.

Important safety improvements, exhaust emission controls, and anti-theft provisions are standard equipment on all models.

-- Improvements in ride, handling and performance including a larger base V-8 engine for the regular Chevrolet, Chevelle and Chevy II.

Introduction on several lines of full door windows without ventipanes, hidden windshield wipers and dual level "Astro" ventilation.

Heading a list of more than 400 options and accessories is a power vacuum door lock system, a lamp monitoring system to tell the driver if his front and rear lights are working, front disc brakes and added availability of stereo tape players.

Safety improvements range from energy-absorbing front seat backs and safety armrests positioned to shield door handles to seat belts for all passenger positions and exterior side marker lights. (See detailed separate list.)

Here are principal features of each Chevrolet line:

REGULAR CHEVROLET -- Increased length and new front, side and rear styling reinforce the "big car" image of the industry's top selling car, offered in 18 models in four series on a 119-inch wheelbase.

A new front bumper has a central bar that splits the grille horizontally. Concealed headlamps are introduced as an option for Caprice models. Windshield wipers hidden beneath the cowl when not in use are standard on all models. Left hand blades are articulated for increased wiping area on the driver's side.

The rear deck extends fully down to the flush-mounted bumper giving easy access to the trunk. Traditional Chevrolet taillight clusters are mounted for the first time in the new rear bumper.

Added prestige is styled into the exclusive square roofline of the Caprice Coupe. A new model-Impala Custom Coupe-offers this roofline to Impala hardtop buyers in addition to the "fastback" Impala Sport Coupe.

Door vent windows are eliminated on the Caprice Coupe. New dual level "Astro" ventilation providing continuous flow of outside air through the upper levels of the passenger compartment is standard on the Caprice Coupe, optional on other Caprice and Impala models. There is a different wood-like trim on Caprice Estate Wagons.

A full length body side molding on all Impala models features a black vinyl insert which in addition to adding distinctiveness also gives side body protection.

New luxury interiors offer both pattern cloth with vinyl and all-vinyl.

Refined body mounting and other chassis improvements gives a smoother, quieter ride. The base V-8 engine is increased to 307 cubic inches, developing 200 horsepower. A 327 cubic-inch V-8 which also uses regular gasoline is introduced.

A 250 cubic-inch base six and three other V-8's up to 427 cubic inches give a horsepower range from 155 to 385. Five transmissions include Turbo Hydra-Matic which is offered in 1968 with all V-8's on top of-the-line models.

CORVETTE -- An all new aerodynamic body incorporating the design of the experimental Mako Shark II is offered by America's only mass produced sports car in its 16th year on the market.

More than 7 inches longer and two inches lower while retaining the 98-inch wheelbase, Corvette comes in both a convertible and unique "semi-convertible" sport coupe which has removable roof panel sections and rear windows.

High-rise front fenders with functional louvers frame the long sloping hood. The grille, including front parking lights, is beneath the flush-mounted bumper. Vacuum operated retractable headlamps are concealed in the upper body surface.

New concealed windshield wipers are hidden beneath the power-operated cowl panel. Full door glass styling eliminates ventipanes and "Astro" ventilation is standard. So is Chevrolet's lamp monitoring system.

The slim-waisted fiberglass body sweeps back to a short deck with a flared rear spoiler. Large circular tail lamps retain Corvette's identity.

The all-new interior has aircraft-type instrumentation. Circular housings for speedometer and tachometer are recessed into the instrument panel. Improved, contour bucket seats have higher backrests for increased comfort.

A higher capacity electrical system, wider tread and wider wheels and tires are among engineering improvements. Four-wheel disc brakes again are standard.

Five V-8 engines offer a horsepower range from 300 to 435. Turbo Hydra-Matic is the automatic transmission option on 1968 Corvettes. Three-and four-speed fully synchronized transmissions are offered.

CHEVELLE -- The industry's intermediate leader gets its first all-new body since introduction in 1964, plus two distinct package sizes.

Sedans and station wagons are longer with wheelbases increased one inch to 116 inches. Coupe and convertible models are slightly shorter and have a 112-inch wheelbase that gives additional emphasis to Chevelle's new long hood, short deck design.

Fourteen models in four series include two new value leaders-a 300-Deluxe two-door hardtop and a two-seat station wagon named "Nomad" which replaces the Chevy II station wagon.

A luxury Concours option is offered for the Malibu sport sedan. The Concours station wagon has wood-grain trim. Popular SS 396 models again have a distinctive hood and other ornamentation.

The redesigned front end has a lower, fine grid grille with bold horizontal bars. The long hood flares over concealed windshield wipers, standard on Concours, SS 396, and Malibu models.

Back window, curved side glass and greater slope windshield have increased total area. The roofline flows into new rear quarters and rear deck. There are wraparound tail lamps and a wider, deep section bumper.

Chevelles have all new interiors. Instruments are in recessed square panels on either side of the steering column and are mounted at an angle toward the driver for improved visibility.

The perimeter frame and front and rear suspension are redesigned for an improved ride. On a number of models, brakes are improved through adoption of fined drums.

Chevrolet's new 307 cubic-inch engine is the base V-8 for all but SS models. Two sizes and six V-8's give horsepower from 140 to 350. Five transmissions are offered.

CAMARO -- After scoring a strong success in its first year on the market and climbing to second place in sales among all domestic small cars, Camaro has added appeal in 1968.

Again offered in a sport coupe and convertible on 108-inch wheelbase, Camaro has full door glass styling without vent windows and Chevrolet's new dual level "Astro" ventilation.

A new V-shape grille with strong horizontal lines adds depth to the front view. Special moldings accent the venturi-shape of the sides. Wheel trim covers and tail lamps are restyled. Camaro continues its exclusive feature in its class-concealed headlights available as part of the Rally Sport option.

More luxury has been added to all interiors. Expanded vinyl-softer and richer feeling-is used on all seat trim. The instrument panel has new dial faces, chrome accents and larger padding.

Relocation of shock absorbers and provision for greater ride travel are among chassis improvements. Two sixes and four V-8 engines with horsepower from 140 to 325 are available, plus four transmissions.

Camaro again offers a wide variety of options, accessories and "packages" including Super Sport options with 350 and 396 cubic-inch engines to allow the buyer to custom build his car.

CHEVY II -- Chevrolet's popular small family car gets its first all-new body since introduction in 1962. It is longer, wider, and lower and comes in two-and four-door Nova models. Wheelbase is one-inch longer at 111 inches.

Curved side glass and rounded contours give all-new look. Front fenders project slightly forward and the grille ends extend outside the single unit headlamps.

Softer, more flowing body lines are particularly evident from the rear. The deck lid extends up to the base of the back window. Tail lamps include integral back-up lamps.

The instrument panel is extensively redesigned. Gauges and controls are grouped in a compact recessed area immediately forward of the driver. There is more interior room.

Like Camaro, Chevy II offers a wide range of exterior and interior options so the customer can tailor his car to the desired degree of utility or luxury.

Chassis improvements such as new independent coil front suspension and rear shock absorbers plus a new unitized body give a smoother ride.

A four-cylinder, two sixes and three V-8 engines give horsepower from 90 to 295. There are three transmissions.

CORVAIR -- In its ninth year on the market, Corvair is again geared to the buyer who values its air-cooled engine and rear-engine traction and other special features.

Two sport coupes and a convertible on 108-inch wheelbase continue the distinctive styling which has shaped Corvair's personality. A new finer grain vinyl is used on Corvair interiors together with other refinements. An optional window defroster is introduced.

A new vapor return line for improved hot start and idle is added. Three six-cylinder engines from 95 to 140 horsepower are available, plus three transmissions.

Chevrolet offers 15 exterior colors -- 12 of them new -- for 1968. There are up to six two-tone combinations, black or white vinyl roof options and three convertible top colors.

Whitton Cited For Highway Contributions

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)— Burleigh Arnold of Jefferson City was elected president of the Missouri Good Roads and Streets Association at its annual meeting Monday. He succeeds Henry Danuser of Fulton.

A highlight of the annual banquet was the naming of Rex M. Whitton as recipient of the association scroll of honor for outstanding contributions to the highway program.

Whitton, of Independence, is former federal highway administrator as well as former chief engineer of the Missouri Highway Department.

Other officers elected include vice presidents Lowell McCuskey of Linn, Dwight Wheelan of Montgomery City, and Carl Penzel of Jackson; treasurer Theodore Schmidt of Jefferson City and secretary J. Ed Travis Jr. of St. Charles.

Arnold, an attorney, is vice president and trust officer of Central Missouri Trust Co. in Jefferson City.

Library Summer Jobs Open to Young Interns

JEFFERSON CITY -- Ten college sophomores and juniors or young teachers will have the opportunity to learn about the library profession first hand, and also to work at an interesting job next summer. The Missouri State Library, collaborating with the Missouri Library Association, is continuing the library internship program. The purpose of the program is to give qualified young people an introduction to the profession of librarianship through the experience of working in public library.

During the summer of 1967 internships were awarded to Dorothy Edna Balkenhol of Jefferson City and Toni Lou Mooney of Cape Girardeau, who were employed by the Daniel Boone Regional Library, Columbia; Virginia Leigh Coleman and Mary Alison Lichius of Jefferson City who were employed by the Thomas Jefferson library system in Jefferson City; Myra K. Harms, Overland Park, Kas., at Mid-Continent Public Library Service, Independence; Marilyn Mildred Hudson, Granby, at Barry-Lawrence Regional Library, Monett; Carol Ann Phillips of Chillicothe at the Livingston County Library, Chillicothe; Gayle Elaine Robinett of Pleasant Hill at the Trails Regional Library, Warrensburg; Carol Sue Schulze of Hannibal at the University City public library; and Katherine Jane Schnell and Gwendolyn Schwartze of St. Louis, at the St. Louis public library.

A library internship is a summer position in a public library in Missouri, awarded on a competitive basis to a college sophomore or junior or to a young teacher who is interested in becoming a librarian.

To be eligible for one of the ten internships, college sophomores or juniors must have done acceptable scholastic work, be in good health, and have desirable personal qualifications. Young teachers under 35 years of age who are seriously interested in becoming public librarians may try the profession out during the summer vacation.

The position will be awarded on the basis of formal application, references and an interview.

The period of the internship will be three months on a full-time basis. Each position will carry a salary of approximately $225 to $275 per month, depending on local conditions.

Under the plan, interns may be placed on duty in libraries which have an administrative librarian who is a professional. Applications from participating libraries and prospective internees will be reviewed by the Missouri Library Association, and selections will be made on the basis of opportunities afforded for worthwhile experience under able supervision. Prospective internees should apply by February 15, 1968. Forms and additional information may be obtained by request from the Missouri State Library.

A PIOUS and venerable wise man, having lived a long and useful life, died and went to his reward. Years later, his most trusted follower departed this life and, upon arriving on the other side, went searching for his old teacher. To his delight, he found him sitting on a large cloud with a beautiful blonde on his lap. "How marvelous!" he exclaimed. "I am delighted to see that you have been given your just reward."

"Reward, my foot!" growled the old man. "I'm her punishment."

'68s Top Secrets are here

1968 Chevrolets

The 1968 Chevrolets are the very essence of modern design. Every line, every curve is in close harmony. It's a smooth, uncluttered look with roof lines compatible with body lines, grilles and bumpers that blend gracefully into long, rounded fenders. Clean, flowing, beautiful in their simplicity, these '68 Chevrolets are rich and advanced in styling beyond any you've ever seen.

A MORE SILENT RIDE

And for 1968, we've gone to every length to give you more peace and quiet inside. The most sophisticated computers have been used to strategically place body mounts and successfully isolate noise and vibration. Shock absorbers have been improved. The wheel stance on many models is wider for greater smoothness. Exhaust systems have been redesigned to make them whisper-quiet. Even the clocks tick more softly. A sound car is a silent car. The '68 Chevrolets are the most silent, highest quality cars we've ever built.

BETTER PERFORMANCE

There are new engines, a bigger standard Six and V8. There's a new 250-hp V8 you can order that runs on regular fuel. Many new engine components increase dependability and keep your new Chevrolet running stronger. There's a new rear axle ratio you can add for greater economy. On most engines equipped with automatic transmissions, there's a special heater for the carburetor which gives you more efficient performance in cold weather. And with every engine, you get the new GM exhaust emission control.

UNIQUE ASTRO VENTILATION

There's a whole new idea in ventilation, called Astro Ventilation, for Camaro, Corvette and the elegant Caprice Coupe. It's also available on many other models. By opening two new vent-ports on the instrument panel, you bring in outside air that can be directed where you want it. This way, you can leave your windows rolled up and add still more to your peace and quiet.

PROVED SAFETY FEATURES

You get the proved GM-developed energy absorbing steering column, folding front seat back latches, dual master cylinder brake system with warning light, plus many more new features. Among them: energy absorbing front seat backs, and safety armrests that shield the door handles.

MUCH MORE THAT'S NEW

There are new roof lines, some formal and graceful, others sporty and quick. There are new instrument panels, richly designed and all controls within easy reach. There are new interiors, new vinyls, new fabrics, new colors. There are models with Hide-A-Way windshield wipers and headlights that disappear behind grilles. There are new side marker lamps, new recessed taillights. There's even a new ignition alarm buzzer that reminds you not to walk away and leave your keys in the car.

These are the newest, the most different, the most dramatically changed Chevrolets ever. And they're at your Chevrolet dealer's now. You'll thoroughly enjoy slipping behind the wheel, experiencing the smooth new handling and library-quiet ride and, more than anything, seeing and feeling the even greater quality built into every new Chevrolet for 1968.

Be smart! Be sure! Buy now at your Chevrolet dealer's.

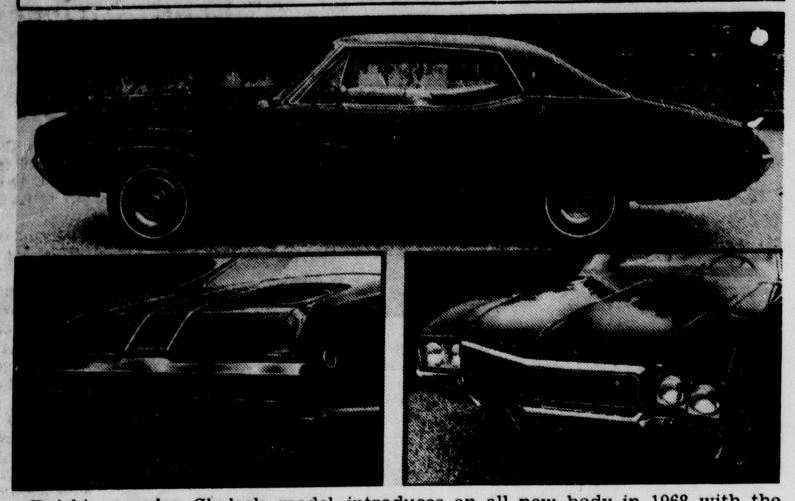
Buick Skylark Features All-New Body



Buick's popular Skylark model introduces an all new body in 1968 with the emphasis on a shortened rear deck and a longer hood. A sculptured body sweepline predominates the side view. The new grille is reminiscent of the Riviera and the new taillamps are designed into the large rear bumper. In the Skylark Custom model, such as the four door hardtop shown here, a 230 horsepower V-8 engine is standard equipment.

FLINT, MICH. -- Buick Motor Division introduced its 1968 cars with a completely new body for all intermediate size models, plus a wide array of new safety and styling features throughout the entire line.

The new styling for the Special Deluxe, Skylark and GS models features the contoured sweepline down the side, introduced on the upper series last year, longer hoods and shorter decks and a shorter wheelbase for two-door models.

Riviera have been given a new look -- front and rear -- and the regular size cars in the line, Electra, Wildcat and LeSabre also have a new '68 appearance with new grilles, hoods, taillights, bumpers, instrument panels and interiors.

All 35 models in the line have new side marker lamps that operate with headlights. Windshield wipers are concealed within a space provided by the curved edge of the hood.

STYLING HIGHLIGHTS

Styling highlights for 1968 include these features:

ELECTRA 225: Most apparent change in front is the twin air intake grille, new hood top molding, which along with recessed windshield wipers accentuates the length of the hood. Taillamps are recessed in a new rear bumper to provide a smart looking change, and also giving more impact protection.

WILDCAT: This performance-minded series features new grilles, hoods, bumpers, and rear treatment. Width has been accentuated with the horizontal grille and wider headlamp housings.

LESABRE: The new front end treatment -- two separate horizontal grilles with the hood extension as the divider -- is unique to this series. Taillamps are extended and wrapped around the edge of the rear fenders to provide more dramatic day or night identification.

RIVIERA: The classic lines of the roof and profile are retained, but hoods, fenders, grille, and bumpers are new. The rear has been redesigned with new bumpers and recessed taillights. The front has fresh eye appeal with a new plastic front grille, set deeply within the steel frame. On the Riviera, the lower portion of the body is covered with optional stainless steel moldings. Headlamps are concealed in the outboard edges of the front grille.

SKYLARK: An all new body with the emphasis on a shortened rear deck and a longer hood. A sculptured body sweepline predominates the side view. Grille is a continuous loop design with headlamps located on both sides. A new rear bumper, offering impact protection and smarter styling, encloses the taillights. Skylark Custom models have rear wheels enclosed in fender skirts, plus distinguishing ornamentation.

SPECIAL DELUXE: All new body with new front, rear and side treatment to distinguish this series from others in the line. Side markers, ports and identification script complete the design that is predominately the Buick sweepline. This is the longest set of hood and front fenders ever used on this series.

SPORT WAGON: The popular wood grain side treatment continues as an option. The grille is new. A sleek new roof line with added glass area makes the new wagon look even lower. A new combination roof rack and back window air deflector is offered as a dealer installed option. Distinctive taillamp and rear bumper treatment provides a fresh new appearance.

GS 400: The shorter wheelbase on the coupe styles gives a more compact look to the body area and a longer hood appearance. Open wheel cuts, bordered by chrome molding, are featured. GS 400 styling's identification is immediate through ornamentation.

REDESIGNED INSTRUMENT PANEL

Instrument panels are distinctive in the Specials and Skylarks with knobs safety oriented and identified. Padded area has been increased with instrument cluster area and air conditioning outlets of crushable plastic.

In the regular size cars the entire impact surface of the instrument panel cluster area is shrouded with vinyl covered energy absorbing material. A break-away ignition key provides additional safety.

Safety features introduced last year, including the energy absorbing steering column and safety steering wheel, are continued.

In the interest of further passenger protection, Buick has added the following items: Improved door latch retention; larger outside rear view mirror; side marker lamps on front fenders and rear quarters; padded windshield corner posts; safety arm rests; and a buzzer that reminds driver to remove ignition key when the left front door is opened.

ALL NEW ENGINE

This year's line introduces an all-new 350 cubic inch V-8 engine, in two and four barrel carburetor versions. The two barrel carburetor is standard on all 350 cubic inch engine applications except the GS 350 which is equipped with a four barrel carburetor. Where the two barrel is standard, a four barrel is available as an option.

Along with increased displacement, the new 350 cubic inch engine offers new intake manifolds, cylinder heads and exhaust manifolds. The cylinder block, head gaskets, rocker arm cover and certain other components have been modified to accommodate these new parts.

A 250 cubic inch in-line six cylinder engine with single barrel carburetor will be introduced in the Special Deluxe and Skylark line. This rugged engine has an output of 155 horsepower with an 8.5 to 1 compression ratio.

The 400 cubic inch engine remains the exclusive standard power plant for GS 400 models, and is optional on the Sport Wagon.

The 430 cubic inch -four-barrel quadrajet carburetor engine is standard on Wildcat, Electra and Riviera.

CHASSIS IMPROVEMENTS

Electra and Wildcat chassis have been completedly redesigned in rear suspension geometry, resulting in reduced road shock and improved handling stability.

Special Deluxe, Skylark and GS 400's have revisions in rear suspension geometry similar to those made on the larger cars. Although the chassis frames are entirely new, they continue the perimeter frame concept previously used.

An improved push - button cruise control called "Cruise Master," is available for all models. The driver pushes the button at the speed he wants to maintain,. and the cruise control takes over.

Fuel tank filler tubes are redesigned to withstand impact without puncturing or fracturing the joint at the tank.

Another improvement is the adoption of a new automatic transmission fluid which provides added durability, particularly for friction elements.

All manual transmissions, standard from Special Deluxe to Wildcat, have column - mounted controls, except on the GS 400, which is a floor shift for both three and four speed manuals. This feature is also offered as an option on the GS 350, with either a three or four speed manual.

BETTER RIDE AND HANDLING

Riding and handling characteristics are improved by employing stiffer front coil springs, firmer shock absorber control, extra cushion shock absorber bushings and improved body mount insulators.

Other 1968 features include: Disc brakes and radial ply tires available as an option on all models.

The windshield wipe pattern is improved to effect approximately a 20 per cent increase in wiped area. A new washer pump delivers twice the volume and arms and blades have a brushed chrome finish to eliminate glare.

Junior College Proposal Carries In Illinois

CAIRO -- Voters of five southern Illinois counties gave a junior college issue a comfortable margin of support Saturday and will go to the polls again within three months to select a board of education to operate the college.

Citizens of Alexander, Pulaski, Union, Johnson and Massac counties voted 4,237 to 1,969 in favor of establishing the Shawnee Junior college district.

Dr. George Otrich, Union County superintendent of schools, whose office conducted the election, said today that a date for the board election will be set soon. Illinois law, he said requires it to be held within 90 days after the district is established.

The board of education will be a seven-member body elected at large from the five-county district.

The location of the institution will be a mater for the board to decide-with the state junior college board's approval-but Dr. Otrich said it is almost certain that the college will not be located near any of the larger communities in the district, such as Cairo, Anna-Jonesboro or Metropolis.

All are near the edge of the district and the idea is to establish a commuter college, one no farther than 25 to 30 miles from any point in the district.

With the approval of the junior college district, the voters also authorized the levying of a maximum tax of 20 cents per $100 valuation for operation and five cents for building.

MARTHA JEAN MCCOOL, a 19-year-old Memphis blond, will reign over the 1967 Mid South Fair, Friday through Sept. 30.

Blond Memphis Girl Is First Mid-South

MEMPHIS -- A beauteous blond with dimpled cheeks, flashing eyes and easy smile is the first Miss Mid-South.

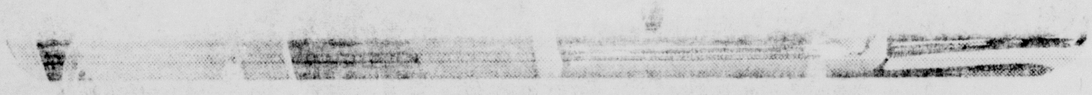
Martha Jean McCool, a 19-year-old Memphis secretary, will reign over all activities of the Mid-South Fair which will run for nine days, Friday through Sept. 30.

Miss McCool was acclaimed the winner over 34 other candidates from Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee in the first Miss Mid-South Pageant at the Youth Center on the Fairgrounds. She succeeds Miss Yvonne Lowery of Newport, Ark., who was the last Fairest of the Fair. The name of the pageant and selection date of the winner were changed to better promote the Mid-South area.

The prime prize going to the winner is an expense-paid week in the Bahamas, as well as a wardrobe, use of an automobile during her reign and a huge trophy. Holiday Inns of America will be host to the winner at the new and luxurious Holiday Inn at Freeport, Grand Bahama Island.

Trophies went to first alternate Sherry Lynn Provost of Whitehaven and second alternate Susan Riley of Bartlett. The five finalists also included Jane Harasta of Brinkley, Ark. Other entries included Ann Richardson, Falkner, Miss.; Elaine Johnson, Jackson, Tenn.; Judith Mayo, Dresden, Tenn.; Judy Holliday, Ripley, Miss.; Diane Dotson, Winona, Miss.; Sandra Land, Winona, Miss.; Sandra Timmons, Charleston, Miss.; and Christie Ann South, Wynne, Ark.

'68 Buick. Now we're talking your language.



We changed the Skylark from front to rear, we gave it a whole new look, simply because we believe you want a car like this. In other words, we're talking your language.

We thought you'd like to have a little easier time parking. So we shortened the wheelbase of the two-door Skylark down to 112 inches.

The new 230-hp., V-8 engine runs on regular gas. It's standard on all Skylark Custom models.

We also refused to limit your choices. Skylark Custom comes in four models, 15 colors and 32 trim combinations. So talk to the man who talks your language, your Buick dealer.

All Buicks have a full line of General Motors safety features as standard equipment. For example, side marker lights and energy-absorbing steering column.

Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

Pontiac . . . Styling Leader In 1968

ALL NEW FROM PONTIAC — Two of Pontiac Motor Division's newest and most distinctive 1968 models are shown above. In the foreground is the GTO convertible which features the exclusive Endura front bumper as standard equipment. The bumper is made of a special chemical compound which has an energy-absorbing quality. Also standard on GTO is a 400 cubic-inch engine and dual air scoops on the hood. Concealed headlamps and hood-mounted tachometer are among the GTO options. Also pictured is the Le Mans two-door hardtop coupe which reveals the new styling of all the 1968 Tempests. Featuring the popular long hood short deck styling, the Le Mans has a new roof line which blends into the rear section. Pontiac's overhead cam six cylinder engine is standard and there is an optional V-8, both with increased displacement and horsepower.

1968 PONTIAC LINE STORY

A new styling theme dominated by a bold front end design, engineering advancements which include another first in the industry and unexcelled safety are the characteristics of Pontiac Motor Division's 1968 models.

All Catalina, Executive, Bonneville and Grand Prix models carry a distinctive Pontiac oriented styling theme highlighted by a new wide peripheral front bumper with a strong and handsome center section.

Built-in safety features of every 1968 Pontiac include new side marker lamps, additional interior padding and crushable armrests.

"The safety, comfort and convenience of driving a new Pontiac are at their highest level," John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and Pontiac's general manager said.

The 1968 Pontiacs go on sale September 21.

MODEL LINE-UP

A total of 17 models in four series is available in 1968.

The volume-selling Catalina series offers a two-door sedan, four-door sedan, hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop, convertible, two-seat station wagon and three-seat station wagon.

Executive models include a four-door sedan, four-door hardtop, hardtop coupe, two-seat station wagon and three-seat station wagon.

Bonneville luxury is available in a hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop, convertible and three-seat station wagon.

A new hardtop coupe represents the Grand Prix series.

The popular Ventura custom trim option is offered on most Catalina models and the luxurious Brougham option is now available on Bonneville four-door hardtops, hardtop coupes and convertibles.

EXTERIOR STYLING

From every angle the 1968 Pontiacs reveal the look which has established Pontiac's styling trends as the ones to follow.

The new peripheral bumper integrates all front end components into one uncluttered design unit. Dual headlamps are placed horizontally within the bumper and appear wider apart with the new recessed horizontal ribbed design of the grille.

A familiar vertical Pontiac vee crest mounts on the bold center section of the bumper.

The Grand Prix front end features twin horizontally mounted headlamps that become visible when the lights are turned on.

All parking lamps are below the bumper and are teamed with side marker lamps in one housing to share a common lens that wraps around for side visibility. The parking lamps will be on when the headlamps are on.

Body sides emphasize the full length side peak line and are accented with an exclusive narrow molding which has a vinyl plastic insert on all models except the Grand Prix and Executive station wagon.

The vinyl molding insert guards against parking lot scratches and dents. It is offered in five different body colors to serve as a distinctive trim feature.

Rocker panel moldings enhance the side appearance of all Executive, Bonneville and Grand Prix models and they are offered with the decor option on all Catalinas.

The new look from the rear includes wide tail lamps which turn downward at the outboard ends to integrate body and bumpers on all models except the Grand Prix and station wagons. On the Grand Prix the lamps are in the rear bumper and they turn down at the inboard ends and extend outward with the bumper to provide wrap-around lighting to the sides. Station wagon lights are mounted in the rear quarter.

INTERIORS AND ACCESSORIES

All 1968 interiors are fully color-keyed to eliminate bright metal moldings and to minimize glare and annoyance.

The choice of colors for the Cordova or convertible tops have been increased to four and 13 of the 15 exterior colors are new for 1968.

Bi-level, tri-comfort air conditioning, AM-FM radio, stereo tape player and Pontiac's cruise control system are just a few in the long list of accessories and options which assure the maximum in driving pleasure.

SAFETY DEVICES

The instrument panel has additional thick foam padding that blends into the windshield pillars. This padding forms a large area of protection for front seat occupants. Full width padding has also been added to the center of the panel.

Other important standard interior safety features include a recessed ignition key and a newly designed cigarette lighter which will break away at a 90 pound load. Also standard are crushable arm rests, additional padding on the front seat backs, ar energy -- absorbing steering column and dual master cylinder brake system.

1968 FIREBIRD STORY

Pontiac Motor Division's 1968 Firebird has undergone an evolutionary styling change and latest engineering refinements provide greater customer comfort.

Front door vent windows have been eliminated and a new upper ventilation system, which provides draft-free circulation when the windows are closed, has been added.

In addition to its sports car appearance, the Firebird has improved sports-car ride and handling characteristics in 1968. New multi-leaf rear springs give the car a smoother, softer ride.

Shock absorbers are straddle mounted and the left shock is moved from the front to the rear of the axle while the right shock remains at the front of the axle. Arranged in this manner, and with the multi-leaf springs, the Firebird combines a soft ride with improved handling and stability while retaining its sports-car feel.

Both the standard overhead camshaft six-cylinder engine and the optional intermediate V-8 have displacement increases and the high performance 400 cubic-inch V-8 is also offered.

The Firebird interiors feature greater luxury and protection with the standard thinline bucket seats, a new and larger instrument panel, additional padding and refinements in appearance and lighting.

"The Firebirds, which have already established themselves in the personal sports car field, will meet with even greater acceptance in 1968," John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and Pontiac's general manager, said.

The Firebirds go on sale September 21.

LINE-UP

The Firebird is offered in a convertible and a hardtop coupe. There is a custom option available on both models which includes deluxe wheel covers, wheel opening moldings, deluxe steering wheel and instrument panel assist grip.

The Firebirds are built on a 108.1-inch wheelbase and are 188.8 inches in overall length and 72.6 inches wide. The wide track is 60 inches front and rear.

Five engines are offered for the 1968 Firebirds. The standard overhead cam six-cylinder engine has been increased from 230 cubic-inch displacement to 250 cubic-inches and it is rated at 175 horsepower with one barrel carburetion.

Optional engines include the four-barrel OHC six-cylinder Sprint with 215 horsepower. In the V-8's the former 326 cubic-inch engine has been increased to 350 cubic inches with 265 horsepower and two-barrel carburetion. There is an HO version of this engine with a rating of 320 horsepower and four barrel carburetion.

The high performance 400 cubic-inch V-8 has a four barrel carburetor and wide oval red line tires and twin air scoops on a special hood are standard with this 330 horsepower engine. There are HO and Ram Air options with this engine also.

Transmissions include a three-speed manual as standard and a four-speed manual or two-speed automatic optional on all except the 400 cubic inch models where the automatic transmission is the three speed Turbo Hydra-Matic.

MONO-JET CARBURETOR

An all new Mono-Jet (one barrel) carburetor is standard on all Firebirds with manual transmissions and is designed to significantly reduce exhaust emission without requiring air injection reaction assistance.

Also standard on all overhead cam six-cylinder and V-8 engines is a new carburetor air preheater which provides almost instant warm air to the carburetor for smoother cold start operations by elimination of all carburetor icing conditions.

EXTERIORS

The absnece of the vent window post adds to the longer, lower roof line appearance of the new Firebirds. side lighting is assured in the front with a wrap-around lens which combines side markers and parking lamp. In the rear, Pontiac vee crest markers operating on the tail lamps circuit provide additional lighting.

The 1968 Firebirds carry distinctive Pontiac identity with a wide peripheral front bumper, strong vertical center and horizontally mounted dual headlamps.

Each model has a full width rocker molding and six vertical louvers on the front of the rear quarter, rear of the door opening.

At the rear is a protective wrap-around bumper. louver style tail lamps featuring chrome edged slits which also contain back-up lamps.

A new degre of luxury and comfort is apparent with the new Firebird interiors.

The instrument panel has new lenses of a shall conical design which allows for easier reading of the new block lettering on the instruments. The panel itself has a new blue shade for color balancing of the instruments and internal surfaces of the housings.

The standard bucket seats have specific styling with cushions and backs finished with attractive dielectric embossing in geniune expanded vinyl. There is a bench seat with center folding armrest optional on selected models.

An ignition key buzzer which sounds when the driver's door is opened with the keys in the ignition and in the off position is part of the standard safety package.

SAFETY DEVICES

Foam filled, molded windshield pillar moldings, side marker lamps, and crushable arm rests are new standard equipment safety items.

A new and larger instrument panel pad, soft vinyl door knobs and flexible door handles provide added protection. Every Firebird is equipped with an energy-absorbing steering column, dual master cylinder brake system and four-way hazard warning flasher.

1968 TEMPEST LINE STORY

Pontiac Motor Division's 1968 Tempests enter the new model year with the most extensive styling changes, engineering improvements and built-in safety since this popular series was introduced seven years ago.

An exclusive energy-absorbing fromt bumper for the GTO, separate wheelbases for two-door and four-door models, increased engine displacement and a new level of interior comfort and protection head a long list of 1968 Tempest, Tempest Custom, LeMans, Safari and GTO features.

For the first time the Tempest will be built on two wheelbases. All two-door coupes and convertibles will have a 112-inch wheelbase and the four-door models and station wagons will be built on a 116-inch base. The wide track has been increased to 60 inches at both the front and rear.

The Pontiac-inspired styling places particular emphasis on the venturi shpae, accentuating the long hood, short deck profile. A blending of new roof lines into the rear adds new grace to the overall styling theme.

Thick absorbing padding across the instrument panel, windshield pillars and along the top of the front seat backs are standard on every model.

"A new sports car atmosphere surrounds our 1968 Tempests," John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and Pontiac's general manager said.

The 1968 Tempests go on sale September 21.

MODEL LINE-UP

There are 15 models in the four Tempest series.

A sports coupe and four-door sedan make up the Tempest series.

The Tempest Custom series offers a sports coupe, hardtop coupe, four-door sedan, four-door hardtop, convertible and two-seat station wagon.

LeMans models include a sports coupe, hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop and convertible.

A separate series is the four-door, two-seat Tempest Safari station wagon.

There are two GTO models, a hardtop coupe and a convertible.

In addition the Sprint option is available on all models except station wagons and the GTO.

EXTERIOR STYLING

From bumper to bumper and roof to road the 1968 Tempest styling establishes a new form of identity and big car look throughout the entire line.

A full width peripheral front bumper carries the primary front end theme. Twin horizontally placed headlamps at the extreme ends of the ribbed grille are recessed inside the bumper. A Pontiac crest at the crown of the bumpers bold center section and the famous split grille give instant Pontiac identity.

The industry's first and Pontiac exclusive energy-absorbing front bumper is standard on all GTO models. It is the same color as the exterior body paint for a completely new and different front end appearance.

In addition, its absorbing feature makes it functionally superior to any metal bumper now in use.

GTO headlamps and grille are in a horizontal arrangement and concealed headlamps are optional for this series.

All Tempests have parking lamps below the bumper teamed wide side markr lamps in one housing that share a common lens and wrap around for side viewing.

Long hoods sweep up to the windshield wiper linkage adding to an even longer looking view. Dual simulated air inlets widely spaced on the GTO hood add a sports car touch.

Tempest body sides are all new with particular emphasis on a venturi shape accentuating the long hood, short deck style. Subtle blending of the new low roof lines into the quarter and rear adds grace to the profile.

All models are tastefully accented with long low rocker moldings. Side markers contribute to additional warning.

From the rear new Tempest styling reveals deep section bumpers housing three sectional stop, tail and back-up lamps at the outer ends. The GTO has its own distinctive dual stop and tail lamps spaced horizontally for a wider look to the already wide track stance.

COLORS AND INTERIORS

Comfort, added protection and a new plateau of quality are all apparent in the Tempest interiors.

A thickly padded full width instrument panel features deeply recessed instruments and controls. Foam filled padding added to the windshield pillars continues the protection theme.

Wood grain applique on the center section of the Safari and GTO instrument panel gives a quality appearl while a dark textured painted center enhances these panels on Tempests, Tempest Customs and LeMans.

Of significant note is the addition of padding on front seat back uppers, affording extra protection to rear seat passengers.

There are new crushable type armrests and the door locking knobs are soft vinyl and color keyed to the interiors.

There are 15 exterior colors available and 13 of these are new for 1968. The number of Cordova top colors has increased to four and the top will have new trim lines. Convertible tops will offer the same four color choices.

All Tempests will have as standard the new anti-theft package which includes an ignition key buzzer which sounds when the driver's door is opened with the keys in the ignition.

Details of Ho Interview Disclosed

Editors Note: William C. Baggs, editor of the Miami News, visited North Vietnam last winter with Harry S. Ashmore, executive vice president of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions and a former prize-winning newspaper editor. In the following article, Baggs reveals for the first time details of a conversation he and Ashmore had with Ho Chi Minh, president of North Vietnam.

By WILLIAM C. BAGGS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Word came in the afternoon that Ho Chi Minh wished to see us.

His office is in the frayed elegance of the palace which once accommodated the governors when France ruled this neighborhood of Southeast Asia.

The old gentleman was certainly prompt. We were ushered into a rather small room, decorated only with a single painting—of a brownish eagle—and we had not seated ourselves when he came in, walking in a mixture of a stride and a bounce.

After a few minutes of social conversation, Ho Chi Minh asked if we could talk "among ourselves." It was this suggestion that the talks should be private which could not permit a reporting of the conversation until now. Recent disclosures of the virtal parts of the talk have removed the prohibition.

Ashmore and I emphasized to our host that we could talk, but we pointed out that anything he said in the conversation would be reported to our government. We stressed that we did not represent the United States but were pledged to report the conversation in detail to Washington. He nodded.

There was no possibility of peace talks, he said, until the bombing of North Vietnam stopped. And, tapping his fingers together, he said no new American troops should be introduced into Vietnam during any peace talks.

Well then, we asked, could talks begin if the United States stopped the bombing?

He measured the question with much care, and said: "You are a businessman and I am a businessman, and I want to see the goods before the price is established."

During this portion of the conversation, Ho spoke in English and, through an interpreter, in French and Vietnamese.

Twice more we asked if talks could really begin if the bombing were concluded. And twice Ho said that talks could begin if the bombing stopped.

The Communist leader, involved in the nationalism of his country for almost half a century, said that we and all Americans should realize that his country had been at war for 25 years, against the Japanese and the French and the Americans, and they would never surrender their independence after so long a struggle.

Moreover, he continued, coming back to the subject of peace talks, he had no conditions for such talks except an end to the bombing. The meeting could be private or public, he said, and no agenda was necessary.

Ho referred to the bombings all through the conversation. He admitted the bombings hurt North Vietnam but pointed out that the bombings did not unreasonably hamper the military ability of the country.

Dark had crawled over Hanoi when we left the palace. We had talked two hours, and the next evening Ho sent a minister to see us and make certain we had an accurate record of what he had said. The minister seemed anxious that Ho's views not be misinterpreted, in the slightest degree, in the report of the talk to our government.

Candy Striper Instruction Will Begin

An instruction class for Candy Stripers at the Missouri Delta Community hospital will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the hospital.

The organization is open to all girls who are 16 years old and meet the requirements:

Have consent of parents, furnish a reference from a doctor, teacher, minister or business person, abide by the rules of the hospital and the Candy Striper organization and furnish own uniform.

This class will be for girls who are already Candy Stripers as well as girls who wish to join. No one will be eligible to work this year if she does not attend this class.

Report From Washington

Stuart Symington

VIETNAM HEARINGS

The Senate Military Preparedness Subcommittee, of which I am a member, has now concluded for a time its hearings on the air war in North Vietnam. The testimony of the witnesses -- members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other military officials involved with the conduct of these air operations- will be made available to the public in a few weeks.

Copies of the preliminary report, released August 31, are now available, and we would be glad to send one to anyone writing my office.

There is no one who believes more in civilian control of the military than do I, and if the decision of the top civilians of this administration has been and is against attacking many military targets located in North Vietnam, that policy should of course be followed by the military.

Unfortunately, however, it is becoming increasingly apparent that many people have been led to the inaccurate belief that all members of the Chiefs of Staff and the Commander in Chief of Pacific Forces -- CINCPAC, Admiral Sharp -- have approved and do approve the many limitations placed on the attacking of military targets over North Vietnam by civilian heads.

I would earnestly hope that all Americans interested in this problem, a problem so vitally important to the future structure of the military posture essential to the security of the United States, would refrain from reaching conclusions in this matter until they have had the opportunity to read the testimony of these witnesses in these hearings.

Starting during the 10-day Congressional recess the first of September, I will be making a study tour of our military and political activities in the Far East, Southeast Asia, the Middle East and parts of Europe, returning to Washington the latter part of the month. This is my fifth trip into some of these areas in the last three years with detailed reports for the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committee.

FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION LOANS AND GRANTS

Efforts to create more job and business opportunities in rural areas can also serve to help urban areas by reducing the population pressures on the cities.

That is the purpose of a bill I co-sponsored that is designed to provide loans to farmers to help them supplement their incomes by authorizing loans to start small non-farm enterprises such as farm-located machine shops and processing plants. The bill has passed the Senate and awaits House action.

The bill increases total authorization for rural water and sewer system development grants from $50 million to $150 million. The annual limit on planning grants would be raised from $5 million to $25 million. Government loans for water and sewer projects would be made only if they were unavailable from private or cooperative sources.

In this same connection, I have written the Secretary of the Treasury telling him of the growing concern throughout Missouri that one of the most successful and popular programs to improve living conditions for rural America has been dealt a severe setback by the Treasury Department ruling cutting off Farmers Home Administration authority to make insured loans to Water and Sewer Districts.

This drastic reduction comes at a time when the program was just getting well started, and an ever-increasing number of areas in our state were applying for this type of assistance.

In view of the fact that the law passed by Congress authorizing this insured loan program is still tax-in effect and that the insured loan program does not require federal appropriations, I am urging that the ruling be withdrawn and that the insured loan program be continued.

SENATE REDUCES FOREIGN AID

After reducing overall economia and military aid to other countries from a requested $3.4 billion, the Senate approved the Foreign Assistance Act of 1967. The House also has voted a reduction in the foreign aid program, and differences between the two bills are being studied by a joint Senate-House conference committee.

The reduction in the Senate came on the recommendation of the Foreign Relations Committee, of which I am a member. Our Committee expressed a strong view that American citizens should not be called upon to accept reductions in programs which affect their daily lives, see their taxes increased and war costs spiral, while the foreign aid program escapes unaffected and undiminished.

Under an amendment which I sponsored, economic assistance would be denied to any country diverting its resources to military expenditures to such an extent that it interferes with economic development or increases the danger of a regional arms race.

I supported the reduction of the authorized funds for foreign aid but voted against the passage of the bill in the belief that, for many reasons including fiscal and monetary ones, it would be well to suspend the programs at the present time.

1968 WHEAT ALLOTMENT

An allotment of 59.3 million acres for the 1968 wheat crop has been announced by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman. This figure is the same as recommended by Missouri wheat farmers and farm organizations at a June meeting in Columbia.

REPORTED ISSUED ON MISSOURI MINERAL AND WATER RESOURCES

The only complete compilation of the mineral and water resources of Missouri ever made in one publication is now available as a Senate document under a resolution which I introduced with Sen. Edward V. Long as co-sponsor. Copies of the report are available by writing to me, 229 Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510.

SENATE APPROVES TRUTH-IN-LENDING

After seven years of studying alternative proposals, the Senate unanimously approved Truth in Lending legislation. The bill requires disclosure of consumer-type credit charges prior to the extension of credit so a consumer can decide whether the charge is reasonable and shop effectively for the best "credit buy."

SCENIC RIVER BILL PASSES

The preservation of many of the rivers of the nation in their natural state is the object of the Wild and Scenic Rivers bill, which the Senate approved by unanimous vote in August. Two rivers in Missouri are included under provisions of the bill, of which I am a co-sponsor. The Eleven Point, from its headwaters at Thomasville to the intersection with Highway 142 near the Arkansas border, would be designated a scenic river.

The bill, now under consideration in a House committee, also would authorize a study of the Gasconade River for future consideration as a scenic river.

Five Dentists To Cape Meeting

Doctors William B. Dillon, John L. Doggett, Howard B. Johnson, Dewey E. Urban and G. W. Weathers plan to attend the 57th annual meeting of the Southeast Missouri Dental Society Thursday in Cape Girardeau.

Dr. Johnson is president.

New Hampshire is now the only state without a sales or income tax.

Bill Approves Cash For Indian Tribes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed a bill Monday to distribute a $1,372,267 judgment to the Iowa Indian tribe of Kansas and Nebraska and the Iowa tribe of Oklahoma

Congress appropriated the money in 1965 and 1966 to satisfy a judgment given the Indians for lands in western Iowa and northwestern Missouri ceded to the federal government in 1836 and 1837.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, would give the Iowa tribe of Kansas and Nebraska 61.29 per cent of the funds and the Iowa tribe of Oklahoma 38.71 per cent.

Closer Watch Slated on State Construction

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — State Rep. E. J. (Lucky) Cantrell, D-Overland, said today the House Appropriations Committee is going to ride close herd on state building projects to eliminate unnecessary delay and cost.

Cantrell, who is appropriations chairman, called in the architects who have contracts for state building projects, the the heads of institutions getting new buildings and the State Division of Construction and Planning to tell them about the new procedure his group is starting.

He said monthly progress reports on construction will be required from the architects as well as from the heads of the institutions involved.

That way, he said, the committee will know whether to reappropriate for projects. He said delays and unnecessary cost will not be allowed.

In addition, he said, the committee will send out subcommittees without advance notice to inspect projects where delays are beyond the ordinary.

He said the heads of the institutions should be realistic at the outset and not ask for unneeded frills. And changes should not be made during the progress of the work in order to use up the full amount of the appropriation.

He said the state wants functional buildings, not objects of art.

He told the architects "when you get on those drawing boards don't be dreamers."

During the 30-minute session, Cantrell said most of the 300 state building projects now underway are moving along in good shape. But there are a few that need some prodding, he said, and the committee is ready to supply that.

Wallace Accepts Speaking Invitation

SMITHVILLE, Mo. (AP)— Mrs. Bea Lizar says George C. Wallace, former Alabama governor, has accepted an invitation to speak at her annual Democratic picnic Oct. 8 in the Paradise community.

Mrs. Lizar, president of the Clay County Women's Democratic Club, said she usually has about 500 persons at her picnics, "but I expect a few more this year." The picnics are held at her home.

A group of Paradise church women visited Alabama this year, hoping to have Wallace speak to them about his views on prayer in public schools. He was unable to at that time.

Mrs. Lizar wrote to Wallace later, inviting him to the picnic. He accepted, to her surprise.

Mitchell Ends Advanced Study

MT. PLEASANT, MICH.— Everett R. Mitchell, rural East Prairie, Mo., has completed a six-week institute for advanced study in industrial arts at Central Michigan University.

The institute, offered under the auspices of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and supported by the national defense education act, was devoted to the study of ferrous industry from raw material to finished product.

Union Battle May Lead to Airline Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle over union representation appeared to be an underlying issue in a strike threat by 7,000 workers against Pan American World Airways, biggest U.S. overseas air passenger and freight carrier.

The strike call was set for 12:01 a.m., Wednesday by the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railway and Airlines Clerks. The clerks union is fighting the Teamsters union for the right to represent the workers.

Clerks union President C.L. Dennis said Monday Pan Am refused to negotiate a new contract. He said a five per cent pay hike unilaterally granted by the company last week was "completely inadequate."

The workers, whose old contract expired in March, average between $110 and $120 weekly.

The Teamsters won an election to oust the Clerks but the results were ordered thrown out by the National Mediation Board, which cited its own errors in the election. The board ordered a new election.

Man Sought in Dorena Holdup Arrested

ST. LOUIS -- A young man identified as William H. Dunn, 46, was arraigned Tuesday in St. Louis before U.S. Commissioner William R. O'Toole in connection with the robbert last Monday of the Citizens Bank of Gerald.

A total of $98,335 was taken in the bank robbery.

When picked up by highway patrolmen on Highway 50 near Leslie, Dunn had almost $14,000 concealed on his person. Part of the money and two car keys were found in Dunn's shoes.

Two suitcases, which officers said contained $84,400 were found on a farm owned by relatives of the man near Gerald in Franklin county. Franklin County Sheriff H. Bill Miller said one of the suitcases was found hidden in a pile of hay, the other in the separator of a threshing machine.

Dunn's car was found concealed in a wooded area.

Mississippi County officers would also like to question the man about the robbery at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 2 of Campbell's store and the post office at Dorena. That robbery netted about $500 in cash, and a similar amount in checks. $124 of the total represented post office funds.

The man who robbed Campbell's store drove off in a red, 1965 Chevrolet automobile.

Dunn's parents live at Hickman, Ky.

The owner of Campbell's store drove to Franklin county Tuesday and identified Dunn as the Saturday night customer who held up his place of business.

Further questioning of the bank robbery suspect also revealed that he was the man who held up and robbed the East Prairie Kroger store in 1954. Soon thereafter Dunn held up a bank in West Tennessee, was captured, tried and sentenced to from six to eight years in prison.

L/CPL. DARRYL BEASLEY, of Oklahoma City, Okla., sat in the field with the Fifth Marine Regiment on Operation Swift, gets a few minutes to soak his feet in his helmet.

ARMED FORCES

Airmen Robert Hileman Jr. and Donald G. Vieth, both of whom completed basic training at Lackland AFB, have been selected for technical training as part of the Air Training Command. Airman Hileman will receive training as a missile equipment repairman at Chanute AFB. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hileman of Cape Girardeau, and a 1966 graduate of Central High School.

Airman Vieth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence, Vieth, Dexter, will be trained as an aircraft maintenance specialist at Sheppard AFB. Airman Vieth, a 1961 graduate of the high school at Dexter, received the 30-semester hours of education in 1965 from State College.

Area men now on duty in Vietnam are Airman 3.C. Reuben Amelunke, a machinist specialist and a member of the Pacific Air Forces; Airman 2.C. Ronald Amelunke, an aircraft maintenance specialist and a member of the Pacific Air Forces; and Pfc. John Odom, a construction specialist in the 1st Battalion's C Company. Airman Amelunke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Amelunke, Jackson, and a 1966 graduate of the R-2 high school at Jackson was previously assigned to Lowry AFB, Colorado. Pfc. McAnnaly, a graduate of the high school at Hayti, is the son of Mrs. T. F. McAnnaly, Hayti. Pfc. Odom, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Odom, and wife, live in Illmo, was broadening Katy's earning formerly employed by Ray Clinton Construction in Sikeston.

(NOC203) USS INTREPID (CVS-11 (FHTNC) -- Airman Winford L. Beaird, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Beaird of 1013 Applegate St., and husband of the former Miss Marilyn K. Carter of 116 Broadway, all of Sikeston, Mo., saw his ship receive its third award for aviation safety and accident prevention, as a crewman aboard the anti-submarine warfare support aircraft carrier USS Intrepid operating in the Gulf of Tonkin off North Vietnam.

Vice Admiral John J. Hyland, Commander of the U.S. Seventh Fleet, presented the 1967 AC awards to Intrepid's Commanding Officer Captain W. J. McVey, during formal ceremonies on the carrier's flight deck.

Admiral Thomas H. Moorer, Chief of Naval Operations, sent a statement from Washington for the occasion. The Admiral noted that the award is in "recognition of outstanding achievement in accident prevention during attack carrier operations." He further noted that "the accomplishment of this record is a direct reflection on the effort which was required of Intrepid's crew."

The Intrepid has previously won this award in 1961 and again in 1964.

U. S. ARMY, VIETNAM, (AHTHC) -- Army Private First Class Ronnie E. Thurman, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Thurman, Conran, Mo., was assigned to the 1st Infantry Division in Vietnam, Aug. 31.

A truck driver assigned to the 1st Administration Company in the division near Di An, Pvt. Thurman entered the Army in November 1966 and completed basic training at Ft. Ord, Calif. He was previously stationed at Ft. Lee, Va.

Pvt. Thurman is a 1962 graduate of Portageville (Mo.) High School.

His wife, Shirley, lives at 39 Eighth St., La Salle, Ill.

Farmers Told to Try Collective Bargaining

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)— Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman said Monday that collective bargaining "offers the best and perhaps the only approach to full farmer prosperity with the widest measure of freedom."

He said farmers should take a hard look at collective bargaining. Freeman made his remarks at the convention of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

Now programs are used to improve farm prices for next year, Freeman said, such as the downward adjustment of wheat acreage and probable adjustments in feed grains and soybean acreage.

He also said Commodity Credit corporation grain and soybean stocks are off the market, except in limited volumes.

Rail Firm Plans To Reorganize

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Missouri - Kansas - Texas Railroad, which had a deficit of more than $7.8 million last year, told the Interstate Commerce Commission Monday that it plans a reorganization to get needed funds and to diversify its interests.

The railroad proposes to borrow long term debt of about $114.4 million makes it difficult to obtain funds for modernization and acquisition of other investments, R said:

'Management and the principal stockholders of the railroad are thereby convinced that reorganization is necessary in order to acquire investments in non-transportation enterprises.

Katy plans to issue one share of common stock in the holding company for each share of stock in the railroad. The railroad also has made an agreement with Bangor Punta Operations Inc. of New York under which Bangor will seek specific opportunities for diversification.

Frazier to Be Panel Member

COLUMBIA -- Robert Frazier, director of the Charleston museum board, will participate in panel discussions on theater, music, opera, dance, film and visual arts at the conference of the Missouri Council on the Arts at the University of Missouri in Columbia Oct. 1-2.

Cadets at the Air Force Academy are taught a healthy respect for commissioned officers, but that training didn't phase my friend Jerry.

During one of our summer leaves, Jerry and I had traveled to Europe and were attending a happy hour at the USAF Officers' Club in Wiesbaden, Germany. We were in our navy-blue uniforms, which were not well known at the time.

While pushing our way through the crowd toward the bar, Jerry bumped into an Army Special Forces officer, dressed in the distinctive green beret and grease fatigues of the U.S. Special Forces.

The officer, a captain, looked at our cadet uniforms and exclaimed, "Well, what have we here, the Canadian Navy?"

With a scornful glance from head to toe of the captain's green uniform, Jerry retorted, "Well, what have we here, Robin Hood?" and Lt. J. Connors

1968 OLDSMOBILE TORONADO

Graceful lines and a sophisticated personalized look mark the 1968 Oldsmobile Toronado. Its all-new grille features head lamps concealed behind twin grille sections which retract upward when the lights are on. The revolutionary front wheel drive Toronado is powered by a 455-cu.-in. 4-barrel V-8, with an even higher performing force-air induction engine available as an option. Oldsmobile engineers have achieved a big gain in ride softness for the Toronado in 1968 while retaining all of the car's unexcelled handling characteristics.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich.--A new power train concept for all 1968 model Oldsmobiles will give the owner additional benefits in mid-range performance, fuel economy, quietness of operation and durability, it was announced here by Oldsmobile General Manager Harold N. Metzel, at his division's National Press Preview.

In addition, he revealed a performance option and substantial styling improvements in the front-wheel drive Toronado, the development of a brilliant new front-end look for the 88's and 98's, and a completely changed appearance for the F-85, Cutlass, Cutlass Supreme, 4-4-2 and Vista Cruiser.

"Of particular interest," Metzel said, "are the two-door models in the Cutlass Series identified as 'S' Coupes. We expect this line of coupes, pillar, hardtop and convertible, to augment Oldsmobile's recent gains in the youth market.

"The Cutlass 'S' Coupe," he continued, "is youthfully styled, agile in performance and may be customized with the use of any one of 12 engine-transmission combinations. Deluxe interior trim and special exterior ornamentation are standard, while dual exhausts, a wood grained steering wheel and rally-type handling components are among the new car's options. Bucket seats, standard on the convertible, are optional on the closed coupes."

The high performance 4-4-2 becomes the top of the F-85 line in 1968, with an extension of identity features, dual exhaust outlets discharging through rear bumper cutouts, and 9 engine-transmission combinations.

Included is the availability of a ram-air performance option with a special high output camshaft, heat treated valve springs, and a special axle ratio. Boldly designed carburetor air intake scoops for this option are located below the front bumper.

In addition to the coupes, all other Cutlass Supreme, Cutlass, and F-85 models are completely restyled for 1968. Wheelbases for 4-door sedans and station wagons have been increased to 116 inches. The vent windows are now crank operated, replacing the friction type windows on former F-85 and Cutlass models.

"Important changes have also been designed into the 1968 Vista Cruiser," Metzel continued, "resulting in its becoming one of the most spacious station wagons in the industry. Built on a wheelbase of 121 inches, the Vista Cruiser features 1.3" more leg room for second seat passengers. With the larger luggage locker under the floor, 2 more cubic feet of storage area is available. Optional for the first time on the Vista Cruiser is Oldsmobile's 400 cubic inch engine.

"Oldsmobile's Delmont and Delta 88's, the Delta Custom, the 98's and the Toronado," he said, "have undergone substantial restyling, front and rear, including new grilles, new side moldings, and revised rear end treatment.

"The Toronado, in particular," Metzel said, "has taken on a more sophisticated personalized car look, with more graceful lines. Front and rear bumpers and lamps are new. Headlamps are concealed behind twin grilles which retract upward with lights on.

"A softer ride with smoother movement over bumps has been achieved in the 1968 Toronado," he said, "while retaining the unexcelled handling characteristics for which this car is noted."

The Toronado's engine option includes a cold-air induction system with a high-speed camshaft. In addition, a new simplified ring and pinion drive axle with higher torque capacity replaces the more complex 1967 planetary unit.

"An extremely important part of our 1968 product story," Metzel said, "is the engineering concept adopted for all Oldsmobile power trains, which provides better fuel economy, improvement in mid-range performance and quietness of engine operation."

He explained that displacement for engines powering the F-85, Cutlass and Delmont 88 models has been increased from last year's 330 cubic inches to 350. The bigger engines, used in Oldsmobile's other 88's, as well as 98's and the Toronado, are up for 425 to 455 cubic inches. The maximum torque of these engines is increased 30 ft. lbs. and 40 ft. lbs. respectively.

"In addition to the higher driving torque of the new engines," he continued, "transmissions have been re-calibrated for additional torque multiplication and drive axle ratios have been lowered. These changes result in better efficiency and lower engine operating speeds.

"As an example, the 98 develops the same drive-wheel turning effort at 1600 rpm's as the comparable 1967 model at 3200 rpm's," Metzel said.

"All new Oldsmobile engines meet the requirements of the 1968 federal emission law through use of the Oldsmobile-pioneered combustion control system. This system, modified for 1968, was first offered by Oldsmobile as an option called Climatic Combustion Control in 1967 models. In addition to reducing air pollution, it provides faster warmup and eliminates carburetor icing," he stated.

Also eliminated is the extra belt drive, air pump and the complexity of pipes and valves which were present in the former Air Injection Reactor system.

Oldsmobile's tilt and telescope steering wheel is equipped exclusively with a new type horn ring as an added convenience. To sound the horns, the driver may squeeze any part of a continuous contact strip circling the wheel's inner diameter. This is the first continuous horn ring to be offered in the industry which in no way interferes with driver vision.

Metzel said a long list of mechanical improvements includes larger diameter wheel cylinders for better overall brake effectiveness and balance in F-85, 88 and 98 models. On the Toronado, a tandem power booster increases the effectiveness of the power braking system.

Other improvements in all 1968 Oldsmobiles include big increases in windshield wiper coverage area and more fluid released per pulse by the windshield washer system. In addition, for the reduction of glare, the wipers on most Oldsmobile models are depressed below the driver's line of vision. A new convoluted fuel tank filler neck will bend and collapse, thus preventing fuel leaks due to rupture of the neck of the tank in case of a rear end collision.

Other safety-related improvements include redesigned armrests, lower profile control knobs and door handles, wiper vision outside rear view mirrors, shift levers built to bend upon impact, and the elimination of metal in the backs of seats.

Luggage capacity in 88 sedans has been increased from 17.1 to 19 cubic feet. A new, smaller stereo tape player is mounted under the instrument panel. In the Toronado, it is designed into the center of the instrument panel itself. For the first time the stereo tape player is offered in F-85 models.

Report From Washington
Stuart Symington

Editor's Note: Senator Symington is in Southeast Asia. In his absence this report was prepared by his office.

FARM AND FOOD PRICES

In 1966, one U. S. farmworker supplied the food and fibre needs of 40 persons according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture report on "Farm and Food Prices." This almost doubles the 23 persons supplied by one farmworker in the 1957-59 period.

At the same time, the amount consumers spend for food has dropped from 24.6 percent of disposable income in 1947-49 to 17.8 percent in 1966.

The American farmer not only has provided an abundant supply of food in this country, but also has made a major contribution to world trade with one out of four harvested acres going into export. Copies of this eight-page report may be obtained by writing this office.

FLOOD INSURANCE BILL

The Senate has passed the National Flood Insurance bill which would establish a partnership between the government and an association of private insurance companies to share the risk of underwriting damage caused by floods.

The House will continue hearings this week on a similar bill.

The insurance plan proposed in this bill would begin with coverage for one-to-four family residential property. If the program should prove successful, the government could extend coverage to agricultural and business property.

ELECTION REFORM

The first major election reform bill since enactment of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act of 1925 has passed the Senate unanimously.

The legislation relies on disclosure of sources and amounts of campaign expenditures for all Federal contests to improve the process, and repeals limitations on campaign spending.

However, contributions by any individual to the campaign of any federal candidate would be limited to $5,000 a year. Under an amendment, adopted on the floor, this provision would be extended to members of a candidate's family.

MEDICARE'S FIRST YEAR IN MISSOURI

More than 537,000 Missouri citizens 65 and over received benefits from the Medicare hospital insurance program in its first year of operation, Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) and Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Mo.) announced today.

An additional 486,000 Missouri elder citizens voluntarily enrolled for supplementary medical insurance benefits, or 90.4 percent of those eligible for this program, the Missouri Senators said.

These figures were provided for the Senators in a letter from E. Albert Kreek, Regional Assistant Commissioner of the Social Security Administration in Kansas City.

Symington and Long said to administer the Medicare program during its first year in Missouri, 170 hospitals with 28,900 available beds participated, in addition to 69 extended care facilities with 4,300 nursing beds and 19 home health agencies.

"Through the Medicare program, many who might have received care on a charity basis in the absence of the program have received it as insured patients with the dignity that goes with the ability to pay," the Senators said.

Romper Room Begins at Center

MORLEY--The Romper Room began Sept. 11 at the Central Scott County Neighborhood Service Center with 35 children attending.

Senior citizens met at the center Sept. 15 to organize a program for those in the area 50 and older. The coordinator Mrs. Bill Anderson gave a welcome address. Mrs. Bill Stephens, family service aide, explained the program.

A film, "Beyond These Hills," with Billy Graham and Sargent Shriver, was shown.

Mrs. Loretta Boley sang "Getting to Know You," "I Believe," and "You'll Never Walk Alone." Mrs. Polly Hatch, pianist, accompained her. Mrs. Boley and Mrs. S. A. Fowler sand "He Touched Me."

Mrs. Tom Hamilton, Mrs. Lillie Lockridge and Mrs. Harry Jones sang "Walk With Me." The group sang "He's Got the Whole World in His Hand," "Teach Me to Pray" and the meeting was closed by singing, "We'll Meet Again."

Punch and cookies were served. The next meeting will be Sept. 29.

The young women will meet each Wednesday for arts and crafts.

The homemakers clinic is held at the center each Thursday afternoon. A cooking class will begin Thursday. Educational aides Mrs. Pauline Brock and Mrs. Louella Tucker will conduct the classes.

Detroit Schools Open Doors

DETROIT (AP)-- School doors have swung open for 300,000 students in Detroit, ending a summer vacation that was prolonged by a 13-day teachers strike.

Teachers returned to their jobs Monday after winning an across-the-board raise over two years of $1,700.

In addition to the salary increase, $850 this year and $850 the next, the teachers won a reduction of the school year from 40 weeks to 39 and limitation of classes to 39 pupils. The ratification on Monday of the proposed contract, hammered out during early morning bargaining sessions, lowered to 13 the number of Michigan school districts where master contracts for teachers have not been reached.

In five of the unsettled school districts, teachers have been ordered back to work by court injunctions, although in one of them, Crestwood District in Dearborn Heights, most of the 211 teachers have resigned.

In the remaining eight districts, some 75,000 students are still out of school.

Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken on Monday asked the school boards in Bloomfield Hills, Oak Park, Dearborn and Menominee to get back-to-work orders from the courts.

Milliken, acting as governor during the absence of Gov. George Romney, said injunctions are being sought in Bridgeport, Highland Park, Hamtramck and North Dearborn Heights.

Detroit teachers, represented by Local 231, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, ratified their new contract by a vote of 3,316-376 after union leaders told them "that is the best we can do."

The teachers demanded a $1,700 boost immediately when negotiations opened.

Exterior changes in the 1968 Cadillac, as shown on this Coupe de Ville (top), include a new grille and larger parking lights redesigned cornering lights and new marker lights on the side plus a new deck lid and all chrome rear bumper. Among the safety related product improvements in all models are: a new concealed windshield wiper and washer system, recessed door handles and added cushioning in the instrument panel and front seat backs. Dramatic styling changes to Cadillac's 1968 Fleetwood Eldorado (bottom) include new parking lamps located in the leading edge of the front fenders, a new hood 4½ inches longer and redesigned tailights. All 1968 Cadillac models are powered by a new 375 h.p. — 472 cubic inch engine which produces 525 foot pounds of torque — the highest of any production passenger car engine in the world.

India-Born Sitar Player Stunned by U.S. Attention

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — To the Western eye, the instrument seems absurd, the bulbous gourds on each end making it look like some mixed-up barbell. But from the 19 strings of the sitar India-born Ravi Shankar can evoke harmony and dissonance that astound the ear.

His appearance recently on ABC's "Hollywood Palace" added to the clamor over soft-spoken, strong-willed Shankar, of whom Life magazine proclaimed, "His Sitar Sound Rocks the U.S." The musician is getting what appears to be a saturation campaign, including dates at the Monterey Folk Festival, Hollywood Bowl, Expo 67 and this week at Philharmonic Hall in New York's Lincoln Center.

The rage over Ravi's ragas— free-swinging improvisations that can last two or three hours— was started two years ago when Beatle George Harrison became enamored with the sitar sound. He made a pilgrimage to India to study under Shankar, and Indian tones began seeping into the Beatle numbers.

This caused Shankar to become elevated to minor saint-hood in pop music. Teeny-boppers, flower children and other juvenile types began appearing at Shankar's American concerts, bestowing on him the homage usually reserved for guitar plunkers in tight pants.

The attention alternately pleases and appalls Shankar.

"I see no harm in using the sitar for pop music," he explained. "It is a versatile instrument that can be used for many things, just as the guitar can be played by everyone from Segovia to folk singers.

"But I would hate to see the sitar used solely to produce a pop sound. That is why in my concerts I stress the fact that it can be used for the classical form."

He may or may not be getting the message across to his most devoted followers, the hippies. They apparently enjoy his music for its fantasmagorical sound, rather than its classical quality.

"I love hippies," Shankar declared outright. "I love them not because they are admirers of my music, but because of their philosophy, their awareness. But one thing I do not approve: their use of drugs.

"I learned from my guru that true contentment must come from within, and so I do not believe in smoking or drinking. Many of the hippies who come to my concerts are obviously stoned. They are so overcome by LSD or marijuana that they cannot possibly appreciate the music.

"Often during the performance they will light up— and usually it is not tobacco. Then I must stop and announce that smoking is not allowed. I only want them to give me a chance to present my music properly, and for that I must have a couple of hours of sobriety."

Ravi Shankar is a 5-feet-3 man of 47 with curly black hair and a broad, brown face with deep, dark-rimmed eyes. He is enormously disciplined and can sit cross-legged playing the four-foot sitar for three uninterrupted hours. Both his religious training and his lengthy career prevent his being overwhelmed by his newfound fame.

"Since the age of 9 I have been traveling," said the musician, who toured Europe and the United States as part of a dance troupe. At the age of 15 he turned to the sitar and led a monastic life of 12 punishing hours daily practice until he mastered the instrument. For almost 20 years he has toured western capitals, playing his ragas to increasing crowds.

"Usually I would return home to India after four or five months," he said. "But this time I will stay a year, returning in February or March. They ask me at home why I spend so much time outside.

"It is for this reason: I feel responsible for starting the sitar movement in this country, and I would like to see it properly appreciated."

Besides his concerts, television and records— recent release: "East Meets West" with Yehudi Menuhin— Shankar has founded a school in Los Angeles where he teaches Indian culture as well as the sitar. He also will score "Charlie," the next film by Ralph Nelson ("Lillies of the Field"). Among his other scores: the "Pather Panchali" films of India's Satyajit Ray, "Alice in Wonderland" for British television, the forthcoming "Chappaqua" of Conrad Rooks.

12 Teachers To Attend Workshop

Sikeston teachers and administrators who will attend an adult basic education teacher training workshop Friday and Saturday at the University of Missouri at St. Louis are Wade Bedwell, Alvin Fields, John Scott, Louis Evans, Mary and Dick Fussell, Donald Fulton, Evelyn Barnett, Christine Davis, Phylis Lowe, Earnest Brooks and Norma Marks.

THE 1968 CADILLAC

Major engineering advancements combined with distinctive Cadillac styling result in new standards of performance, durability, safety and comfort in the 1968 Cadillac.

Calvin J. Werner, general manager of Cadillac Motor Car Division and vice president of General Motors, in announcing the 1968 models, said they would go on sale in dealer showrooms on September 21.

"Heart of the performance-durability story for the 1968 models, said they would go on sale in dealer showrooms on September 21.

"Heart of the performance-durability story for the 1968 models is Cadillac's completely new engine. We has capitalized on our 53 years of V-8 engine design and manufacturing experience to produce an engine to satisfy the needs of our Cadillac owners," Mr. Werner pointed out. "The new engine has a displacement of 472 cubic inches and torque of 525 foot pounds-- both the highest of any standard production passenger car engine in the world."

Rated at 375 horsepower, the new 1968 engine is standard in all 11 models.

While wheelbase, height and width remain unchaged, all except the Eldorado are 7-10 of an inch longer. The Eldorado remains at 221 inches in length.

STYLING--STANDARD MODELS

Cadillac's 1968 styling adds new distinctiveness to all 11 models. The front end features a new grille with a new header bar and thinner and narrower grille fins. These provide a more finely-tailored appearance although retaining the traditional cross-hatch design. Larger parking lamps are fitted into the ends of the grille and operate whenever headlights are on. Complementing the front end is a new hood - 6½ inches longer — which sweeps in an unbroken line to the windshield and conceals the new windshield wiper system.

The side view is accented by a strong design line which starts at the top of the front fender and extends downward to the rear of the car.

Rear styling features a new fully chromed bumper and a new deck lid, similar to the Eldorado which provides added luggage space.

STYLING--ELDORADO

Dramatic front and end styling changes to Cadillac's 1968 Fleetwood Eldorado include new parking lamps located in the leading edges of the front fenders. The hood is 4-½ inches longer to provide cover for the new windshield wiper system.

New and larger taillights, accented by finely-tailored chrome trim, provide greater light output from side and rear.

SAFETY-RELATED FEATURES

For 1968 Cadillac offers even greater emphasis on product improvements related to safety. In the interior, door handles are recessed into the side of the arm rests to prevent inadvertent opening of doors and to provide clean and uncluttered arms rests. All models will have stronger door hinges.

Sun visors, already padded, now have edge - crush provisions, instrument panels have additional padding and interior bright finishes have controlled reflectivity. The center automatic climate control outlet is now deeply recessed and made of impact absorbing plastic with breakaway retainers.

The inside rear view mirror will bend away from either a forward or side impact. And for increased protection for rear seat passengers, all front seat backs will have additional padding.

Ventilator window crank handles are flatter with rounder edges and will bend away upon side impact. Door locking buttons are made of flexible material.

In the Eldorado the rear remore door handle for rear seat passengers will be on the right side only to encourage exiting on the safe side.

On the outside, a new windshield wiper and washer system cleans a larger portion of the windshield, particularly at the base of the windshield pillars. The improved higher capacity washer starts to deliver water to the glass before the first cycle of the wipers.

New side marker lights have been added for 1968. The front marker lights are located in the new cornering light and show amber when the lights are on. The rear side markers on all models other than the Eldorado, the rear marker lights are located within the wreath and crest emblem just ahead of the rear bumper.

ENGINEERING

The over-all dimensions for the all - new V-8 engine are basically the same as its 1967 counterpart, requiring only minor changes in the chassis. The design incorporates an integral exhaust emission system and provides mountings for all engine accessories.

The new power plant is designed to take full advantage of advanced processes and materials including a cast ductile iron crankshaft and cast Armasteel connecting rods.

Another innovation and unique to this engine is a metal temperature monitoring device. This device sounds a buzzer and activates a red warning light if engine overheating occurs for any reason. Unlike former devices based on water temperature alone, this system responds to any failure in the cooling system.

Front wheel disc brakes are optional on all 1968 Cadillacs. The regular line will feature a new single - piston floating caliper design. The Eldorado will continue with the four-piston floating caliper design. The Eldorado will continue with the four-piston caliper design which was offered in 1967, but with a tandem booster for improvement performance.

Cadillac presents elegance in action!

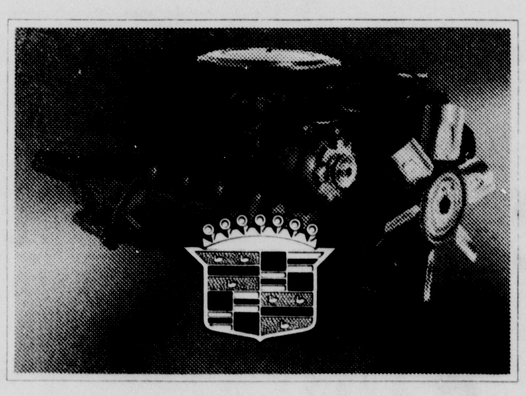
And the "inside story" for 1968 starts with the biggest, smoothest V-8 engine ever put into a production motor car.



Brilliant new styling · Dramatic new interiors · Totally new instrument panel · Concealed windshield wipers · Improved variable ratio power steering · New disc brakes available · Choice of eleven exciting body styles.

Now, enter a new era of luxury car performance—with the biggest and smoothest engine ever put into a production passenger car—the completely new Cadillac 472 V-8. This new V-8 has the greatest torque, or usable power, of any passenger car engine and has the newest combination of engine components since Cadillac pioneered the V-8 fifty-three years ago. You will notice a brilliant improvement in passing performance that in no way compromises a huge reserve of power to efficiently operate power steering, power brakes and other Cadillac conveniences.

You will also be impressed with its amazing quiet—so remarkable that only its nimble responsiveness reminds you that a great new engine is hidden beneath the hood.

Cadillac for 1968 provides, in addition, its well-proved triple braking system with finned drums that delivers smooth, straight stopping power. Front disc brakes are available for those who prefer the further refinement of an advanced disc-and-drum combination, and this year they're standard on Eldorado. You may also choose a greatly improved air conditioning system that moves more air more quietly.

Whether your preference is for one of the more traditional models—or the classic beauty of the Eldorado—come discover new elegance and excitement in luxury car motoring!

Hurricane Beulah Pounds Rio Grande Valley

Public Support Asked

"We have within our state a society of 130,000 that is barely noticeable, a silent society of young children between the ages of one and 21, who must be classified as emotionally disturbed." Jack Stapleton Jr., of Kennett, publisher of the Daily Dunklin Democrat, said.

Stapleton spoke to 100 members of the Southeast division of Missouri Association for Social Welfare Tuesday night at the Holiday Inn. He is a past president of the Missouri Association for Mental Health. His speech was entitled "The Citizen Challenge of Mental Health."

The task that faces Missourians in 1967, goes beyond identification or establishing a research project in the field of the emotionally disturbed, Stapleton said.

"Like the farmer who passed up agricultural extension courses because he wasn't yet farming half as well as he knew how, we have already more knowledge than we are using.

"There remain great areas of ignorance, to be sure, and what we do know needs to be expanded and refined; but one of the major problems is that the field of mental health now possesses much knowledge that i' cannot deal with, knowledge that creates delemmas and the need for difficult decision.

If we in the social service field are to be effective in securing care for the emotionally disturbed children of the state, we will have to confront these dilemmas.

"The challenge that enlightened Missourians face will be to risk controversy and recommend change. And if we are to meet that challenge we must receive the public's understanding and its support.

"Who takes care of emotionally disturbed children in Missouri?

"More importantly, who cares about emotionally disturbed children in Missouri?

"At this very moment, we have about 130,000 children who are emotionally distrubed in Missouri to a handicapping degree.

"Perhaps as many as 5,000 are severely disturbed; many are so out of touch with reality and with the everyday world that they must be defined with horror as already psychotic.

"One of the hardest facts to face is that only a tiny portion of these children--less than 1,000 get any help from our present array of psychiatric resources. In the course of a year, considerably fewer than 1,500 have even passing contact with a psychiatic agency or mental health professional, And of these, only about one third are considered to have been, in any sense, treated, "Stapleton said.

"Some who are counted as helped may be more properly counted as harmed.

The association elected officers prior to Stapleton's speech. The slate recommended by nominating committee chairman Mrs. Agnes Cunningham was elected.

Officers are Gerald Cook, Fredricktown, chairman; Bernice Bruce, East Prairie, first vice president; Evelyn Walden, East Prairie, second vice president; Mrs. Agnes Cunningham, Bertrand, secretary and June Hilpert, Cape Girardeay, treasurer.

Members at large are Winston Hall, New Madrid; Doctor T. P. Fenton, Charleston; Earl Williams, Anniston; John Underwood, Sikeston; Elaine Province, Charleston; and Fred A. Walker, Farmington.

Past Chairman Dave Ragan presided. Mayor Kendall Sikes presented a welcome speech and Dr. Robert Lively, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church, led the prayer.

Sharp Says Haiphong Port Closing Could End War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disputing gloomy forecasts that the costly Vietnam war could run on another five years, Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp says the quickest way to end it is to close North Vietnam's main port of Haiphong by mining it.

Sharp, U.S. commander in the Pacific, told senators he has recommended this frequently to "higher authority" in Washington.

"Mining is completely feasible and a very simple operation," the admiral told the Senate preparedness subcommittee Aug. 9. The 121 pages of closed testimony was made public today after hundreds of deletions by Pentagon censors. The gist of Sharp's testimony had become known last month.

Chairman John Stennis, D.Miss., and the other seven senators on the subcommittee already have unanimously recommended a step-up of the air war against North Vietnam as a result of testimony by Sharp and other top military leaders.

Sharp said he heard another halt in U.S. bombing had been considered as a means of encouraging a negotiated settlement.

"It generally would be a disaster to the United States in my opinion," Sharp said of such a bombing pause.

He said North Vietnam would rush supplies into South Vietnam because 500,000 to 600,000 North Vietnamese are occupied rebuilding and guarding against U.S. bombing strikes.

Basic Courses to Be Offered

Adult basic education classes for persons 18 and over who wish to complete their education through the eighth grade will be offered free by the Sikeston public schools.

Classes begin with orientation and registration at 7 p.m. Sept. 28, at building 5 at the Airport school.

The classes offer persons an opportunity to improve skills in reading, writing, arithmetic and social studies.

The teaching staff has been increased by utilizing personnel, who have worked with adults and students on a full - time basis. This is the third year the adult basic education classes have been taught.

Counseling services have been added.

A citizens advisory committee has been named.

Members are the Rev. T. A. McDonough, Wade Bedwell, Richard James, the Rev. J. W. Gwin, Bill Paylor, Willie Dixon, Jim Cornett, Wayne Collins, Alvin Fields, Louis Evans and L. L. Schuette.

The committee will elect officers in a meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Airport school.

A free bus service to and from classes will be started. The bus will leave Lincoln school at 6:15 p.m., Community Action Agency office at 6:20 p.m., Smith Avenue Bet-R-Valu Store at 6:35 p.m. and Barkett's Big Star at 6:45 p.m.

Interested adults may pre-enroll through Friday during school hours at the Airport school and Lincoln school, between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. at the Community Action Agency.

LINDA RIGSBY, center, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Rigsby, was named Miss Dexter last night. Judy Clark, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clark, was second runnerup, and Sue Robinson, right, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Robinson, was first runnerup.

Cyclists Involved in Two Traffic Accidents

A 14-year-old juvenile farm boy was injured while riding a motorbike and a 70-year-old man was treated for cuts and bruises in two traffic accidents Tuesday.

The juvenile, who lives near Sikeston, was riding a 1966 Suzuki Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. on an unmarked blacktopped highway, four miles northeast of Sikeston, when a 1963 station wagon, driven by Peggy Bollinger, 17, route two, Sikeston, backed out of a driveway and struck the right side of the motorbike.

The boy was knocked from his vehicle, receiving a concussion, fractured collarbone, leg fractures and lost teeth.

He was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital and referred to the juvenile authorities for not having a license, the state patrol reported.

Miss Bollinger was given a summons for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Monty Binkley, 70, Clarkton, was riding a bicycle down the middle of Interestate 57 at 10:20 p.m. Tuesday, four miles east of Sikeston, when a 1960 Cadillac, driven by Joseph Williams, 32, Chicago, swerved to miss him, ran into the median and overturned. The bicycle was grazed by the car.

Two passengers in the Cadillac, Ella Walker, 58, McGee, Miss., and Charles Lofton, 47, Chicago, and the driver, were cut, bruised and treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

The cyclist received cuts but did not require treatment.

Carnival Parade Entries Lagging

Organizations wishing to be represented in the Cotton Carnival parade may notify Parade Marshal Glenn McClellen by Friday.

Information needed is name of organization, type of entry and the name of the person in charge.

Units entered in the parade will gather at 9:30 a.m., Sept. 30, at Ranney and Tanner.

Only 12 groups have entered. Normally 50 or more organizations are represented.

Units include floats sponsored by civic clubs or commercial outlets and groups of Scouts, McClellan said.

McClellan's address is Box 733, Sikeston, and phone number is GR 1-1808.

Vernon Taylor Elected Mayor

BLOOMFIELD -- Vernon Taylow was elected mayor in Tuesday's special election.

Taylor, who polled 224 votes, defeated Everett C. Bess, who received 193.

The special election was called after Alvin Corbin resigned as mayor.

Stray Missile Cone Impact Point Spotted

VAN HORN, Tex. (AP) — A spokesman at White Sands Missile Range says a civilian helicopter crew has sighted what is "believed to be the impact point of a Pershing nose cone" from an Army missile that went off course.

The sighting was made Tuesday about 50 miles southwest of Van Horn in a secluded area of northern Mexico.

A 12-man team from the missile range gathered today in this West Texas community to await permission from the Mexican government to cross the border and recover components of the Pershing missile.

The two-ton, $750,000 artillery missile was launched Sept. 12 from Blanding, Utah, intended to impact 350 nautical miles to the south at White Sands in southern New Mexico.

White Sands officials said the missile's guidance and control section, contained classified material. It was designed to fall to earth separately from a dummy warhead.

Furtaw Files for Attorney General

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Joseph E. Furtaw of Lake Wauwanoka, Hillsboro, Mo., filed Monday for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Winds Reach 160 Miles Per Hour

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)— Hurricane Beulah, a vicious storm that took nearly 30 lives, crashed inland today and spun off killing and destructive tornadoes.

The Weather Bureau said at a late hour that the eye was between San Benito and Harlingen after smashing ashore at the mouth of the Rio Grande, which separates Texas and Mexico.

Hurricanes normally begin a great curve toward the northeast when they hit land and this does not rule out the possibility it might turn into the Gulf of Mexico again.

But it eased the severity of the forecasts for Corpus Christi, 160 miles north of Brownsville, where the Weather Bureau earlier predicted Beulah would hit with storm-driven tides of possible historic heights.

At Corpus Christi, rain and wind hit and some trees toppled, but traffic remained heavy on streets and many business houses remained open.

"She's about the biggest, nastiest storm I've ever seen," said the veteran pilot of a Navy hurricane hunter plane after flying through the eye.

Winds were estimated at 160 miles an hour at one point, but the Weather Bureau said the storm was expected to weaken slowly since some of its perimeter was over land.

Tornadoes spun off by the hurricane caused three deaths at Palacios, midway between Houston and Corpus Christi on Matagorda Bay. Another person was missing and five suffered critical injuries. State police said four tornadoes struck at Palacios, three homes suffered destruction and several automobiles were wrecked.

Tornadoes are a frequent companion of hurricanes and the Weather Bureau said they could be expected as far as 80 miles from the center.

More than 30,000 Texans fled far inland or took refuge in hometown shelters. The flight was orderly and appeared to be mostly cheerful, even taken as fun at first by some. But in neighboring Matamoros, Mexico, officials reported fear and confusion as residents scrambled for shelter.

The presence of her eye over a little bit of land made her course still uncertain.

At one point, the Weather Bureau predicted the eye would strike Corpus Christi, 160 miles up the coast from Brownsville and preparations for the blow already neared completion.

The Weather Bureau issued a tornado warning for the area from Corpus Christi to Baffin Bay, about 30 miles south of Corpus Christi. One tornado was sighted 30 miles south of Corpus Christi.

For comparison, famous hurricane Carla, which struck the Texas coast Sept. 11, 1961, had winds estimated at 175 m.p.h.— only slightly higher than Beulah. Although a half million persons fled inland, 40 persons died and damage was estimated at $500 million.

Ham radio operators reported the tiny town of Valle Hermoso, Mexico, 15 miles south of Brownsville, was almost wiped out as the hurricane winds swept through. Many residents had been evacuated before the storm hit.

No deaths or injuries were reported immediately.

Earlier Beulah had been blamed for 24 deaths— 23 in the eastern Carribbean and Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula and one when a 15-year-old girl was swept from her surfboard by rolling waves at Freeport, Tex., south of Houston.

Beulah uprooted giant palms, battered buildings and flailed Rio Grande Valley citrus groves as she surged to the coast.

The storm's blast knocked out all power in Brownsville. The city's lights blinked out in segments across the city as the storm's fury grew.

Rain fell in heavy bursts. Uprooted trees and ripped branches littered Brownsville streets. Some streets were impassable. Hospitals were on emergency power. One residence caught fire, cause unknown.

The Weather Bureau said tides up to 15 feet and torrential rains threatened dangerous flooding from Brownsville to Palacios, 50 miles northeast of Corpus Christi on Matagorda Bay.

In the 159-mile stretch from Brownsville to Corpus Christi there is little immediately along the coast except pastures of the huge King Ranch, lushly grassed coastal prairie so flat there is no barrier for winds or tides.

Some 15 to 30 miles inland along this unobstructed coastline lie a number of small towns, among them Raymondville, San Manuel, Rachal, Encino, Falfurrias, Kingsville, Driscoll and Robstown.

Corpus Christi is a city of more than 200,000.

Brownsville has a population of more than 50,000 and Matamoros, just across the Rio Grande, a population of about 100,000. Inland up the valley lie towns and farms containing at least another quarter- million people.

At 2:50 a.m. winds in Brownsville were clocked at 104 m.p.h.

Police said their cars were the only ones attempting to traverse Brownsville streets.

They reported several utility poles on fire, "hot lines" everywhere, palm trees ablaze and fallen trees all over the city.

Slide, Auger Injure Two

Two persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital Tuesday:

Sammy D. Chadd, Sikeston, hit head against slide, and Joe N. Shanks, New Madrid, cut finger on combine auger.

Lady Bird Departs On Midwest Tour

WASHINGTON (AP)— Off to the Midwest today, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson said she wants to find out if there are opportunities nowadays to keep people in small towns and the countryside.

"You hope there is some lead room, some long-time planning that is looking to this," the President's wife said in a statement, "and that is what I want to see for myself."

Mrs. Johnson's 3½-day trip to seven midwestern states includes tourist spots like Mark Twain's Mississippi River home town of Hannibal, Mo., and a look at farms and city architecture.

Bank to Move Into New Gas Building

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The new 34-story Laclede gas building in downtown St. Louis will have another new resident.

The Bank of St. Louis announced Tuesday it will move its headquarters to the new structure.

Farmers Elect Township Committees Picked in ASC Voting

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of Scott, Stoddard, Mississippi and New Madrid counties each chose their township committeeman in a countywide meeting last night.

On Saturday at 10 a.m. each county will elect one member to the county committee, to replace the member whose three year term expires. All county committees have one to three-year staggering terms.

The township officials, whose names are given below, were chosen in order, president, vice president, member, and first and second alternate.

In Mississippi county, the township results, according to office manager George Roberts, are: James Bayou township -- Joe White, Jackie Barker, Gene Hall, Forest Adkisson, Joe True. Long Prairie township -- C.J. Stancil, Albert Peters, Coots, Jimmie Heath, Jitto.

Mississippi township -- Lowell Bowers, Clifton Riley, John Goodin, Ira Burkett, John Tatum. Ohio township -- W. R. Nally, James Brown, Billie Brown, G.A. Banks, Max Davidson.

St. James township -- W. C. Stallings, Jack Adkisson, Ernest Ray, Jim Bishop, Rex Mainord.

Tywappity township -- Freeman Finley, Ralph Adkisson, Lindsay Hurley, Jerry Greer, Patrick Rolwing.

New Madrid county township elections, with June Ramsburgh, office manager, reported the following officers:

Anderson township was the only township not reporting.

Big Prairie township -- Louis Wilburn Jr., Gerald Ayers, Clyde Hawes, Fred Flowers, Bill Huffstattler.

Como township -- Doyle Hicks, Spud Smith, Hoyte Butler, Aldon Hamlett, J. E. Calhoun.

Hough township -- Elwood Pickett, Ted Kelley, Ira Campbell, Calvin Day, Carl Givens.

OUR 56TH YEAR | 10¢ PER COPY | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1967 | NUMBER 306

Hurricane Beulah Pounds Rio Grande Valley

Public Support Asked

"We have within our state a society of 130,000 that is barely noticeable, a silent society of young children between the ages of one and 21, who must be classified as emotionally disurbed." Jack Stapleton Jr., of Kennett, publisher of the Daily Dunklin Democrat, said.

Stapleton spoke to 100 members of the Southeast division of Missouri Association for Social Welfare Tuesday night at the Holiday Inn. He is a past president of the Missouri Association for Mental Health. His speech was entitled "The Citizen Challenge of Mental Health."

The task that faces Missourians in 1967, goes beyond identification or establishing a research project in the field of the emotionally disturbed, Stapleton said.

"Like the farmer who passed up agricultural extension courses because he wasn't yet farming half as well as he knew how, we have already more knowledge than we are using.

"There remain great areas of ignorance, to be sure, and what we do know needs to be expanded and refined; but one of the major problems is that the field of mental health now possesses much knowledge that it cannot deal with, knowledge that creates delemmas and the need for difficult decision.

If we in the social service field are to be effective in securing care for the emotionally disturbed children of the state, we will have to confront these dilemmas.

"The challenge that enlightened Missourians face will be to risk controversy and recommend change. And if we are to meet that challenge we must receive the public's understanding and its support.

"Who takes care of emotionally disturbed children in Missouri?

"More importantly, who cares about emotionally disturbed children in Missouri?

"At this very moment, we have about 130,000 children who are emotionally distrubed in Missouri to a handicapping degree.

"Perhaps as many as 5,000 are severely disturbed; many are so out of touch with reality and with the everyday world that they must be defined with horror as already psychotic.

"One of the hardest facts to face is that only a tiny portion of these children--less than 1,000 get any help from our present array of psychiatric resources. In the course of a year, considerably fewer than 1,500 have even passing contact with a psychiatic agency or mental health professional, And of these, only about one third are considered to have been, in any sense, treated, "Stapleton said.

"Some who are counted as helped may be more properly counted as harmed.

The association elected officers prior to Stapleton's speech. The slate recommended by nominating committee chairman Mrs. Agnes Cunningham was elected.

Officers are Gerald Cook, Fredricktown, chairman; Bernice Bruce, East Prairie, first vice president; Evelyn Walden, East Prairie, second vice president; Mrs. Agnes Cunningham, Bertrand, secretary and June Hilpert, Cape Girardeay, treasurer.

Members at large are Winston Hall, New Madrid; Doctor T. P. Fenton, Charleston; Earl Williams, Anniston; John Underwood, Sikeston; Elaine Province, Charleston; and Fred A. Walker, Farmington.

Past Chairman Dave Ragan presided. Mayor Kendall Sikes presented a welcome speech and Dr. Robert Lively, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church, led the prayer.

Sharp Says Haiphong Port Closing Could End War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disputing gloomy forecasts that the costly Vietnam war could run on another five years, Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp says the quickest way to end it is to close North Vietnam's main port of Haiphong by mining it.

Sharp, U.S. commander in the Pacific, told senators he has recommended this frequently to "higher authority" in Washington.

"Mining is completely feasible and a very simple operation," the admiral told the Senate preparedness subcommittee Aug. 9. The 121 pages of closed testimony was made public today after hundreds of deletions by Pentagon censors. The gist of Sharp's testimony had become known last month.

Chairman John Stennis, D.Miss., and the other seven senators on the subcommittee already have unanimously recommended a step-up of the air war against North Vietnam as a result of testimony by Sharp and other top military leaders.

Sharp said he heard another halt in U.S. bombing had been considered as a means of encouraging a negotiated settlement.

"It generally would be a disaster to the United States in my opinion," Sharp said of such a bombing pause.

He said North Vietnam would rush supplies into South Vietnam because 500,000 to 600,000 North Vietnamese are occupied rebuilding and guarding against U.S. bombing strikes.

Basic Courses to Be Offered

Adult basic education classes for persons 18 and over who wish to complete their education through the eighth grade will be offered free by the Sikeston public schools.

Classes begin with orientation and registration at 7 p.m. Sept. 28, at building 5 at the Airport school.

The classes offer persons an opportunity to improve skills in reading, writing, arithmetic and social studies.

The teaching staff has been increased by utilizing personnel, who have worked with adults and students on a full - time basis. This is the third year the adult basic education classes have been taught.

Counseling services have been added.

A citizens advisory committee has been named.

Members are the Rev. T. A. McDonough, Wade Bedwell, Richard James, the Rev. J. W. Gwin, Bill Paylor, Willie Dixon, Jim Cornett, Wayne Collins, Alvin Fields, Louis Evans and L. L. Schuette.

The committee will elect officers in a meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Airport school.

A free bus service to and from classes will be started. The bus will leave Lincoln school at 6:15 p.m., Community Action Agency office at 6:20 p.m., Smith Avenue Bet-R-Valu Store at 6:35 p.m. and Barkett's Big Star at 6:45 p.m.

Interested adults may pre-enroll through Friday during school hours at the Airport school and Lincoln school, between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. at the Community Action Agency.

LINDA RIGSBY, center, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Rigsby, was named Miss Dexter last night. Judy Clark, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clark, was second runnerup, and Sue Robinson, right, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Robinson, was first runnerup.

Cyclists Involved in Two Traffic Accidents

A 14-year-old juvenile farm boy was injured while riding a motorbike and a 70-year-old man was treated for cuts and bruises in two traffic accidents Tuesday.

The juvenile, who lives near Sikeston, was riding a 1966 Suzuki Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. on an unmarked blacktopped highway, four miles northeast of Sikeston, when a 1963 station wagon, driven by Peggy Bollinger, 17, route two, Sikeston, backed out of a driveway and struck the right side of the motorbike.

The boy was knocked from his vehicle, receiving a concussion, fractured collarbone, leg fractures and lost teeth.

He was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital and referred to the juvenile authorities for not having a license, the state patrol reported.

Miss Bollinger was given a summons for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Monty Binkley, 70, Clarkton, was riding a bicycle down the middle of Interestate 57 at 10:20 p.m. Tuesday, four miles east of Sikeston, when a 1960 Cadillac, driven by Joseph Williams, 32, Chicago, swerved to miss him, ran into the median and overturned. The bicycle was grazed by the car.

Two passengers in the Cadillac, Ella Walker, 58, McGee, Miss., and Charles Lofton, 47, Chicago, and the driver, were cut, bruised and treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

The cyclist received cuts but did not require treatment.

Carnival Parade Entries Lagging

Organizations wishing to be represented in the Cotton Carnival parade may notify Parade Marshal Glenn McClellen by Friday.

Information needed is name of organization, type of entry and the name of the person in charge.

Units entered in the parade will gather at 9:30 a.m., Sept. 30, at Ranney and Tanner.

Only 12 groups have entered. Normally 50 or more organizations are represented.

Units include floats sponsored by civic clubs or commercial outlets and groups of Scouts, McClellan said.

McClellan's address is Box 733, Sikeston, and phone number is GR 1-1808.

Vernon Taylor Elected Mayor

BLOOMFIELD -- Vernon Taylow was elected mayor in Tuesday's special election.

Taylor, who polled 224 votes, defeated Everett C. Bess, who received 193.

The special election was called after Alvin Corbin resigned as mayor.

Stray Missile Cone Impact Point Spotted

VAN HORN, Tex. (AP) — A spokesman at White Sands Missile Range says a civilian helicopter crew has sighted what is "believed to be the impact point of a Pershing nose cone" from an Army missile that went off course.

The sighting was made Tuesday about 50 miles southwest of Van Horn in a secluded area of northern Mexico.

A 12-man team from the missile range gathered today in this West Texas community to await permission from the Mexican government to cross the border and recover components of the Pershing missile.

The two-ton, $750,000 artillery missile was launched Sept. 12 from Blanding, Utah, intended to impact 350 nautical miles to the south at White Sands in southern New Mexico.

White Sands officials said the missile's guidance and control section, contained classified material. It was designed to fall to earth separately from a dummy warhead.

Furtaw Files for Attorney General

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Joseph E. Furtaw of Lake Wauwanoka, Hillsboro, Mo., filed Monday for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

Winds Reach 160 Miles Per Hour

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)— Hurricane Beulah, a vicious storm that took nearly 30 lives, crashed inland today and spun off killing and destructive tornadoes.

The Weather Bureau said at a late hour that the eye was between San Benito and Harlingen after smashing ashore at the mouth of the Rio Grande, which separates Texas and Mexico.

Hurricanes normally begin a great curve toward the northeast when they hit land and this does not rule out the possibility it might turn into the Gulf of Mexico again.

But it eased the severity of the forecasts for Corpus Christi, 160 miles north of Brownsville, where the Weather Bureau earlier predicted Beulah would hit with storm-driven tides of possible historic heights.

At Corpus Christi, rain and wind hit and some trees toppled, but traffic remained heavy on streets and many business houses remained open.

"She's about the biggest, nastiest storm I've ever seen," said the veteran pilot of a Navy hurricane hunter plane after flying through the eye.

Winds were estimated at 160 miles an hour at one point, but the Weather Bureau said the storm was expected to weaken slowly since some of its perimeter was over land.

Tornadoes spun off by the hurricane caused three deaths at Palacios, midway between Houston and Corpus Christi on Matagorda Bay. Another person was missing and five suffered critical injuries. State police said four tornadoes struck at Palacios, three homes suffered destruction and several automobiles were wrecked.

Tornadoes are a frequent companion of hurricanes and the Weather Bureau said they could be expected as far as 80 miles from the center.

More than 30,000 Texans fled far inland or took refuge in hometown shelters. The flight was orderly and appeared to be mostly cheerful, even taken as fun at first by some. But in neighboring Matamoros, Mexico, officials reported fear and confusion as residents scrambled for shelter.

The presence of her eye over a little bit of land made her course still uncertain.

At one point, the Weather Bureau predicted the eye would strike Corpus Christi, 160 miles up the coast from Brownsville and preparations for the blow already neared completion.

The Weather Bureau issued a tornado warning for the area from Corpus Christi to Baffin Bay, about 30 miles south of Corpus Christi. One tornado was sighted 30 miles south of Corpus Christi.

For comparison, famous hurricane Carla, which struck the Texas coast Sept. 11, 1961, had winds estimated at 175 m.p.h.— only slightly higher than Beulah. Although a half million persons fled inland, 40 persons died and damage was estimated at $500 million.

Ham radio operators reported the tiny town of Valle Hermoso, Mexico, 15 miles south of Brownsville, was almost wiped out as the hurricane winds swept through. Many residents had been evacuated before the storm hit.

No deaths or injuries were reported immediately.

Earlier Beulah had been blamed for 24 deaths— 23 in the eastern Carribbean and Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula and one when a 15-year-old girl was swept from her surfboard by rolling waves at Freeport, Tex., south of Houston.

Beulah uprooted giant palms, battered buildings and flailed Rio Grande Valley citrus groves as she surged to the coast.

The storm's blast knocked out all power in Brownsville. The city's lights blinked out in segments across the city as the storm's fury grew.

Rain fell in heavy bursts. Uprooted trees and ripped branches littered Brownsville streets. Some streets were impassable. Hospitals were on emergency power. One residence caught fire, cause unknown.

The Weather Bureau said tides up to 15 feet and torrential rains threatened dangerous flooding from Brownsville to Palacios, 50 miles northeast of Corpus Christi on Matagorda Bay.

In the 159-mile stretch from Brownsville to Corpus Christi there is little immediately along the coast except pastures of the huge King Ranch, lushly grassed coastal prairie so flat there is no barrier for winds or tides.

Some 15 to 30 miles inland along this unobstructed coastline lie a number of small towns, among them Raymondville, San Manuel, Rachal, Encino, Falfurrias, Kingsville, Driscoll and Robstown.

Corpus Christi is a city of more than 200,000.

Brownsville has a population of more than 50,000 and Matamoros, just across the Rio Grande, a population of about 100,000. Inland up the valley lie towns and farms containing at least another quarter- million people.

At 2:50 a.m. winds in Brownsville were clocked at 104 m.p.h.

Police said their cars were the only ones attempting to traverse Brownsville streets.

They reported several utility poles on fire, "hot lines" everywhere, palm trees ablaze and fallen trees all over the city.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY AND THE MEMORY OF MAN

COMES now Everett McKinley Dirksen, philosopher, to comment on the public's capacity for forgetting, and to suggest that what Gov. George Romney said about brain-washing may not long be remembered. The senator believes that in the months ahead there will be so many things to think about -- and worry about -- that no one will remember, a year from November, what the governor said about the brain-washing of Vietnam.

There is, we grant, a measure of truth in the Dirksen assessment of public reaction. On occasion, anyone in the newspaper business realizes (sometimes to his chagrin) how quickly people do forget. Few of us have anything like total recall, and that is probably just as well. But the memory is a tricky thing, and you have to watch it. Let an editorial be couched in the most glowing phrases, magnificently written and full of understanding, and it seems to fade ever so quickly. Let it be something that displeases a number of people, or let it contain -- as sometimes happens -- a slip of the type or a human error and, alas, it seems to be recalled nigh on to forever.

We mention this, not in the spirit of feeling sorry for ourselves (or for Governor Romney), but rather to point up the distinction which Senator Dirksen apparently did not make. The mind is a great and mysterious instrument and it has the habit of remembering that which it wants to remember and of forgetting that which it prefers to forget. In a sense, this is the mental equivalent of the physical reaction of shock to pain or injury.

THUS, while not wishing to trade phrases with Senator Dirksen at this distance or any other distance, we would have to enter an exception to his thinking. To be sure, there will be many matters to occupy the public thinking in the months ahead, and presumably, the President, if he seeks re-election (which seems rather likely) will discuss them, as will his Republican opponent, whoever he may be.

But unfortunately, Governor Romney -- like the other Republican aspirants -- must consider also the preliminaries, which is to say the business of winning the nomination. We have the impression that within the G. O. P. there are those who are less than enchanted with the governor from Michigan. Are they likely to forget the brain-washing comment? It seems unlikely that they will even if, in the heat of the ultimate campaign, Democrats might prove more considerate (which also seems unlikely).

Other presidential hopefuls, and, for that matter, politicians of less lofty ambition, have cause to regret the public memory. There were remarks by Senator Goldwater, for example, that came back to haunt him. Mr. Johnson is still reminded now and then of his program to economize by turning off the White House lights. Deeds, too, have a way of backfiring, and some dog-lovers may never forgive L. B. J. for the ear-lifting act with the White House beagles.

We are not suggesting that the Romney comment on brain-washing is comparable to these, and it is not for us to predict when -- or if -- it will be forgotten. Governor Romney made a comment that, by now, he probably wishes he hadn't made, and in quiet meditation he may see the problem he has created for himself. But the politician finds it difficult if not impossible to unsay that which has been said -- as, indeed, do we all. The governor can only hope that Senator Dirksen will prove to be an accurate prophet. Having had some experience with the public memory, we are not so certain.

This entire week, September 17-23, is being observed by patriotic citizens everywhere as CONSTITUTION WEEK. On this 180th anniversary of the adoption of our unique Constitution, special attention should be given to the Constitution's sound provisions, high principles, and unsurpassed ideals. Our Constitution is not merely a Bill of Rights; it is a Bill of Obligations. It is a covenant binding citizens, as well as the Government to its support. Let us protect it so that it may continue to protect us.

WELCOME ANNOUNCEMENT

The emergence of Thomas F. Eagleton of St. Louis, Missouri's 38-year-old Lieutenant Governor, as a formal candidate for United States Senator is a welcome announcement, not only because it was predicted several weeks ago by this newspaper but because Eagleton's candidacy should provide a full and frank discussion of the issues involved in the campaign. Although he may not be the only candidate to oppose the incumbent, Ed Long of Bowling Green, Eagleton is certainly one of the strongest candidates who could emerge. Others might well be former Governor John M. Dalton and Assistant Secretary of Treasury True Davis.

Eagleton possesses the capabilities of waging an active campaign, with some of the key issues to revolve around the questions of Vietnam and the rubber-stamping of administration measures. Sen. Long has had little to say about Vietnam in the past; seemingly his sole purpose in the Senate was to line up against illegal wiretapping, a rather safe and politically innocuous position.

But Missouri, represented by a senior U. S. Senator who has gained national and worldwide prominence for his leadership, his considered opinions on important subjects and his unblemished background, deserves a junior U.S. Senator of equal calibre, or at least one capable of attaining it. Tom Eagleton is certainly one of those who can qualify.

We are not about to endorse Eagleton or any other candidate for Senator at the moment. The filing time is a long way off, and most certainly there should be ample opportunity to discuss the issues of the campaign, including the position a U. S. Senator should take with regard to his private law practice and the acceptance of fees therefrom.

Sen. Long appears to have the wholehearted support and endorsement of organized labor, particularly in the St. Louis area. This is not surprising; union leaders have few, if any, better friends in the Senate than Ed Long. Organized labor has an obligation -- as well as a reason -- to support Ed Long.

On the other hand, many Missourians welcome yesterday's Eagleton announcement as an indication there will be a vigorous campaign for the Democratic nomination for the job now held by Sen. Long. We are among that group.

FEDERAL FISCAL POLICY SCORES HITS, MISSES

Federal government attempts to steer the economy have produced a mixed bag of results, says a new Tax Foundation, Inc. study. Much of the result of the directing effort can be called successful; much can be labelled as mitakes, misjudgments or weaknesses, according to Research Publication No. 8, "Alternatives and Issues in Federal Fiscal Policy."

The study takes a look at Federal actions since government assumed its relatively new responsibility of producing "maximum employment, production and purchasing power" under the 1946 Employment Act.

A newly rising young sales manager came up with the ideal system for placing visiting buyers into a more receptive mood. When they reached this city, he arranged parties for them with the lushest call girls from the most expensive house in town, where he had credit. All went smoothly until there was a recession that left him short on funds, and he was unable to pay for the services rendered.

In desperation, as the girls began to dun him, the young sales manager consulted his lawyer.

"We could," suggested the attorney, "notify the press that you committed suicide. Then after a mock funeral, your troubles would be settled. You could leave town until things pick up financially."

So it was done -- with a most impressive funeral. Among the many mourners gathered about the casket were the unpaid call girls. "Poor Henry!" sighed one, a redhead. "I'm certainly going to miss him.

"Happy flying, Henry baby," sorrowed another, a shapely blonde. "I'm sorry it had to be you."

A third girl, a ravishing brunette exclaimed, "Henry, you rat! Committing suicide and leaving me holding the bag for all that money! I'll make sure you're really dead, you rat!" With this she drew a revolver from her bag and pointed it into the open coffin.

"Baby, take it easy," he shrieked, "I'll pay you!"

DELEGATE VOTING IS BEST

In the current debate over reform of the Electoral College, it should be remembered that the direct vote system of elections has been tested and found good. The direct vote system of electing the President would be greatly inferior to delegate voting greatly inferior to delegate voting

Any delegate voting system is better than direct voting. None would feel safe in the choice of the Secretary of Defense or an Army Chief of Staff by direct vote. In spite of the widespread deep disappointment with the present U.S. Supreme Court, there has never been a time in the life of our Republic that the people would have tolerated choice of a Supreme Court Justice by the direct vote.

Members of the Catholic faith venerate their Pope, who is elected by Cardinals serving as electors as effectively as presidential electors serve. The laity would never neverate a Pope who was elected by their own direct vote. When the heads of Protestant denominations are selected, it would be impractical to try to elect them by a direct vote of the laity; and few of the members of any denomination would have confidence in a head of their denomination elected by direct vote.

Nomiating committees are nearly always employed in the selection of the presidents of large corporations and associations. Donors to great universities and the students attending them would have little confidence in a chancellor or university president elected by direct vote.

The best way to reform the Electoral College is through adoption of a constitutional amendment placing the Congressional District Plan in effect. HLH

BOSTON (AP) — Supermarkets have become so big and crowded that many have established one-way traffic in their aisles. This can cause tremendous problems, especially for unwary males who are unfamiliar with supermarkets anyway.

Like for Ted Lumpke who was 39 when his wife got sick and he had to go to a supermarket for the first time. As soon as he got his grocery push cart he made a wrong turn down a one-way aisle.

Women began shouting at him: "One way, one way" and giving him dirty looks as they steered their push carts past him.

The store manager came rushing down the aisle waving his arms. "You can't push your push cart east on this aisle," he said. "This is a west aisle."

"Where are the eggs?" Lumpke asked.

"Row G, Section A, Shelf 3, eggs, beans and bacon," the manager said.

Lumpke backed out and went to Row G, but it was one way west at his end and he wanted to go east. He went around the store and came to Row G at its other end and there he saw a sign saying Row G was one way east.

That is impossible, Lumpke thought, because if Row G were one way east at the west end and one way west at the east end, then nobody could get into Row G.

Lumpke found the store manager. "There's something wrong with the signs on Row G," he said. "They're west at the east end and east at the west end."

"That's impossible," the manager said.

"Come and look," Lumpke said.

The manager came, looked and saw the signs.

"It means nobody can get into Row G," Lumpke said. "And what's worse, it means anybody who might be in Row G right now can't get out."

The manager thought about it. "Yes," he said. "But, of course, that's impossible," and he walked away.

So Lumpke threw caution to the wind and pushed his push cart in violation of the west sign east on Row G.

The shelves were almost bare and covered with dust. There was dust on the floor and foot prints, and grass had grown up in places between the broken linoleum.

The sign mixup must have occurred months ago, Lumpke thought, even years.

He pushed his cart over the cracked floor between the stripped and dirty shelves, the thrill of the explorer in his heart. He found the starved, emaciated woman against an empty carton of beans.

"Thank God," she said. "They've fixed the signs. I'm the lone survivor of a shopping party trapped in 1961 when the signs were mixed up. I've been existing on eggs, bacon and beans for six years."

"But the signs haven't been changed," Lumpke said.

The woman's thin, cracked face turned white. "But how did you get in?" she asked.

"I went east at the west end," Lumpke said, and the woman could only look at him in wonder.

"Come with me," Lumpke said. He helped the poor woman to the west end of the aisle where they met the store manager.

"Here," the manager said, "you can't come out. This is the west end of Row G, an east aisle."

"But if we can't come out by going west at the east end or east at the west end," Lumpke said, "then we shall have to stay here forever."

"I can't help that," the manager said.

"Without a chaperon?" Lumpke asked indignantly. "In a supermarket, the last bastion of middle-class morality?"

The manager, realizing Lumpke had appealed to a higher law, let them out. "The pure of heart always win in a supermarket," Lumpke said.

"I hope you plan to pay for the eggs, bacon and beans," the manager told the woman.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The President's difficulty in conducting foreign affairs while Congress looks over his shoulder, was never better illustrated than in the debate over purchasing 16 wooden minesweepers from Britain in return for Britain's purchasing $2.5 billion worth of airplanes from us.

Woodrow Wilson had the problem after World War I, and the League of Nations was defeated as a result. The defeat paved the way for World War II.

Truman had the problem after World War II, but, thanks to such enlightened GOP leaders as the late Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, he was able to win out over Republican isolationists.

Eisenhower did not have the problem, chiefly because Lyndon Johnson, then Senate majority leader, cooperated with the White House right down the line on foreign policy. Even when Ike came back from the abortive 1960 Summit Conference in Paris after the U-2 incident upset his move to end the cold war, LBJ backed him up.

Johnson has continued Ike's policy of improving relations with the Communist Bloc, but now faces bitter Congressional opposition over relaxing trade barriers. The current battle is over whether the export-import bank can loan money to facilitate trade with countries which have aided North Vietnam. Actually the Ex-Im Bank loans money to U.S. companies to promote U.S. exports, and the ban proposed by Congressional isolationists would chiefly hurt American trade.

Johnson has to worry not only about the Senate, which under the Constitution has a right to "advise and consent-- on foreign policy, but about the House of Representatives, which has no such right.

HOUSE JUMPS TRACES

It was the House of Representatives, not the Senate, which slapped down the British over the relatively small but very significant 16 wooden minesweeper deal.

When Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., once involved with Bobby Baker in a flagrant conflict of interest, introduced the "kick-the-British" amendment, Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla., the majority leader, and Rep. George Mahon, D - Tex., Appropriations Committee Chairman, argued that this was a slap at our best friend.

They were howled down by Byrnes, Gerry Ford, R-Mich., and a combination of hawks and isolationists.

Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., countered that the minesweeper contract was part of $325 million in arms purchases the U.S. planned to make from Britain partly to offset the $2.5 billion the British will spend here for the F111. Sikes argued that the United States should stand by its commitment. But GOP leader Ford raised the phony idea that the House must be consulted on foreign policy.

"It is our responsibility in the Congress as a co-equal branch of the government to be fully advised before there is any agreement one way or another. In this case we were not consulted and therefore are not bound."

Proclaimed Byrnes: "Involved is the question or whether Congress will turn over to Secretary McNamara the responsibility given to us by the Constitution to provice and maintain the Navy. I ask that Congress assume its constitutional responsibility . . . I ask that we save Secretary McNamara from another needless risk involving the security of this country."

Sikes, hotly disputing this, explained that security wasn't involved, that the Constitution gave no foreign affairs power to the House.

"If we renege on this," he said, "the British will refuse to abide by their end of the bargain. And U. S. labor will lose eight times as much as it gains."

"We cannot live in a world all our own," said Sikes. "We must get along with other people. We have to trade with them. Trade can never be altogether one way. We have the better of the deal, but regardless let us not repudiate our nation's word.

"Let us not forget that we are dealing with one of the very few major countries which will stand with us in most of the questions which confront us in today's troubled world."

However, Sikes, Mahon and Albert pleaded in vain. The isolationists won. Later, because Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the majority leader, was in Japan, the Senate, under Democratic Whip Russell Long, D-La., gave in without a fight.

THEIR NO. 1 CROSS

Now that President De Gaulle has become the No. 1 cross which the United States has to bear in Europe, it's interesting to recall the famous Churchillian wisecrack about De Gaulle during the days when Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt first dealt with him.

Kay Halle, a close friend of Churchill, gives this version of the wisecrack in her recent book "Irrepressible Churchill."

At the Casablanca Conference in 1943, FDR remarked to Churchill, "I do now know what to do with De Gaulle."

"I am no more enamoured of him than you are," replied Churchill. "But I would rather have him on the committee than strutting about as a combination of Joan of Arc and Clemenceau."

Later Churchill said to his aide, Brendan Bracken, "You may have your single cross to bear, but I -- I have the double cross of Lorraine."

"But remember, Winston," said Bracken, "he thinks of himself as the reincarnation of St. Joan."

"Yes, but MY bishops won't burn him," said Churchill.

Cosa Nostra Combines Reach For Control of Nation's Airports.

New York: -- Everything is up to date in New York City -- including the Cosa Nostra. It even has a generation gap. Its "younger toughs look to the future -- like supersonic space freight.

They well know that the airports of tomorrow will serve as did the waterfronts of yesterday. Soon aerial cargo ships will be hurtling through the skies carrying ten freight cars. And the crime syndicates want control of the hauling and access to the runways of the nation's future transportation just as they once controlled and shook down the nation's docks.

So, troops, captains and dons of at least two Cosa Nostra combines, those of the Luchese family and the Carlo Gambino crowd, and trying to stake out priorities in the airfreight haulage business.

Weirdly enough, these are the same crowds with which Jimmy Hoffa used to run. Naturally, they're trying to move into the power vaccum created by Hoffa's move from the lush Washington Woodner Hotel to Lewisburg penitentiary.

Who would know better about such a vacuum than Hoffa's old comrade, the suburbanite extortioner Johnny Dio and the latter's chief, Tony (Ducks) Corallo, who may succed the late, unlamented Thomas (Three Fingers Brown) Luchese.

The Luchese combine appears to have decided to homestead at Kennedy airport. They haven't ignored the other metropolitan air depots, according to state and federal investigators. But Kennedy is the world's biggest. If the mob cracks that one, they'll push on easily to freight runways across the nation.

They "want in" on the delivery system, the unions involved in the road haulage and the freight forwarders' associations feeding the massive airport. They seem to have succeeded.

For more than a year now the State Commission of Investigation (SCI) has been probing the infiltration of the mob. And the commission now needs just a few more months to crack the operation wide open.

Specifically the SCI describes its mission on this front thus:

"Of particular concern is racketeer infiltration of freight handling, trucking and union activities at various airports in the metropolitan area. As part of the investigation of organized criminal activities in the field of legitimate business, the commission seeks to ascertain: (1) the extent and manner in which individual racketeers and organized criminal groups have infiltrated, exerted unlawful influence or control over the airfreight trucking field; (2) various labor unions active in the airfreight trucking field, and (3) various trade associations identified with the airfreight trucking field."

The investigators found what the commission describes as though criminal elements on the payrolls of some truckers. The muscle men are listed as salesmen, though the commission learned that they "had never produced any business for the corporation. In fact, there was no evidence that they had devoted any time to the company's business."

One of these "underworld" figures on the ghost payroll was an ex-con who fronted for Dio during the Hoffa Damon and Pythias days. The muscle man is Joe Curcio, once an officer in a teamsters "paper" local and Dio's regional director.

Curcio, a quaint fellow with a prison record and reputation for making bad moonshine in an old still, worked with Dio, then under the protection of the entire Luchese group. This was some 15 years ago. They dreamed of using their few local unions as the base for first seizing power in New York and then exploiting this infrastructure as a launching pad for power over the entire behemoth Teamsters brotherhood. They failed. But that's another story.

Now Curcio and his men, using the old technique, have attempted to move into the future again. Curcio, according to the commision, knows of racketeering infiltration of freight handling, trucking and union activity. He has been on the payroll of a firm know as Air Freight Haulage Co. The commission believes it now knows what Curcio knows. But its commissioners are so tight-lipped, their own dentists coulnd't open then up.

But it is certain that Curcio would not move without the approval of the Luchese dons. It is certain that the Gambino crowd is in this, too. Ir is positive that the Cosa Nostra stretches its modernity to airprots outside this metropolitan area. It is certain that "the mob is watching Kennedy Airport, through which comes narcotics from Turkey via Marseilles and Sicily; and smuggled goods bound for Mexico and Latin America."

It is convinced that the multibillion dollar airfreight haulage industry is in danger. It plans to move in the next 90 days so that the Cosa Nostra does not become as gory an institution at the airdromes as the mob did on the waterfront.

The commission plans to shake them out before the Mafia shakes down the future.

Governor Romney made a comment that, by now, he probably wishes he hadn't made, and in quiet meditation he may see the problem he has created for himself. But the politician finds it difficult if not impossible to unsay that which has been said -- as, indeed, do we all. The governor can only hope that Senator Dirksen will prove to be an accurate prophet. Having had some experience with the public memory, we are not so certain.

This entire week, September 17-23, is being observed by patriotic citizens everywhere as CONSTITUTION WEEK. On this 180th anniversary of the adoption of our unique Constitution, special attention should be given to the Constitution's sound provisions, high principles, and unsurpassed ideals. Our Constitution is not merely a Bill of Rights; it is a Bill of Obligations. It is a covenant binding citizens, as well as the Government to its support. Let us protect it so that it may continue to protect us.

WELCOME ANNOUNCEMENT

The emergence of Thomas F. Eagleton of St. Louis, Missouri's 38-year-old Lieutenant Governor, as a formal candidate for United States Senator is a welcome announcement, not only because it was predicted several weeks ago by this newspaper but because Eagleton's candidacy should provide a full and frank discussion of the issues involved in the campaign. Although he may not be the only candidate to oppose the incumbent, Ed Long of Bowling Green, Eagleton is certainly one of the strongest candidates who could emerge. Others might well be former Governor John M. Dalton and Assistant Secretary of Treasury True Davis.

Eagleton possesses the capabilities of waging an active campaign, with some of the key issues to revolve around the questions of Vietnam and the rubber-stamping of administration measures. Sen. Long has had little to say about Vietnam in the past; seemingly his sole purpose in the Senate was to line up against illegal wiretapping, a rather safe and politically innocuous position.

But Missouri, represented by a senior U. S. Senator who has gained national and world-wide prominence for his leadership, his considered opinions on important subjects and his unblemished background, deserves a junior U.S. Senator of equal calibre, or at least one capable of attaining it. Tom Eagleton is certainly one of those who can qualify.

We are not about to endorse Eagleton or any other candidate for Senator at the moment. The filing time is a long way off, and most certainly there should be ample opportunity to discuss the issues of the campaign, including the position a U. S. Senator should take with regard to his private law practice and the acceptance of fees therefrom.

Sen. Long appears to have the wholehearted support and endorsement of organized labor, particularly in the St. Louis area. This is not surprising; union leaders have few, if any, better friends in the Senate than Ed Long. Organized labor has an obligation -- as well as a reason -- to support Ed Long.

On the other hand, many Missourians welcome yesterday's Eagleton announcement as an indication there will be a vigorous campaign for the Democratic nomination for the job now held by Sen. Long. We are among that group.

"How long have you been driving without a taillight, buddy?" demanded the policeman.

The driver jumped out, ran to the rear of his car, and gave a low moan. His distress was so great that the cop was moved to ease up on him a bit.

"Aw, come now," he said, "You don't have to take it so hard. It's not that serious."

One particular afternoon, the doctor in charge of the ward left our neophyte Nightingale to care for a middle-aged executive, secure in the knowledge that this man's affliction was uncomfortable but minor, and the treatment prescribed was too simple to be misunderstood. But a few minutes later, the doctor was shocked to see his patient running down the hall, white hospital robe billowing out behind him howling at the top of his lungs, with the nurse chasing after him carrying a basin of steaming water.

"No, no, Miss Smith!" exclaimed the doctor, as the pair rushed past him. "I told you to prick his boil!"

FEDERAL FISCAL POLICY SCORES HITS, MISSES

Federal government attempts to steer the economy have produced a mixed bag of results, says a new Tax Foundation, Inc. study. Much of the result of the directing effort can be called successful; much can be labelled as mitakes, misjudgments or weaknesses, according to Research Publication No. 8, "Alternatives and Issues in Federal Fiscal Policy."

The study takes a look at Federal actions since government assumed its relatively new responsibility of producing "maximum employment, production and purchasing power" under the 1946 Employment Act.

A newly rising young sales manager came up with the ideal system for placing visiting buyers into a more receptive mood. When they reached this city, he arranged parties for them with the lushest call girls from the most expensive house in town, where he had credit. All went smoothly until there was a recession that left him short on funds, and he was unable to pay for the services rendered.

In desperation, as the girls began to dun him, the young sales manager consulted his lawyer.

"We could," suggested the attorney, "notify the press that you committed suicide. Then after a mock funeral, your troubles would be settled. You could leave town until things pick up financially."

So it was done -- with a most impressive funeral. Among the many mourners gathered about the casket were the unpaid call girls. "Poor Henry!" sighed one, a redhead. "I'm certainly going to miss him.

"Happy flying, Henry baby," sorrowed another, a shapely blonde. "I'm sorry it had to be you."

A third girl, a ravishing brunette exclaimed, "Henry, you rat! Committing suicide and leaving me holding the bag for all that money! I'll make sure you're really dead, you rat!" With this she drew a revolver from her bag and pointed it into the open coffin.

"Baby, take it easy," he shrieked, "I'll pay you!"

DELEGATE VOTING IS BEST

In the current debate over reform of the Electoral College, it should be remembered that the direct vote system of elections has been tested and found good. The direct vote system of electing the President would be greatly inferior to delegate voting greatly inferior to delegate voting.

Any delegate voting system is better than direct voting. None would feel safe in the choice of the Secretary of Defense or an Army Chief of Staff by direct vote. In spite of the widespread deep disappointment with the present U.S. Supreme Court, there has never been a time in the life of our Republic that the people would have tolerated choice of a Supreme Court Justice by the direct vote.

Members of the Catholic faith venerate their Pope, who is elected by Cardinals serving as electors as effectively as presidential electors serve. The laity would never neverate a Pope who was elected by their own direct vote. When the heads of Protestant denominations are selected, it would be impractical to try to elect them by a direct vote of the laity; and few of the members of any denomination would have confidence in a head of their denomination elected by direct vote.

Nomiating committees are nearly always employed in the selection of the presidents of large corporations and associations. Donors to great universities and the students attending them would have little confidence in a chancellor or university president elected by direct vote.

The best way to reform the Electoral College is through adoption of a constitutional amendment placing the Congressional District Plan in effect. HLH

BOSTON (AP) -- Supermarkets have become so big and crowded that many have established one-way traffic in their aisles. This can cause tremendous problems, especially for unwary males who are unfamiliar with supermarkets anyway.

Like for Ted Lumpke who was 39 when his wife got sick and he had to go to a supermarket for the first time. As soon as he got his grocery push cart he made a wrong turn down a one-way aisle.

Women began shouting at him: "One way, one way" and giving him dirty looks as they steered their push carts past him.

The store manager came rushing down the aisle waving his arms. "You can't push your push cart east on this aisle," he said. "This is a west aisle."

"Where are the eggs?" Lumpke asked.

"Row G, Section A, Shelf 3, eggs, beans and bacon," the manager said.

Lumpke backed out and went to Row G, but it was one way west at his end and he wanted to go east. He went around the store and came to Row G at its other end and there he saw a sign saying Row G was one way east.

That is impossible, Lumpke thought, because if Row G were one way east at the west end and one way west at the east end, then nobody could get into Row G.

Lumpke found the store manager. "There's something wrong with the signs on Row G," he said. "They're west at the east end and east at the west end."

"That's impossible," the manager said.

"Come and look," Lumpke said.

The manager came, looked and saw the signs.

"It means nobody can get into Row G," Lumpke said. "And what's worse, it means anybody who might be in Row G right now can't get out."

The manager thought about it. "Yes," he said. "But, of course, that's impossible," and he walked away.

So Lumpke threw caution to the wind and pushed his push cart in violation of the west sign east on Row G.

The shelves were almost bare and covered with dust. There was dust on the floor and foot prints, and grass had grown up in places between the broken linoleum.

The sign mixup must have occurred months ago, Lumpke thought, even years.

He pushed his cart over the cracked floor between the stripped and dirty shelves, the thrill of the explorer in his heart. He found the starved, emaciated woman against an empty carton of beans.

"Thank God," she said. "They've fixed the signs. I'm the lone survivor of a shopping party trapped in 1961 when the signs were mixed up. I've been existing on eggs, bacon and beans for six years."

"But the signs haven't been changed," Lumpke said.

The woman's thin, cracked face turned white. "But how did you get in?" she asked.

"I went east at the west end," Lumpke said, and the woman could only look at him in wonder.

"Come with me," Lumpke said. He helped the poor woman to the west end of the aisle where they met the store manager.

"Here," the manager said, "you can't come out. This is the west end of Row G, an east aisle."

"But if we can't come out by going west at the east end or east at the west end," Lumpke said, "then we shall have to stay here forever."

"I can't help that," the manager said.

"Without a chaperon?" Lumpke asked indignantly. "In a supermarket, the last bastion of middle-class morality?"

The manager, realizing Lumpke had appealed to a higher law, let them out. "The pure of heart always win in a supermarket," Lumpke said.

"I hope you plan to pay for the eggs, bacon and beans," the manager told the woman.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The President's difficulty in conducting foreign affairs while Congress looks over his shoulder, was never better illustrated than in the debate over purchasing 16 wooden minesweepers from Britain in return for Britain's purchasing $2.5 billion worth of airplanes from us.

Woodrow Wilson had the problem after World War I, and the League of Nations was defeated as a result. The defeat paved the way for World War II.

Truman had the problem after World War II, but, thanks to such enlightened GOP leaders as the late Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, he was able to win out over Republican isolationists.

Eisenhower did not have the problem, chiefly because Lyndon Johnson, then Senate majority leader, cooperated with the White House right down the line on foreign policy. Even when Ike came back from the abortive 1960 Summit Conference in Paris after the U-2 incident upset his move to end the cold war, LBJ backed him up.

Johnson has continued Ike's policy of improving relations with the Communist Bloc, but now faces bitter Congressional opposition over relaxing trade barriers. The current battle is over whether the export-import bank can loan money to facilitate trade with countries which have aided North Vietnam. Actually the Ex-Im Bank loans money to U.S. companies to promote U.S. exports, and the ban proposed by Congressional isolationists would chiefly hurt American trade.

Johnson has to worry not only about the Senate, which under the Constitution has a right to "advise and consent" on foreign policy, but about the House of Representatives, which has no such right.

HOUSE JUMPS TRACES

It was the House of Representatives, not the Senate, which slapped down the British over the relatively small but very significant 16 wooden minesweeper deal.

When Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., once involved with Bobby Baker in a flagrant conflict of interest, introduced the "kick-the-British" amendment, Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla., the majority leader, and Rep. George Mahon, D - Tex., Appropriations Committee Chairman, argued that this was a slap at our best friend.

They were howled down by Byrnes, Gerry Ford, R-Mich., and a combination of hawks and isolationists.

Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., countered that the minesweeper contract was part of $325 million in arms purchases the U.S. planned to make from Britain partly to offset the $2.5 billion the British will spend here for the F111. Sikes argued that the United States should stand by its commitment. But GOP leader Ford raised the phony idea that the House must be consulted on foreign policy.

"It is our responsibility in the Congress as a co-equal branch of the government to be fully advised before there is any agreement one way or another. In this case we were not consulted and therefore are not bound."

Proclaimed Byrnes: "Involved is the question or whether Congress will turn over to Secretary McNamara the responsibility given to us by the Constitution to provice and maintain the Navy. I ask that Congress assume its constitutional responsibility . . . I ask that we save Secretary McNamara from another needless risk involving the security of this country."

Sikes, hotly disputing this, explained that security wasn't involved, that the Constitution gave no foreign affairs power to the House.

"If we renege on this," he said, "the British will refuse to abide by their end of the bargain. And U. S. labor will lose eight times as much as it gains."

"We cannot live in a world all our own," said Sikes. "We must get along with other people. We have to trade with them. Trade can never be altogether one way. We have the better of the deal, but regardless let us not repudiate our nation's word.

"Let us not forget that we are dealing with one of the very few major countries which will stand with us in most of the questions which confront us in today's troubled world."

However, Sikes, Mahon and Albert pleaded in vain. The isolationists won. Later, because Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the majority leader, was in Japan, the Senate, under Democratic Whip Russell Long, D-La., gave in without a fight.

THEIR NO. 1 CROSS

Now that President De Gaulle has become the No. 1 cross which the United States has to bear in Europe, it's interesting to recall the famous Churchillian wisecrack about De Gaulle during the days when Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt first dealt with him.

Kay Halle, a close friend of Churchill, gives this version of the wisecrack in her recent book "Irrepressible Churchill."

At the Casablanca Conference in 1943, FDR remarked to Churchill, "I do now know what to do with De Gaulle."

"I am no more enamoured of him than you are," replied Churchill. "But I would rather have him on the committee than strutting about as a combination of Joan of Arc and Clemenceau."

Later Churchill said to his aide, Brendan Bracken, "You may have your single cross to bear, but I -- I have the double cross of Lorraine."

"But remember, Winston," said Bracken, "he thinks of himself as the reincarnation of St. Joan."

"Yes, but MY bishops won't burn him," said Churchill.

Cosa Nostra Combines Reach For Control of Nation's Airports.

New York: -- Everything is up to date in New York City -- including the Cosa Nostra. It even has a generation gap. Its "younger toughs look to the future -- like supersonic space freight.

They well know that the airports of tomorrow will serve as did the waterfronts of yesterday. Soon aerial cargo ships will be hurtling through the skies carrying ten freight cars. And the crime syndicates want control of the hauling and access to the runways of the nation's future transportation just as they once controlled and shook down the nation's docks.

So, troops, captains and dons of at least two Cosa Nostra combines, those of the Luchese family and the Carlo Gambino crowd, and trying to stake out priorities in the airfreight haulage business.

Weirdly enough, these are the same crowds with which Jimmy Hoffa used to run. Naturally, they're trying to move into the power vaccum created by Hoffa's move from the lush Washington Woodner Hotel to Lewisburg penitentiary.

Who would know better about such a vacuum than Hoffa's old comrade, the suburbanite extortioner Johnny Dio and the latter's chief, Tony (Ducks) Corallo, who may succed the late, unlamented Thomas (Three Fingers Brown) Luchese.

The Luchese combine appears to have decided to homestead at Kennedy airport. They haven't ignored the other metropolitan air depots, according to state and federal investigators. But Kennedy is the world's biggest. If the mob cracks that one, they'll push on easily to freight runways across the nation.

They "want in" on the delivery system, the unions involved in the road haulage and the freight forwarders' associations feeding the massive airport. They seem to have succeeded.

For more than a year now the State Commission of Investigation (SCI) has been probing the infiltration of the mob. And the commission now needs just a few more months to crack the operation wide open.

Specifically the SCI describes its mission on this front thus:

"Of particular concern is racketeer infiltration of freight handling, trucking and union activities at various airports in the metropolitan area. As part of the investigation of organized criminal activities in the field of legitimate business, the commission seeks to ascertain: (1) the extent and manner in which individual racketeers and organized criminal groups have infiltrated, exerted unlawful influence or control over the airfreight trucking field; (2) various labor unions active in the airfreight trucking field, and (3) various trade associations identified with the airfreight trucking field."

The investigators found what the commission describes as though criminal elements on the payrolls of some truckers. The muscle men are listed as salesmen, though the commission learned that they "had never produced any business for the corporation. In fact, there was no evidence that they had devoted any time to the company's business."

One of these "underworld" figures on the ghost payroll was an ex-con who fronted for Dio during the Hoffa Damon and Pythias days. The muscle man is Joe Curcio, once an officer in a teamsters "paper" local and Dio's regional director.

Curcio, a quaint fellow with a prison record and reputation for making bad moonshine in an old still, worked with Dio, then under the protection of the entire Luchese group. This was some 15 years ago. They dreamed of using their few local unions as the base for first seizing power in New York and then exploiting this infrastructure as a launching pad for power over the entire behemoth Teamsters brotherhood. They failed. But that's another story.

Now Curcio and his men, using the old technique, have attempted to move into the future again. Curcio, according to the commision, knows of racketeering infiltration of freight handling, trucking and union activity. He has been on the payroll of a firm know as Air Freight Haulage Co. The commission believes it now knows what Curcio knows. But its commissioners are so tight-lipped, their own dentists coulnd't open then up.

But it is certain that Curcio would not move without the approval of the Luchese dons. It is certain that the Gambino crowd is in this, too. Ir is positive that the Cosa Nostra stretches its modernity to airprots outside this metropolitan area. It is certain that "the mob is watching Kennedy Airport, through which comes narcotics from Turkey via Marseilles and Sicily; and smuggled goods bound for Mexico and Latin America."

It is convinced that the multibillion dollar airfreight haulage industry is in danger. It plans to move in the next 90 days so that the Cosa Nostra does not become as gory an institution at the airdromes as the mob did on the waterfront.

The commission plans to shake them out before the Mafia shakes down the future.

Monroe, Mrs. Clyde Barnes, Mrs. Fred Tope, Sr. and Mrs. C. J. Stevens.

The next meeting will be Oct. 12 at the home of Mrs. Fred Tope, Jr., at 7 p.m.

The meeting was adjourned by the president and a prayer for peace was read.

St. Francis Xavier P-TA Plans Supper

The St. Francis Xavier school Parent-Teacher association met Sept. 12 in the school cafeteria at 8 p.m. The Rev. Fr. Robert Schumacher opened the meeting with prayer. Thirty five parents were present.

Also present were the Rev. Fr. James Sullivan, and teachers Sister Mary Ruth, Sister Mary Ursulyn and Sister Mary Calasantiais.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Frank Tull. She reported outstanding bills to be paid.

Those volunteering to take charge of lunch money were Mrs. William Yarnell, Mrs. Jack Horton, Mrs. Bill Lewis and Mrs. Lincoln Scherer.

Mrs. James Wyatt volunterred to take charge of the cafeteria account.

A new blackboard will be purchased for the first and second grade room. The P-TA voted to purchase materials needed for classrooms.

Plans for the annual chili supper Oct. 29 in the school cafeteria were made. Mrs. Raymond Leible and Mrs. Tommy Marshall will be in charge of tickets. Mrs. Charles Waters will be in charge of quilt tickets. Mrs. Theon Grojean will be in charge of publicity.

A note will be sent to the Knights of Columbus thanking them for painting the school cafeteria.

The P-TA voted to meet the second Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria.

Sister Mary Ruth thanked everyone for the pantry shower held for the Sisters.

Dr. Joe Blanton will investigate having the school students' vision and hearing checked.

The Rev. Fr. Schumacher spoke on the relationship between the teachers, parents and children.

The Rev. Fr. Schumacher led the closing prayer.

After the meeting was adjourned, parents were asked to look at a display of books that are being used by the students in school.

Mrs. Tull, Mrs. Grojean and Mrs. Gene Nunnelee served refreshments. The first and second grade room won room count

Circle to Assist Red Cross

The Lewis-Inman circle of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Tanner Street Church of God met at 7:30 p.m. Thursday with Mrs. Tom Sims.

Mrs. Horace Byrd, president, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Mary Klutts led the opening prayer. Secretary Mrs. Lloyd Treece and Treasurer Mr. Kenneth Bailey gave reports.

The missionary education director, Mrs. Merl Keefer, presented the lesson using poster pictures and a map. The theme was "Understanding Persons of Other Faiths." A true or false questionaire on religious faiths was given to each one present.

The devotional Director, Mrs. Vernon Guttenfelder, based her remarks on a scripture reading from Isaiah. She led the group as it sang, "What a Mighty God We Serve." Mrs. Ivan Gimlin led the closing prayer.

The society agreed to assist with the Red Cross Shop Early--Vietnam 1967, program 59. The purpose is to give each U. S. serviceman a ditty big of useful items as a Christmas gifts. Scott county has a minimum quota of 400 bags.

Others attending the meeting were Mrs. Martha Hogue, Mrs. O. C. Lewis, Mrs. Florace McClain, Mrs. Mac McGahey, Mrs. Andy Hill and Mrs. Bob Tyrone. Mrs. Mary Sisson and Mrs. Doyle Edwards were invited guests.

Cake, soft drinks and coffee were served.

The next meeting will be Oct. 12 at the home of Mrs. Fred Tope, Jr., at 7 p.m.

The meeting was adjourned by the president and a prayer for peace was read.

St. Francis Xavier P-TA Plans Supper

The St. Francis Xavier school Parent-Teacher association met Sept. 12 in the school cafeteria at 8 p.m. The Rev. Fr. Robert Schumacher opened the meeting with prayer. Thirty five parents were present.

Also present were the Rev. Fr. James Sullivan, and teachers Sister Mary Ruth, Sister Mary Ursulyn and Sister Mary Calasantiais.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Frank Tull. She reported outstanding bills to be paid.

Those volunteering to take charge of lunch money were Mrs. William Yarnell, Mrs. Jack Horton, Mrs. Bill Lewis and Mrs. Lincoln Scherer.

Mrs. James Wyatt volunterred to take charge of the cafeteria account.

A new blackboard will be purchased for the first and second grade room. The P-TA voted to purchase materials needed for classrooms.

Plans for the annual chili supper Oct. 29 in the school cafeteria were made. Mrs. Raymond Leible and Mrs. Tommy Marshall will be in charge of tickets. Mrs. Charles Waters will be in charge of quilt tickets. Mrs. Theon Grojean will be in charge of publicity.

A note will be sent to the Knights of Columbus thanking them for painting the school cafeteria.

The P-TA voted to meet the second Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria.

Sister Mary Ruth thanked everyone for the pantry shower held for the Sisters.

Dr. Joe Blanton will investigate having the school students' vision and hearing checked.

The Rev. Fr. Schumacher spoke on the relationship between the teachers, parents and children.

The Rev. Fr. Schumacher led the closing prayer.

After the meeting was adjourned, parents were asked to look at a display of books that are being used by the students in school.

Mrs. Tull, Mrs. Grojean and Mrs. Gene Nunnelee served refreshments. The first and second grade room won room count

Northern Conference Clash At Charleston

by JIM KLEIN

CHARLESTON -- After two successful home football outings, the Sikeston high Bulldogs go on the road Friday night.

Sikeston travels to Charleston to meet the Bluejays in one of the oldest and traditional football games in Southeast Missouri. The game is set for 7:30 p.m. and will be played at the now junior high school.

The Jays hope to turn the tables on the Bulldogs as they did in 1965, scoring an upset victory by a 6-0 margin. Last year they beat the Jays 28-0.

Sikeston and Charleston each have won two games this year. Sikeston defeated Chaffee, 27-0, and Perryville, 20-14. Charleston whipped East Prairie, 28-0, and Metropolis, Ill., 41-0.

Both teams are ready for the game. Sikeston's King Sidwell has taken over for injured defensive End Gary Long.

When the Bluejays and Bulldogs meet on the field Friday night, the teams will not only engage in a northern division conference bout but the winner undoubtedly will have a better shot at the title.

The triumph will enable the victor to keep in the running with the pre-season favorite, Poplar Bluff. The Mules venture to Perryville this week.

Charleston has been giving Sikeston trouble with the exception of last years game. Two years ago the Jays edged the Dogs, 6-0, which ended a Sikeston 17-year winning hex. In 1963 Sikeston won, 21-14, as did they in 1962, 13-7.

Coach William Sapp also said that he feels the team will be ready for the Bluejays for two reasons. "First, the boys weren't satisfied with the job they did n satisfied with the job they did in the Perryville Pirate game and they are determined to do better," he said.

Coach Herbert Marshall of the Jays feels "the team that gets the break will win as has usually been the story between Charleston and Sikeston"

"The Sikeston line outweighs us by about 30 pounds per man and has the two fastest boys in the conference in their backfield," remarked Coach Marshall.

But he also believes that third-year letterman, Halfback Everett Holley, and Quarterback Charlie Babb, who he considers "the best in the conference," will equalize Sikeston advantages.

Coach Sapp has respect for Charleston because he believes they "are the toughest passing team Sikeston will encounter this season."

"Art Jackson probably will replace Pat Hart is starting defensive left halfback. Ed Felker's safety spot will be turned over to Terry Bryant enabling Felker to concentrate more on his fullback duties," noted Sapp.

The Bluejays will be led by second team All-Conference Quarterback and Halfback Holley. Babb threw four touchdown passes and Holley scored four times in leading Charleston past Metropolis Friday.

Sikeston is led by first team All-Conference End Mike Garner and honorable mention Fullback Felker. Felker and Dennis Snelling were the workhorses in Friday night's victory over Perryville.

The Sikeston-Charleston game should be one of the better contests of the season.

Seniors' Tourney

At Jackson Saturday

JACKSON -- Members of the Southeast Missouri Seniors' Golf Association will hold its fourth annual golf tournament this weekend at Kimbeland Country Club.

According to C. C. Scott, Sikeston, association secretary, the club totals 90 members.

Golfers will be divided into age groups and will tour the course with handicaps subtracted for the final score.

Players will shoot for low gross and low nets.

Each golf club in Southeast Missouri is represented in the seniors' association.

While the men are golfing the women will be entertained at the Cape Girardeau golf course with golf and bridge.

Sikeston members are Scott, J. F. Cox, Melvin Dace, Oren Dahl, Bridwell Crenshaw, L. J. Flewelling, Ed Johnson, Duree Medley and T. E. Stallings.

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Rock, attorney for the New Jersey Americans of the American Basketball Association, said Tuesday the club has started legal action to make 6-foot-10 LeRoy Ellis play for the ABA club instead of the Baltimore Bullets in the older National Basketball Association.

Stanford has beaten San Jose State in football each of the last six years.

Scott Fourth At Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF -- Four golfers from Charleston and one from Sikeston and Malden placed in the Poplar Bluff Westwood Hills Country Club tournament over the weekend.

Virgil Powell of Malden shot a 136, good for a tournament record and the tournament title.

J. D. Byrne of Charleston tied for fifth in the championship division with a 145 but lost by a toss of the coin.

Charleston's Tom Hess shot a 148 to cap the championship in class A and Bob Byrne, also of Charleston placed fourth with a 154. He lost a flip of the coin for third place.

In class B play, Sikeston's Clarence Scott shot a 159 and tied for third but lost the flip. Bob Coon of Charleston placed second in B with a 155 score in the 36-hole tournament Saturday and Sunday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Oswaldo Rosado completed a $2,530 daily double at Aqueduct race track with Celtic Wind on Sept. 5. On Tuesday he won with Mecca's Sister, $97, to complete a $3,648 DD. Ron Turcotte brought in Crooked Count at $94.60 to start Tuesday's big payoff.

John Yovicsin, a native of Steelton, Pa., is in his 16th season as a head football coach. He coached Gettysburgh five years and spent the last 10 seasons at Harvard.

NEW YORK (AP) — Newest addition to the dress of a football forecaster is a chest protector.

That is to help keep the buttons from flying off one's vest because of an opening week with a 26-5 record for .840. May there be more of them through the season:

Notre Dame over California: The way some people talk you would think that quarterback Terry Hanratty and end Jim Seymour were the only two football players on the Notre Dame team. The truth is, there are several others.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri's Board of Curators will consider bids for construction of a new press box at Memorial Stadium when it meets this weekend.

Paul R. Prost Co. of Columbia was apparent low bidder for general construction with an offer of $335,557 when bids were opened Tuesday.

In addition to providing more space for newsmen, the press box will have room for more than 250 guests of the university and contributors to the press box fund.

The three-story structure will be shorter than the present press box and thus permit addition of some 300 stadium seats.

Texas over Southern California: The Longhorns have a horde of young running backs plus Bill Bradley at quarterback. The Trojans' No. 1 field general, Toby Page, was severely shaken up last weekend and may not be at his best.

Alabama over Florida State: The Crimson Tide's defense supposedly is so strong it will need only a field goal for Coach Bear Bryant's team to pick up another victory.

Penn State over Navy: Jack Curry and Ted Kwalick give Penn State the East's best pair of ends. Navy counters with Rob Taylor, all-East as a pass receiver a year ago.

UCLA over Pitt: The Californians won, 57-14, last year but Pitt has improved.

Miami over Northwestern: The Hurricanes have added an offense to go with their potent defense of the past. It is centered around Jim Cox, end; Bill Miller, quarterback, and Jerry Daanen, a flanker.

Illinois over Florida: The Big Ten team seeks to redeem its prestige after the scandal of last winter that cost it its coaching staff.

Michigan State over Houston: The Spartans will win but Warren McVea will give them a workout.

Georgia over Mississippi State: Georgia's entire starting backfield, returns intact. Mississippi State relying heavily on sophomores.

Purdue over Texas A&M: The Boilermakers have their powerful defensive platoon back and claim their new quarterback, Mike Engelbrecht, is faster, stronger and a better thrower than Bob Griese.

Georgia Tech over Vanderbilt: Two brand new coaches in this one but Bill Pace at Vanderbilt didn't inherit any horses while Bud Carson at Tech did.

Washington over Wisconsin: The Huskies got all the kinks out of their system in last Saturday's encounter with Nebraska.

Jays Entertain Dogs

Northern Clash At Conference Charleston

by JIM KLEIN

CHARLESTON -- After two successful home football outings, the Sikeston high Bulldogs go on the road Friday night.

Sikeston travels to Charleston to meet the Bluejays in one of the oldest and traditional football games in Southeast Missouri. The game is set for 7:30 p.m. and will be played at the now junior high school.

The Jays hope to turn the tables on the Bulldogs as they did in 1965, scoring an upset victory by a 6-0 margin. Last year they beat the Jays 28-0.

Sikeston and Charleston each have won two games this year. Sikeston defeated Chaffee, 27-0, and Perryville, 20-14. Charleston whipped East Prairie, 28-0, and Metropolis, Ill., 41-0.

Both teams are ready for the game. Sikeston's King Sidwell has taken over for injured defensive End Gary Long.

When the Bluejays and Bulldogs meet on the field Friday night, the teams will not only engage in a northern division conference bout but the winner undoubtedly will have a better shot at the title.

The triumph will enable the victor to keep in the running with the pre-season favorite, Poplar Bluff. The Mules venture to Perryville this week.

Charleston has been giving Sikeston trouble with the exception of last years game. Two years ago the Jays edged the Dogs, 6-0, which ended a Sikeston 17-year winning hex. In 1963 Sikeston won, 21-14, as did they in 1962, 13-7.

Coach William Sapp also said that he feels the team will be ready for the Bluejays for two reasons. "First, the boys weren't satisfied with the job they did n satisfied with the job they did in the Perryville Pirate game and they are determined to do better," he said.

Coach Herbert Marshall of the Jays feels "the team that gets the break will win as has usually been the story between Charleston and Sikeston"

"The Sikeston line outweighs us by about 30 pounds per man and has the two fastest boys in the conference in their backfield," remarked Coach Marshall.

But he also believes that third-year letterman, Halfback Everett Holley, and Quarterback Charlie Babb, who he considers "the best in the conference," will equalize Sikeston advantages.

Coach Sapp has respect for Charleston because he believes they "are the toughest passing team Sikeston will encounter this season."

"Art Jackson probably will replace Pat Hart is starting defensive left halfback. Ed Felker's safety spot will be turned over to Terry Bryant enabling Felker to concentrate more on his fullback duties," noted Sapp.

The Bluejays will be led by second team All-Conference Quarterback and Halfback Holley. Babb threw four touchdown passes and Holley scored four times in leading Charleston past Metropolis Friday.

Sikeston is led by first team All-Conference End Mike Garner and honorable mention Fullback Felker. Felker and Dennis Snelling were the workhorses in Friday night's victory over Perryville.

The Sikeston-Charleston game should be one of the better contests of the season.

Seniors' Tourney

At Jackson Saturday

JACKSON -- Members of the Southeast Missouri Seniors' Golf Association will hold its fourth annual golf tournament this weekend at Kimbeland Country Club.

According to C. C. Scott, Sikeston, association secretary, the club totals 90 members.

Golfers will be divided into age groups and will tour the course with handicaps subtracted for the final score.

Players will shoot for low gross and low nets.

Each golf club in Southeast Missouri is represented in the seniors' association.

While the men are golfing the women will be entertained at the Cape Girardeau golf course with golf and bridge.

Sikeston members are Scott, J. F. Cox, Melvin Dace, Oren Dahl, Bridwell Crenshaw, L.J. Flewelling, Ed Johnson, Duree Medley and T. E. Stallings.

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Rock, attorney for the New Jersey Americans of the American Basketball Association, said Tuesday the club has started legal action to make 6-foot-10 LeRoy Ellis play for the ABA club instead of the Baltimore Bullets in the older National Basketball Association.

Stanford has beaten San Jose State in football each of the last six years.

Scott Fourth At Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF -- Four golfers from Charleston and one from Sikeston and Malden placed in the Poplar Bluff Westwood Hills Country Club tournament over the weekend.

Virgil Powell of Malden shot a 136, good for a tournament record and the tournament title.

J. D. Byrne of Charleston tied for fifth in the championship division with a 145 but lost by a toss of the coin.

Charleston's Tom Hess shot a 148 to cap the championship in class A and Bob Byrne, also of Charleston placed fourth with a 154. He lost a flip of the coin for third place.

In class B play, Sikeston's Clarence Scott shot a 159 and tied for third but lost the flip. Bob Coon of Charleston placed second in B with a 155 score in the 36-hole tournament Saturday and Sunday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Oswaldo Rosado completed a $2,530 daily double at Aqueduct race track with Celtic Wind on Sept. 5. On Tuesday he won with Mecca's Sister, $97, to complete a $3,648 DD. Ron Turcotte brought in Crooked Count at $94.60 to start Tuesday's big payoff.

John Yovicsin, a native of Steelton, Pa., is in his 16th season as a head football coach. He coached Gettysburgh five years and spent the last 10 seasons at Harvard.

Roland Goes 124 In St. Louis Loss

NEW YORK (AP) — Three running backs each gained more than 100 yards last Sunday on the National Football League's opening day but the big surprise had to be Bill (Please Don't Call Me Willie) Asbury of the Pittsburg Steelers.

Johnny Roland, the 1966 rookie of the year, ran for 124 yards at St. Louis in a losing cause. Dan Reeves, a key man on Dallas' champs of the East a year ago, gained 114 yards. That was expected.

Asbury, supposed to be playing second fiddle to Earl Gros with the Steelers, rambled fog 107 yards on 12 carries, scored two touchdowns and averaged 8.9 yards per carry.

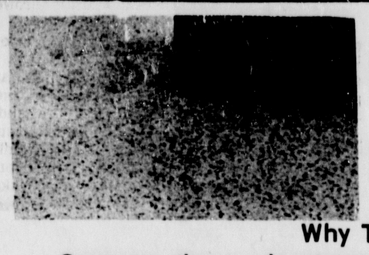
When Gros suffered a knee injury in training, Asbury got back his old starting job. He doesn't figure on giving it up.

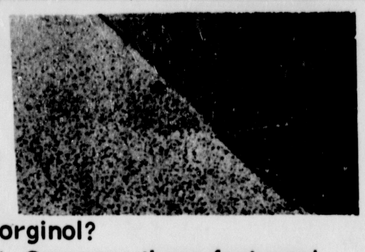
John Unitas of Baltimore leads the quarterbacks in the first weekly NFL statistics after throwing for 401 yards, a career high, in Baltimore's opener with Atlanta.

Former Michigan State varsity swimmer Pete Williams won the 400 - meter individual medley in 4:50.8 at the 1967 National AAU outdoor championships.

Henry King, defensive end for the New York Jets, intercepted 11 passes for 180 yards last season at Utah State.

American Football League teams listed 29 exhibition games this season, 16 of them with NFL clubs.





Why Torginol?

Compare these advantages! Compare these features!

ADVANTAGES

Torginol offers the widest latitude of colors, color combinations, designs and patterns of any other flooring material. In addition, a deep 3 - dimensional effect that intensifies its texture and beauty can be provided with additional coatings. Its wall - to - wall seamless beauty leaves no place for dirt or dust to collect and waxing is eliminated because of its durable finish. Maintenance is reduced to the fast swipe of a damp sponge.

DESCRIPTION

Torginol is an exciting, colorful, seamless floor composed of vinyl color chips imbedded in a clear polyurethane base. Recommended minimum thickness is one-sixteenth inches. A high gloss, semi-gloss or matte finish can be provided.

CHARACTERISTICS

Torginol is resilient, non-porous and highly resistant to most mild acids and alkalies. Its resistance to scuffing, scratching and even indentation by spiked heels is excellent.

RECOMMENDED USAGE

Torginol may be applied over wood, plaster, concrete, metal and most properly prepared substrates. It has virtually unlimited use in residential, commercial and industrial installations.

Birds Keep Flying On

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Outside the Sheraton Hotel hung a big sign: "Congratulations St. Louis Cardinals, National League Champions."

Inside, the flush of Monday night's pennant clinching victory over the Philadelphia Phillies have worn off, Manager Red Schoendienst made plans for the balance of the season and the World Series.

Schoendienst had recovered from the wild champagne celebration in the dressing room after the game and a later party at a downtown restaurant. He had even forgotten an early morning ride home in a $37,000 Rolls Royce.

The Cardinals' manager was all baseball again.

He said he planned to pitch Bob Gibson, 13-6, Steve Carlton, 14-8, Nelson Briles, 13-5, and Dick Hughes, 14-6, in rotation the rest of the National League season. The one exception would be to skip Hughes, who pitched Tuesday night, on his next turn.

Schoendienst said Hughes was a little arm weary and could use the extra rest. Hughes has pitched 213 1-3 innings and posted an ERA of 2.79. The 29-year-old first-year pitcher could be in line for Rookie-of-the-Year honors.

You couldn't tell the Phillies Hughes is arm weary. The right-hander blanked them 1-0 Tuesday night with five hits, striking out seven and looking strong enough in the ninth to go as long as he had to.

The Phillies didn't get a hit until the fourth, and only in the sixth did they place two men on base. Hughes met the challenge by retiring the hot hitting Tony Gonzalez with runners at first and third to end the inning.

The loser was Jim Bunning, a 16-game winner. Bunning lost his 14th, and fourth by a 1-0 score. He lost a fifth 2-0. Bunning went eight innings and gave up six hits while striking out seven, boosting his league leading strikeout total to 234.

The 44-year-old Schoendienst, a pennant winner in his third year as a manager, didn't say so specifically, but he indicated the Gibson, Carlton, Briles, Hughes quartet would be the pitchers for the series.

Schoendienst said he would juggle the rest of the line-up to give some of his regulars a rest. The last week of the season, the team which will open the series will play every game to keep them sharp.

Roland Goes 124 In St. Louis Loss

NEW YORK (AP) — Three running backs each gained more than 100 yards last Sunday on the National Football League's opening day but the big surprise had to be Bill (Please Don't Call Me Willie) Asbury of the Pittsburg Steelers.

Johnny Roland, the 1966 rookie of the year, ran for 124 yards at St. Louis in a losing cause. Dan Reeves, a key man on Dallas' champs of the East a year ago, gained 114 yards. That was expected.

Asbury, supposed to be playing second fiddle to Earl Gros with the Steelers, rambled fog 107 yards on 12 carries, scored two touchdowns and averaged 8.9 yards per carry.

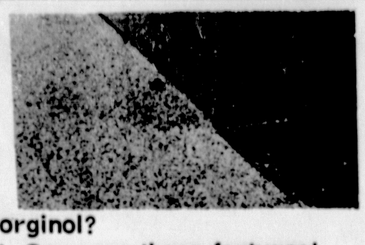
When Gros suffered a knee injury in training, Asbury got back his old starting job. He doesn't figure on giving it up.

John Unitas of Baltimore leads the quarterbacks in the first weekly NFL statistics after throwing for 401 yards, a career high, in Baltimore's opener with Atlanta.

Former Michigan State varsity swimmer Pete Williams won the 400 - meter individual medley in 4:50.8 at the 1967 National AAU outdoor championships.

Henry King, defensive end for the New York Jets, intercepted 11 passes for 180 yards last season at Utah State.

American Football League teams listed 29 exhibition games this season, 16 of them with NFL clubs.



Why Torginol?

Compare these advantages! Compare these features!

ADVANTAGES

Torginol offers the widest latitude of colors, color combinations, designs and patterns of any other flooring material. In addition, a deep 3 - dimensional effect that intensifies its texture and beauty can be provided with additional coatings. Its wall - to - wall seamless beauty leaves no place for dirt or dust to collect and waxing is eliminated because of its durable finish. Maintenance is reduced to the fast swipe of a damp sponge.

DESCRIPTION

Torginol is an exciting, colorful, seamless floor composed of vinyl color chips imbedded in a clear polyurethane base. Recommended minimum thickness is one-sixteenth inches. A high gloss, semi-gloss or matte finish can be provided.

CHARACTERISTICS

Torginol is resilient, non-porous and highly resistant to most mild acids and alkalies. Its resistance to scuffing, scratching and even indentation by spiked heels is excellent.

RECOMMENDED USAGE

Torginol may be applied over wood, plaster, concrete, metal and most properly prepared substrates. It has virtually unlimited use in residential, commercial and industrial installations.

Birds Keep Flying On

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Outside the Sheraton Hotel hung a big sign: "Congratulations St. Louis Cardinals, National League Champions."

Inside, the flush of Monday night's pennant clinching victory over the Philadelphia Phillies have worn off, Manager Red Schoendienst made plans for the balance of the season and the World Series.

Schoendienst had recovered from the wild champagne celebration in the dressing room after the game and a later party at a downtown restaurant. He had even forgotten an early morning ride home in a $37,000 Rolls Royce.

The Cardinals' manager was all baseball again.

He said he planned to pitch Bob Gibson, 13-6, Steve Carlton, 14-8, Nelson Briles, 13-5, and Dick Hughes, 14-6, in rotation the rest of the National League season. The one exception would be to skip Hughes, who pitched Tuesday night, on his next turn.

Schoendienst said Hughes was a little arm weary and could use the extra rest. Hughes has pitched 213 1-3 innings and posted an ERA of 2.79. The 29-year-old first-year pitcher could be in line for Rookie-of-the-Year honors.

You couldn't tell the Phillies Hughes is arm weary. The right-hander blanked them 1-0 Tuesday night with five hits, striking out seven and looking strong enough in the ninth to go as long as he had to.

The Phillies didn't get a hit until the fourth, and only in the sixth did they place two men on base. Hughes met the challenge by retiring the hot hitting Tony Gonzalez with runners at first and third to end the inning.

The loser was Jim Bunning, a 16-game winner. Bunning lost his 14th, and fourth by a 1-0 score. He lost a fifth 2-0. Bunning went eight innings and gave up six hits while striking out seven, boosting his league leading strikeout total to 234.

The 44-year-old Schoendienst, a pennant winner in his third year as a manager, didn't say so specifically, but he indicated the Gibson, Carlton, Briles, Hughes quartet would be the pitchers for the series.

Schoendienst said he would juggle the rest of the line-up to give some of his regulars a rest. The last week of the season, the team which will open the series will play every game to keep them sharp.

If You Were the Judge

Burglar Alarm Firm Not Liable for Loss

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Wimple operated a specialty shop. To protect his interests and the contents of his shop, he had a burglar alarm system installed. And, as fate would have it, when he opened the doors one morning the only thing he found intact was the burglar alarm. The rest of the shop was topsy-turvy. Burglars had been at work during the wee hours of the morning, but not the alarm. It had failed to go off.

Outraged, Wimple sued the alarm company for his losses. "I paid plenty to have that alarm put in," he complained in court. "Since it didn't work, they should be held responsible." "Nonsense," was the answer. "If the alarm didn't go off, we're prepared to give him a new one. But that's the full extent of our responsibility.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the alarm company liable for Wimple's losses?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that considering the early hour of the burglary, even if the alarm had sounded, there was no assurance the burglars would have been apprehended. Consequently, the alarm company could not be held responsible.

PAPER CHIDED UNITARIANS

LONDON (AP)—The Inquirer, weekly newspaper of Britain's Unitarians, celebrated its 125th birthday in July. The anniversary number a crowd gathered. As I was being carried an editorial warning that the lifted onto the stretcher, I heard Unitarian movement gave the impression of being run as a business and that the denomination spent too much time discussing finance, stipends and organization.

As I left the house for work one icy winter morning, I slipped and broke my leg in two places. An ambulance was summoned and my elderly next-door neighbor exclaim, "I wondered why Georgia was lying out there beside the road -- it wasn't a bit like her!"

Chemical Hazard In Frisco Wreck

PORTAGEVILLE--The last two cars of the 16 derailed in the Frisco railroads 70-car freight train Sunday carried a toxic Fertilizer, anydrous ammonia.

These cars remained upright with only their front wheels off the tracks.

The wreckage was in a two-blocks area in the cotton gin district.

The cars carrying anhydrous ammonia were checked for leaks following the wreck.

Most of the other de-railed cars were empty, a Frisco spokesman reported. Among them were box cars, hopper cars and gondola cars.

The wreck was caused by a hot box on a switch engine from Blytheville that was being taken to St. Louis for a maintenance check.

The switch engine was being pulled and was in about the middle of the train. The hot box caused the switch engine to lose a wheel about a quarter of a mile south of the accident scene.

A large section of the train, which was in front of the switch engine, remained on the tracks and was taken on north by the crew.

Only one scheduled train had to be re-routed.

Crews said the wreckage should be cleared by the middle of this week.

Only one rail crossing, the southern-most entrance to Portageville, was blocked and it was opened during the night. That crossing was blocked by the rear section of the train which remained on the tracks.

Cairo School Bomb Threat Work of Crank

CAIRO - A telephoned bomb threat to Cairo high school early today has been labeled a crank call by authorities investigating the incident.

As a safety measure, all students were immediately evacuated from the school building. Principal Gale Dawson said students were originally instructed to report back for classes at noon, but that since early dismissal was scheduled Tuesday afternoon for the funeral of a student, classes would not resume until the regular time Wednesday.

Under direction of Fire Chief Lewis Edwards, a search of the Cairo high building was conducted. Chief Edwards said nothing was found and termed the building secure. Police immediately proceeded on the theory that the call had been placed by a crank.

Cairo junior high classes were also dismissed for the day after a number of parents, learning of the high school incident, asked permission to take their children away from that building. Junior high was also scheduled for early dismissal for the funeral.

All Cairo firemen and a large number of school employes were organized into a search party by Chief Edwards and the building systematically combed.

The call was received at the CHS office minutes after students entered the building to start classes this morning.

The person taking the call said a man, who did not identify himself, issued the threat that a bomb had been placed in the building and then hung up.

School officials pointed out that chances of a bomb being placed in the building were negligible. Watchmen had been in the school throughout the night and had left a short time before shcool convened.

State Park Water Now Fit to Drink

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Signs warning users of Trail of Tears State Park not to drink water available in the camping area came down Monday, Jim Bush, park superintendent, reported. He added that the water is now safe for consumption.

Bush said a chemical has been added to the water in a well found Wednesday to be contaminated. The chemical will kill the organisms per 100 mills. Four organisms per 100 mills is the state established maximum.

Chemical Hazard In Frisco Wreck

PORTAGEVILLE--The last two cars of the 16 derailed in the Frisco railroads 70-car freight train Sunday carried a toxic Fertilizer, anydrous ammonia.

These cars remained upright with only their front wheels off the tracks.

The wreckage was in a two-blocks area in the cotton gin district.

The cars carrying anhydrous ammonia were checked for leaks following the wreck.

Most of the other de-railed cars were empty, a Frisco spokesman reported. Among them were box cars, hopper cars and gondola cars.

The wreck was caused by a hot box on a switch engine from Blytheville that was being taken to St. Louis for a maintenance check.

The switch engine was being pulled and was in about the middle of the train. The hot box caused the switch engine to lose a wheel about a quarter of a mile south of the accident scene.

A large section of the train, which was in front of the switch engine, remained on the tracks and was taken on north by the crew.

Only one scheduled train had to be re-routed.

Crews said the wreckage should be cleared by the middle of this week.

Only one rail crossing, the southern-most entrance to Portageville, was blocked and it was opened during the night. That crossing was blocked by the rear section of the train which remained on the tracks.

Cairo School Bomb Threat Work of Crank

CAIRO - A telephoned bomb threat to Cairo high school early today has been labeled a crank call by authorities investigating the incident.

As a safety measure, all students were immediately evacuated from the school building. Principal Gale Dawson said students were originally instructed to report back for classes at noon, but that since early dismissal was scheduled Tuesday afternoon for the funeral of a student, classes would not resume until the regular time Wednesday.

Under direction of Fire Chief Lewis Edwards, a search of the Cairo high building was conducted. Chief Edwards said nothing was found and termed the building secure. Police immediately proceeded on the theory that the call had been placed by a crank.

Cairo junior high classes were also dismissed for the day after a number of parents, learning of the high school incident, asked permission to take their children away from that building. Junior high was also scheduled for early dismissal for the funeral.

All Cairo firemen and a large number of school employes were organized into a search party by Chief Edwards and the building systematically combed.

The call was received at the CHS office minutes after students entered the building to start classes this morning.

The person taking the call said a man, who did not identify himself, issued the threat that a bomb had been placed in the building and then hung up.

School officials pointed out that chances of a bomb being placed in the building were negligible. Watchmen had been in the school throughout the night and had left a short time before shcool convened.

State Park Water Now Fit to Drink

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Signs warning users of Trail of Tears State Park not to drink water available in the camping area came down Monday, Jim Bush, park superintendent, reported. He added that the water is now safe for consumption.

Bush said a chemical has been added to the water in a well found Wednesday to be contaminated. The chemical will kill the organisms per 100 mills. Four organisms per 100 mills is the state established maximum.

CLEARFIELD, Pa. (AP) — Volunteer firemen were called to the home of the H.W. Browns to rescue, not a cat, but a lizard from a tree.

Since the pet lizard was only two inches long and blended with the color of the bark, firemen finally located the lizard by shaking the tree. The lizard fell out.

A friend gave me this little child's memo, and after reading it I decided everyone would profit far more from these words of wisdom than from any I might be able to come up with. This was used in conjunction with the last St. Francis Parent-Teachers Association meeting, and I would like to thank them for this list.

I believe one of these pasted in a handy spot for mothers to quickly scan might just be a very good idea and the only thing I have to add is one memo: from your parents:

Don't forget to forgive and understand us when we don't always do what is expected or wanted of us. Remember that whatever we do, we always have you and your welfare first in our hearts and minds.

MEMO: FROM YOUR CHILD

1. Don't spoil me. I know quite well that I ought not to have all I ask for. I'm just testing you.
2. Don't be afraid to be firm with me. I prefer it. It makes me feel more secure.
3. Don't let me form bad habits. I have to rely on you to detect them in the early stages.
4. Don't correct me in front of people if you can help it. I'll take more notice if you talk to me in private.
5. Don't be too upset when I say, "I hate you". It isn't you I hate, but your power to thwart me.
6. Don't protect me from consequences. I need to learn the painful way sometimes.
7. Don't take too much notice of my small ailments. Sometimes they get me the attention I need.
8. Don't nag. If you do I shall have to protect myself by appearing deaf.
9. Don't make rash promises. Remember that I feel badly let down when promises are broken.
10. Don't be inconsistent. That completely confuses me and makes me lose faith in you.
11. Don't put me off when I ask questions. If you do you will find that I stop asking and seek my information elsewhere.
12. Don't tell me my fears are silly. They are terribly real and you can do much to reassure me if you try to understand.
13. Don't ever suggest that you are perfect or infallible. It gives me too great a shock when I discover that you are neither.
14. Don't ever think that it is beneath your dignity to apologize to me. An honest apology makes me feel surprisingly warm toward you.
15. Don't forget I love experimenting. I couldn't get on without it, so please put up with it.
16. Don't forget how quickly I am growing up. It must be very difficult to keep pacd with me, but please try.
17. Don't forget that I can't thrive without lots of understanding love, but I don't need to tell you that, do I?
18. Don't forget that music is an important part of my life and I often have the urge to play a musical instrument. When I ask for this opportunity, please give my request serious consideration.
19. Don't forget that playing an instrument is a wholesome pastime and developes poise, posture, self-confidence, musical alertness and a spirit of teamwork and cooperation.

Plant Named Fred Outgrows Home

MAIDSTONE, England (AP) — Fred, the plant, needs a new home.

Fred lives in a small yard behind Ruby Martin's cafe in Maidstone. Mrs. Martin's problem is that Fred is a 9-foot monster— and still growing.

He appears to be a cross between a dahlia and a tomato plant. Fred erupted from a seedbox two months ago.

Said Mrs. Martin: "When I bought the seeds I asked for something small to fit in seed boxes, but then Fred started growing. It was a joke at first. But now he takes up so much water that the other flowers are dying. He will just have to go."

Results of Government Intervention

EIGHTEEN years ago the United States was producing about half of the world's output of cotton. This has shrunk to only one-fifth. Today it is generally known that we have lost the greater part of the world's cotton market because of an agricultural policy which maintained artificially high prices, and at the same time severely restricted crop acreage. The maintenance of the price of any commodity above the competitive level does two things:

1) It encourages others to increase their outputs. In the case of cotton this has meant increased production in other countries and further restriction of our markets.

2) It stimulates the effort to find substitutes of other goods and processes to replace those which have been priced at artificially high levels. In the case of cotton, maintaining high prices has stimulated the development of a great many synthetic fibers as a substitute for it.

Cotton production has been price-supported for more than 30 years, during which time we have lost most of our market for it. Harvested acreage declined from an average of 14.6 million acres in the 1961-65 period to only 9.6 million acres in 1966.

A third disadvantage of a subsidized market is the heavy expense levied upon the taxpayer. During the first 8 months of the fiscal year ending July 1, 1967, the loss to American taxpayers resulting from government regulation and control of cotton amounted to $1.11 billion. Of this sum $710 million was paid to producers, and $400 million represented losses on disposals of government-stored cotton.

Had there been no government intervention in the cotton industry, it is probable that ways would have been found to meet competition, and our country would have retained a much larger portion of the world production of cotton. As a result of intervention, however, we have lost four-fifths of the market, and have burdened our taxpayers. Our experience with cotton, as with government intervention in other economic activities of the people, only confirms the proverb that every government intervention in the economic activities of the people results in less human satisfaction. This is true because the intervention either shrinks the market or levies high costs upon the taxpayers, or both.

Americans paid an average of $290 in state and local taxes during fiscal 1966, $25 per person more than during the previous year. The range was from a low of $181 in South Carolina to a high of $410 in New York. New York also topped the list of states in tax revenues—$7.485 billion in 1966. Total state and local tax take was $56.7 billion, up $5.5 billion from the previous year.

Greek Soprano Coming to Met

By ERIC WAHA
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA (AP) — Jeanette Pilou, a fast-rising star of the Vienna State Opera, will go to the United States to sing her "dream part" at the Metropolitan and to discover America.

"I have never been in the United States and I am a little afraid," the Greek singer who makes her home in Milan, Italy, said.

Afraid of what?

"New York is so big and it frightens me," the dark-eyed soprano said. She is not afraid of the new Metropolitan, though.

"I don't expect any difficulties," she said, "the ac oustics there are very good, colleagues told me." She will arrive in New York in August.

The soprano said she was looking forward to learn about the American way of life, American food and everything else she can discover.

American men? The pretty, unmarried singer said she heard they were very nice and attentive to women.

As to herself, she said she would have preferred to be blue-eyed and blonde like her father, and to be tall.

A blonde, blue-eyed Violetta? Brunette and glamorous, Miss Pilou seems to be ideal for the heroine of "La Traviata," which she calls "my dream part."

It will be her first role at the Metropolitan in November. The other will be Micaela in "Carmen" which is to come out in a new production at the Met. Miss Pilou will return to Vienna for performances at the State Opera in January, after a recital in Philadelphia.

While "La Traviata" was Miss Pilou's dream part, it was Mimi in "Boheme" which was the turning point in her career.

JEANETTE PILOU

She was on vacation in Vienna in September 1965 when she was invited to give a guest performance in "Boheme" at the State Opera.

"The next day, my life changed," she recalled. "I think I did not sing any better than two years before that, but there were important people in the audience and they heard me."

From then on, she had the pick of parts. "I am very careful about the parts I accept," she said, "I don't want to tire and I don't want any parts which may be dangerous to my voice."

Miss Pilou, who refers to herself as "the other Greek singer" — the "one Greek singer" being Maria Callas — said "I don't suffer from excess of ambition. I want to sing the parts I like and to live well."

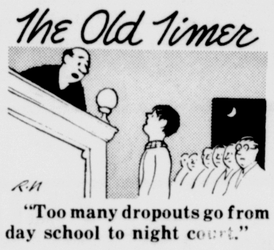
She added wistfully that sometimes a career and living well exclude each other.

Miss Pilou was born of Greek parents in Alexandria, Egypt. Ten years ago, she went to Milan and began studying singing. She had her debut in a small Milan theater in "La Traviata" in 1959.

"I did not like myself then," she said, "I did not fulfill the role of Violetta. Now I think I am Violetta."

After touring the Italian provinces and appearing in theaters in Portugal, Switzerland and Belgium, the guest appearance at the Vienna State Opera started her on an international career.

The first concrete ship to cross the Atlantic was the Faith. Six weeks after the first concrete was poured, the ship was launched on March 14, 1918, says The World Almanac. The Faith was built at San Francisco and cost $750,000.



"Too many dropouts go from day school to night court."

'$10,000 Week' after One Record

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CAN a new group become "big" on one little 45 r.p.m. record which didn't quite make it to No. 1 on the popularity charts?

Logically, you wouldn't think so. But the answer is yes. Right now it's being done by Spanky and Our Gang.

Spanky and Our Gang is a new group, first seen performing in New York in March, first heard (and only) on the Mercury single, "Summer Will Never Be the Same."

From that beginning came word-of-mouth in the pop music business that Spanky looks like a "comer," TV guest shots, $3,000-a-night bookings at teen dances, a tour of county and state fairs lined up for this summer, a tour of colleges lined up for fall and "our first $10,000 week, at the Hilton Hotel in Miami Beach."

Spanky is the only girl in the quintet. Her name is Elaine McFarlane and her nickname has been Spanky since she was a child — after Spanky in the Our Gang comedies. Hence also, the Spanky and Our Gang title for the singing group. But the other members haven't taken "Our Gang" kids' names. Most of their fans are too young to remember the Our Gang comedies anyway.

Besides "instant stardom" Spanky and Our Gang personifies another state of pop music today, the acceptance of incongruity. From pretty boy singers, saying they were single and young, we went to what the Righteous Brothers called "getting together the ugliest guys in the world and forming a group." Now, however, groups thrive on no uniformity.

At an interview with Spanky and Our Gang, Oz Bach brings his wife and solemn, beautiful baby daughter and Nigel Pickering talks about having a son who is 20 years old. Spanky is 25.

All dress differently; some zany, some not. Drummer John Seiter, 23, has Indian beads on hat and shirt. Oz is the only one who talks in "put on" jargon. And names are offered which a few years ago would have driven their owners to stage names. Not only does Our Gang include a Nigel, but the member who does the vocal arranging is Malcolm Hale.

Even songs in the act are of all types. "Summer Will Never Be the Same" is rock. Some are jug band-style, with Spanky playing electric jug and Oz playing electric banana (a kazoo, electrified, inside a plastic banana). On "Coney Island Washboard" she plays washboard.

They also sing "Trouble" from "The Music Man," country-western, folk, and only one protest, against the Ku Klux Klan.

The variety stems partially from varied backgrounds. Spanky and Malcolm once sang in the New Wine Singers, a folk group, now disbanded. Oz performed rock 'n' roll. Nigel has been a Milwaukee disc jockey who booked and toured with Grand Ole Opry acts in Wisconsin.

Group history is short. Spanky, Oz and Nigel worked as a trio first, in Chicago. Malcolm made it four-part harmony. He joined after returning from a State Department-sponsored folk singing tour in Vietnam last fall.

This is the stage at which they "worked up an act" and signed a Mercury contract. First record out, "Sunday Will Never Be the Same," climbed to No. 9 on Cashbox Magazine's best-selling chart on June 17, stayed there June 24, started down July 1 when it slid to 11.

John joined as drummer two months ago; he doesn't sing as yet. The group is cutting an album for which they have designed a fold-out album cover and chosen old-time pictures. You'll know it when you see it. It'll be called "Spanky and Our Gang."

Results of Government Intervention

EIGHTEEN years ago the United States was producing about half of the world's output of cotton. This has shrunk to only one-fifth. Today it is generally known that we have lost the greater part of the world's cotton market because of an agricultural policy which maintained artificially high prices, and at the same time severely restricted crop acreage. The maintenance of the price of any commodity above the competitive level does two things:

1) It encourages others to increase their outputs. In the case of cotton this has meant increased production in other countries and further restriction of our markets.

2) It stimulates the effort to find substitutes of other goods and processes to replace those which have been priced at artificially high levels. In the case of cotton, maintaining high prices has stimulated the development of a great many synthetic fibers as a substitute for it.

Cotton production has been price-supported for more than 30 years, during which time we have lost most of our market for it. Harvested acreage declined from an average of 14.6 million acres in the 1961-65 period to only 9.6 million acres in 1966.

A third disadvantage of a subsidized market is the heavy expense levied upon the taxpayer. During the first 8 months of the fiscal year ending July 1, 1967, the loss to American taxpayers resulting from government regulation and control of cotton amounted to $1.11 billion. Of this sum $710 million was paid to producers, and $400 million represented losses on disposals of government-stored cotton.

Had there been no government intervention in the cotton industry, it is probable that ways would have been found to meet competition, and our country would have retained a much larger portion of the world production of cotton. As a result of intervention, however, we have lost four-fifths of the market, and have burdened our taxpayers. Our experience with cotton, as with government intervention in other economic activities of the people, only confirms the proverb that every government intervention in the economic activities of the people results in less human satisfaction. This is true because the intervention either shrinks the market or levies high costs upon the taxpayers, or both.

Americans paid an average of $290 in state and local taxes during fiscal 1966, $25 per person more than during the previous year. The range was from a low of $181 in South Carolina to a high of $410 in New York. New York also topped the list of states in tax revenues—$7.485 billion in 1966. Total state and local tax take was $56.7 billion, up $5.5 billion from the previous year.

Greek Soprano Coming to Met

By ERIC WAHA
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA (AP) — Jeanette Pilou, a fast-rising star of the Vienna State Opera, will go to the United States to sing her "dream part" at the Metropolitan and to discover America.

"I have never been in the United States and I am a little afraid," the Greek singer who makes her home in Milan, Italy, said.

Afraid of what?

"New York is so big and it frightens me," the dark-eyed soprano said. She is not afraid of the new Metropolitan, though.

"I don't expect any difficulties," she said, "the ac oustics there are very good, colleagues told me." She will arrive in New York in August.

The soprano said she was looking forward to learn about the American way of life, American food and everything else she can discover.

American men? The pretty, unmarried singer said she heard they were very nice and attentive to women.

As to herself, she said she would have preferred to be blue-eyed and blonde like her father, and to be tall.

A blonde, blue-eyed Violetta? Brunette and glamorous, Miss Pilou seems to be ideal for the heroine of "La Traviata," which she calls "my dream part."

It will be her first role at the Metropolitan in November. The other will be Micaela in "Carmen" which is to come out in a new production at the Met. Miss Pilou will return to Vienna for performances at the State Opera in January, after a recital in Philadelphia.

While "La Traviata" was Miss Pilou's dream part, it was Mimi in "Boheme" which was the turning point in her career.

JEANETTE PILOU

She was on vacation in Vienna in September 1965 when she was invited to give a guest performance in "Boheme" at the State Opera.

"The next day, my life changed," she recalled. "I think I did not sing any better than two years before that, but there were important people in the audience and they heard me."

From then on, she had the pick of parts. "I am very careful about the parts I accept," she said, "I don't want to tire and I don't want any parts which may be dangerous to my voice."

Miss Pilou, who refers to herself as "the other Greek singer" — the "one Greek singer" being Maria Callas — said "I don't suffer from excess of ambition. I want to sing the parts I like and to live well."

She added wistfully that sometimes a career and living well exclude each other.

Miss Pilou was born of Greek parents in Alexandria, Egypt. Ten years ago, she went to Milan and began studying singing. She had her debut in a small Milan theater in "La Traviata" in 1959.

"I did not like myself then," she said, "I did not fulfill the role of Violetta. Now I think I am Violetta."

After touring the Italian provinces and appearing in theaters in Portugal, Switzerland and Belgium, the guest appearance at the Vienna State Opera started her on an international career.

The first concrete ship to cross the Atlantic was the Faith. Six weeks after the first concrete was poured, the ship was launched on March 14, 1918, says The World Almanac. The Faith was built at San Francisco and cost $750,000.

"Too many dropouts go from day school to night court."

RECORDS
'$10,000 Week' after One Record

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CAN a new group become "big" on one little 45 r.p.m. record which didn't quite make it to No. 1 on the popularity charts?

Logically, you wouldn't think so. But the answer is yes. Right now it's being done by Spanky and Our Gang.

Spanky and Our Gang is a new group, first seen performing in New York in March, first heard (and only) on the Mercury single, "Summer Will Never Be the Same."

From that beginning came word-of-mouth in the pop music business that Spanky looks like a "comer," TV guest shots, $3,000-a-night bookings at teen dances, a tour of county and state fairs lined up for this summer, a tour of colleges lined up for fall and "our first $10,000 week, at the Hilton Hotel in Miami Beach."

Spanky is the only girl in the quintet. Her name is Elaine McFarlane and her nickname has been Spanky since she was a child – after Spanky in the Our Gang comedies. Hence also, the Spanky and Our Gang title for the singing group. But the other members haven't taken "Our Gang" kids' names. Most of their fans are too young to remember the Our Gang comedies anyway.

Besides "instant stardom" Spanky and Our Gang personifies another state of pop music today, the acceptance of incongruity. From pretty boy singers, saying they were single and young, we went to what the Righteous Brothers called "getting together the ugliest guys in the world and forming a group." Now, however, groups thrive on no uniformity.

At an interview with Spanky and Our Gang, Oz Bach brings his wife and solemn, beautiful baby daughter and Nigel Pickering talks about having a son who is 20 years old. Spanky is 25.

All dress differently; some zany, some not. Drummer John Seiter, 23, has Indian beads on hat and shirt. Oz is the only one who talks in "put on" jargon. And names are offered which a few years ago would have driven their owners to stage names. Not only does Our Gang include a Nigel, but the member who does the vocal arranging is Malcolm Hale.

Even songs in the act are of all types. "Summer Will Never Be the Same" is rock. Some are jug band-style, with Spanky playing electric jug and Oz playing electric banana (a kazoo, electrified, inside a plastic banana). On "Coney Island Washboard" she plays washboard.

They also sing "Trouble" from "The Music Man," country-western, folk, and only one protest, against the Ku Klux Klan.

The variety stems partially from varied backgrounds. Spanky and Malcolm once sang in the New Wine Singers, a folk group, now disbanded. Oz performed rock 'n' roll. Nigel has been a Milwaukee disc jockey who booked and toured with Grand Ole Opry acts in Wisconsin.

Group history is short. Spanky, Oz and Nigel worked as a trio first, in Chicago. Malcolm made it four-part harmony. He joined after returning from a State Department-sponsored folk singing tour in Vietnam last fall.

This is the stage at which they "worked up an act" and signed a Mercury contract. First record out, "Sunday Will Never Be the Same," climbed to No. 9 on Cashbox Magazine's best-selling chart on June 17, stayed there June 24, started down July 1 when it slid to 11.

John joined as drummer two months ago; he doesn't sing as yet. The group is cutting an album for which they have designed a fold-out album cover and chosen old-time pictures. You'll know it when you see it. It'll be called "Spanky and Our Gang."

Barnes Leave to Make Home in Honolulu

50 years ago
Sept. 20, 1917

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnes departed Monday afternoon for Chicago, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. They will sail from the last named city on October 17 for Honolulu, where they expect to locate. They leave Sikeston with the very best of good wishes from a host of friends.

Vance Montgomery has accepted a position with the Farmers Supply Co., in this city. His family will join him as soon as he can find a suitable location.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Harris were called to St. Louis last Saturday by the death of the former's sister, Miss Betty Harris.

Marshall Myers went to Jackson Tuesday where he will be connected with the Ford garage, having been transferred there from the Scott Madrid Motor Co., in this city. Mrs. Myers and little daughter will join him later.

Sikeston High school news. "The Imaginary Invalid," by Molere, is the name of the three act comedy to be presented in November by Miss Frances Burch, English instructor. The complete list of characters has not as yet been decided upon.

Morehouse -- Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Herrin are the proud parents of a baby born to them last Friday.

The Rev. Thos. B. Mather, former pastor of the Methodist Church in Sikeston, has been assigned to Jefferson City.

Harry Blanton left Thursday for Columbia to attend the State Bar Association.

Ann Landers

Teen Age Boy Ties Up Bathroom with Brushing

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 15-year-old son who is driving us crazy. It is his teeth and his hair. He ties up the family bathroom for one hour every morning while he brushes his teeth. But he flatly refuses to put a comb through his hair.

Here is his routine. He gets up, brushes his teeth for 20 minutes, eats breakfast, goes back to the bathroom and brushes his teeth again. Then he gets dressed. Befor he leaves the house he returns to the bathroom a third time and brushes his teeth once more.

All the while his hair is matted and straggly and he says it doesn't bother him because "nobody brushes their hair anymore."

What is wrong with this boy? Do you think he will ever grow up and act like a civilized human?---WE'D LIKE THE BATHROOM

Dear W.L.T.B.: Yes. He'll probably meet a girl one of these days and then he'll tie up the bathroom for two hours.

In the meantime, for those second and third brushings, provide him with a jug of water and a basin and free up the bathroom for other members of the family.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an unwed mother who wrote to you two weeks ago and asked what I could do to get support money for my child. I am only 16 and I can't get a job.

Well, the situation has changed since I wrote. The father got married three days ago, but not to me. I went to the welfare agency as you suggested and they told me I could not get any support money out of Barney unless I can prove he is the father. If I say he is the father and he says he isn't the father, whose word are they going to take?

By the way, Barney just got out of the service and he doesn't have a job. The baby will be a year old next week and Barney hasn't given me one dime. What do I do now?---CONFUSED

Dear Confused: Since you are in touch with the welfare people, I suggest that you do as they tell you.

I wish I could be more optimistic about your chances but you've got a tough battle on your hands if Barney is denying paternity. It may be that the best you can get, if you win, is to put him in jail. And what good would that do you?

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is to say "Amen" to the appeal made by "Voice of America" to the country's dress designers. May I add a word?

I understand that half the adult population of the United States is over 26 years of age. (This is the half, incidentaly, that pays most of the bills.)

I can tell you from experience that it is darned near impossible for a 40-year-old woman who is 5 feet 7 inches tall to find anything decent to wear, at any price. If her bust is larger than 32 she can forget it. I haven't bought a new outfit in two years and I feel positively seedy, but I refuse to wear a dress that fits like sausage casing, or, heaven forbid, the tent-style monstrosities which make every woman look pregnant.

Please tell me how the manufacturers can afford to ignore a large segment of their best customers. - - - PROSPECTIVE NUDIST

Dear Pro: The manufacturers say business is good. So someone is buying the nutty styles, even though you aren't. And, P. S., Sister---neither am I.

Want to say "no" to drinking without your buddies putting you down? Get cued in. Write for "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

An overdose of medicinal pills taken by two year old Frieda Lucille Vaughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spence Vaughn, who lived four miles south of Sikeston, proved fatal Monday.

Emil Steck of Fornfelt was named treasurer of Scott County Tuesday afternoon by Gov. Lloyd C. Stark.

The Baptist Church issued a call to the Rev. E. W. Millner, state missionary of Little Rock, Ark., to become pastor of the Sikeston church.

Fifteen students in the high school were voted into the Red Peppers, cheer organization for sports events. New members are: Senior, Johnnie L. Hutchinson; junior, Geneva Probst, sophomores, Mary H. Waggener, Eleanor Right, Betty Lou Barger, Mary Lou Schroff and Esther Shuppert; and freshmen, Rosemary Putnam, Betty Jane Taylor, Mary Emma Donnell, Vonda Lee Lufcy, Josephine Shuppert, Margaret Anthony, Anna Louise Sitzes, and Colleen Rayburn.

Mrs. John J. Reiss, aged 63 years, died at her home, 721 Sikes avenue, early Saturday morning after a prolonged illness of carcinoma.

Hospital notes. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Gooch of Sikeston are parents of a boy born September 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kelly of Canalou are parents of a boy born today.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Spears of Sikeston are parents of a baby girl born September 21.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Highway Patrol has been selected as a member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's new national crime information center.

Data on stolen automobiles, wanted persons and other police information will be fed into computers at Washington and a response will be available in about 30 seconds.

Col. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, patrol superintendent, said "we are looking for young men with technical or operational experience in communications to work in this new activity."

NEW DELHI (AP) The government reports that the number of foreign missionaries in India has increased by more than 100 in the past year up from 4,111 to 4,214.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

"This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you." (John 15: 12, RSV)

PRAYER: Eternal God, we dedicate our hands and our feet, our knowledge and our skills, our hearts and our minds to serve Thee faithfully. Accept us for service. For the Master's sake. Amen.

Farm Chemical Stolen At Essex Recovered

CARUTHERSVILLE -The sheriff's department recovered 68 gallons of Trefian, used in farm defoliation, Saturday before the Stoddard county firm found it was missing.

Deputy Sheriffs Tommy German and Wesley Mayo were called to Steele early Saturday after Steele police observed a heavily loaded car and gave chase. Two men left the car and escaped through a soybean field.

The deputies confiscated the car which contained 35 gallons of the farm chemical. Later in the day a tip led the officers to another 33 gallons of the chemical in a soybean field near Steele. All had been taken from Monsanto Chemical Company in Essex, Mo.

Arrested that afternoon Walter Nichols of Steele. Nichols, who was recently released form the Dunklin County jail, was turned over to Stoddard county authorities.

Deputy German reported that he also recovered five cases of Tinneron, another farm chemical, which had been taken from an Armorell, Ark., warehouse. This was found in an empty farmhouse after German was given another tip.

Officials of Henry Meldrum Post No. 114, The American Legion, are opening the campaign to build up for the 21st annual Cotton Carnival, scheduled to be held Sept. 25-30, and first on the list of the important events will be the "Cotton Top King and Queen" contest, which will be held, Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Any youngster, boy or girl, in the area, between the ages of three and six is eligible except he, or she, must have blond hair.

Parents interested in entering their youngsters in this contest are requested to fill out the following blank and mail it to W. B. Pinnell Box 129, Sikeston, Mo.

Barnes Leave to Make Home in Honolulu

50 years ago
Sept. 20, 1917

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnes departed Monday afternoon for Chicago, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. They will sail from the last named city on October 17 for Honolulu, where they expect to locate. They leave Sikeston with the very best of good wishes from a host of friends.

Vance Montgomery has accepted a position with the Farmers Supply Co., in this city. His family will join him as soon as he can find a suitable location.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Harris were called to St. Louis last Saturday by the death of the former's sister, Miss Betty Harris.

Marshall Myers went to Jackson Tuesday where he will be connected with the Ford garage, having been transferred there from the Scott Madrid Motor Co., in this city. Mrs. Myers and little daughter will join him later.

Sikeston High school news. "The Imaginary Invalid," by Moliere, is the name of the three act comedy to be presented in November by Miss Frances Burch, English instructor. The complete list of characters has not as yet been decided upon.

Morehouse -- Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Herrin are the proud parents of a baby born to them last Friday.

The Rev. Thos. B. Mather, former pastor of the Methodist Church in Sikeston, has been assigned to Jefferson City.

Harry Blanton left Thursday for Columbia to attend the State Bar Association.

Mrs. John J. Reiss, aged 63 years, died at her home, 721 Sikes avenue, early Saturday morning after a prolonged illness of carcinoma.

Hospital notes. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Gooch of Sikeston are parents of a boy born September 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kelly of Canalou are parents of a boy born today.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Spears of Sikeston are parents of a baby girl born September 21.

Ann Landers

Teen Age Boy Ties Up Bathroom with Brushing

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 15-year-old son who is driving us crazy. It is his teeth and his hair. He ties up the family bathroom for one hour every morning while he brushes his teeth. But he flatly refuses to put a comb through his hair.

Here is his routine. He gets up, brushes his teeth for 20 minutes, eats breakfast, goes back to the bathroom and brushes his teeth again. Then he gets dressed. Before he leaves the house he returns to the bathroom a third time and brushes his teeth once more.

All the while his hair is matted and straggly and he says it doesn't bother him because "nobody brushes their hair anymore."

What is wrong with this boy? Do you think he will ever grow up and act like a civilized human?---WE'D LIKE THE BATHROOM

Dear W.L.T.B.: Yes. He'll probably meet a girl one of these days and then he'll tie up the bathroom for two hours.

In the meantime, for those second and third brushings, provide him with a jug of water and a basin and free up the bathroom for other members of the family.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an unwed mother who wrote to you two weeks ago and asked what I could do to get support money for my child. I am only 16 and I can't get a job.

Well, the situation has changed since I wrote. The father got married three days ago, but not to me. I went to the welfare agency as you suggested and they told me I could not get any support money out of Barney unless I can prove he is the father. If I say he is the father and he says he isn't the father, whose word are they going to take?

By the way, Barney just got out of the service and he doesn't have a job. The baby will be a year old next week and Barney hasn't given me one dime. What do I do now?---CONFUSED

Dear Confused: Since you are in touch with the welfare people, I suggest that you do as they tell you.

I wish I could be more optimistic about your chances but you've got a tough battle on your hands if Barney is denying paternity. It may be that the best you can get, if you win, is to put him in jail. And what good would that do you?

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is to say "Amen" to the appeal made by "Voice of America" to the country's dress designers. May I add a word?

I understand that half the adult population of the United States is over 26 years of age. (This is the half, incidentaly, that pays most of the bills.)

I can tell you from experience that it is darned near impossible for a 40-year-old woman who is 5 feet 7 inches tall to find anything decent to wear, at any price. If her bust is larger than 32 she can forget it. I haven't bought a new outfit in two years and I feel positively seedy, but I refuse to wear a dress that fits like sausage casing, or, heaven forbid, the tent-style monstrosities which make every woman look pregnant.

Please tell me how the manufacturers can afford to ignore a large segment of their best customers. - - - PROSPECTIVE NUDIST

Dear Pro: The manufacturers say business is good. So someone is buying the nutty styles, even though you aren't. And, P. S., Sister---neither am I.

Want to say "no" to drinking without your buddies putting you down? Get cued in. Write for "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Highway Patrol has been selected as a member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's new national crime information center.

Data on stolen automobiles, wanted persons and other police information will be fed into computers at Washington and a response will be available in about 30 seconds.

Col. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, patrol superintendent, said "we are looking for young men with technical or operational experience in communications to work in this new activity."

NEW DELHI (AP) The government reports that the number of foreign missionaries in India has increased by more than 100 in the past year up from 4,111 to 4,214.

The Prayer
From
The Upper Room

"This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you." (John 15: 12, RSV)

PRAYER: Eternal God, we dedicate our hands and our feet, our knowledge and our skills, our hearts and our minds to serve Thee faithfully. Accept us for service. For the Master's sake. Amen.

Farm Chemical Stolen At Essex Recovered

CARUTHERSVILLE -The sheriff's department recovered 68 gallons of Treflan, used in farm defoliation, Saturday before the Stoddard county firm found it was missing.

Deputy Sheriffs Tommy German and Wesley Mayo were called to Steele early Saturday after Steele police observed a heavily loaded car and gave chase. Two men left the car and escaped through a soybean field.

The deputies confiscated the car which contained 35 gallons of the farm chemical. Later in the day a tip led the officers to another 33 gallons of the chemical in a soybean field near Steele. All had been taken from Monsanto Chemical Company in Essex, Mo.

Arrested that afternoon Walter Nichols of Steele. Nichols, who was recently released form the Dunklin County jail, was turned over to Stoddard county authorities.

Deputy German reported that he also recovered five cases of Tinneren, another farm chemical, which had been taken from an Armorell, Ark., warehouse. This was found in an empty farmhouse after German was given another tip.

Officials of Henry Meldrum Post No. 114, The American Legion, are opening the campaign to build up for the 21st annual Cotton Carnival, scheduled to be held Sept. 25-30, and first on the list of the important events will be the "Cotton Top King and Queen" contest, which will be held, Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

Any youngster, boy or girl, in the area, between the ages of three and six is eligible except he, or she, must have blond hair.

Parents interested in entering their youngsters in this contest are requested to fill out the following blank and mail it to W. B. Pinnell Box 129, Sikeston, Mo.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 20, the 263rd day of 1967. There are 102 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, President Harry Truman asked Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace for his resignation following a speech Wallace made criticizing U.S. policy toward Russia.

On this date:

In 1797, the American Frigate Old Ironsides was launched at the Boston Navy Yard.

In 1850, Congress voted to ban the slave trade in the District of Columbia.

In 1873, the panic of 1873 reached a climax when the New York Stock Exchange closed its doors.

In 1881, Vice President Chester A. Arthur took the oath of office as 21st President following the death of President James Garfield.

In 1938, a hurricane swept over Long Island, New Jersey and New England, taking an estimated 682 lives.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy addressed the U.N. General Assembly and proposed a joint American-Russian expedition to the moon.

Ten years ago — Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas obeyed a federal court order and withdrew National Guard troops who had been barring Negro students from entering Central High School in Little Rock.

Five years ago— James Meredith was kept from enrolling at the University of Mississippi by Gov. Ross Barnett.

One year ago — The U.N. General Assembly opened its 21st session with a call for constructive negotiations which would lead to an honorable peace in Vietnam.

Neighborhood Service Centers May Be Closed in Area

PORTAGEVILLE-- The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation which met here Monday night was informed by Wayne Thomas, regional director of Community Action Programs for the Office of Economic Opportunity, that its program funds had been cut from $2 1/2 million to $600,000 for the coming year.

Thomas, who presented recommendations resulting from an evaluation made in July of the DAEOC program under the direction of the OEO office, told the representatives of the six-county area which makes up the corporation, that the remainder of the $2 1/2 million might be later if DAEOC shapes up to qualifications demanded by OEO.

The $600,000 will be granted, Thomas said, for administration if DAEOC and for two current programs-home aids in Stoddard county and after school tutoring centers at Kennett.

This will mean, he pointed out, that Neighborhood Service Centers will be closed down, unless -as the OEO office has specified-DAEOC meets requirements necessary to continue.

Rather than dividing into separate organizations, the evaluation team recommended that the six counties stay together, rebuild their organization and staff, employ a management consultant to rebuild the staff (and recruit top personnel nation-wide if necessary to find qualified persons to administer the $2 1/2 million program) and initiate an intensive communication program both for the general public and for personnel employed in the 24 community action agencies.

Thomas was of the opinion, when questioned, that it would take six months or more before these recommendations could possibly be fulfilled and DAEOC would be in shape to qualify for funding of the several programs that will have to be dropped for the present.

He announced that if DAEOC gets busy and is in shape, the Head Start program - now being carried by the University of Missouri - night be given back to this agency in the fall of 1968.

During the meeting Southeast Missouri Development Corp. turned the Neighborhood Youths Corps back over to DAEOC and presented a check to cover expenses of this program which is financed by the U.S. department of labor.

Another major recommendation from the team was that a personnel officer be among the new staff members and that a merit system be installed, from the administrative office down through the 24 community agencies, and that a complete file be kept in the Portageville office.

Another observaion reported was that the administrative staff in the past did not wield the authority needed to keep the six-county program unified and, at times, there seemed to be 24 separate programs in operation. The team said DAEOC had a good system on paper but no one seemed to pay much attention to "orders from headquarters."

The team also suggested that an adequate training program be set up since many persons observed or questioned by the group last July lacked knowledge about how to carry out their responsibilities.

The only official action taken by the board of directors last night was to vote to dontact three consultant firms in view of hiring a management consultant at the earliest possible date.

Among outsiders present for the board meeting were Dean Lupkey of Kansas City, assistant to Don Thomason at the regional OEO office, and John Wandeless, a field representative from the Kansas City office.

Dale Beaird

Queen Christens New Ocean Liner

CLYDEBANK, Scotland (AP) Queen Elizabeth II cracked a magnum of champagne on the graceful bows of Britain's great new ocean liner today and launched it into the River Clyde with the name millions were waiting to her— her own, Queen Elizabeth II.

An emotional roar erupted from 30,000 throats as the Cunarder glided down the shipway and set up a huge wave across the river.

"May God bless her and all who sail in her," said the queen.

The name of the ship had been kept secret until now. She had been known only as Q4.

Mako Shark styling seen in

Sophisticated 1968 Corvette Coupe

Dramatically new and different is the 1968 Corvette. The revolutionary coupe roof design includes removable panels and rear window for sophisticated open-air driving. The Mako Shark-bred Corvette boasts of longer and lower aerodynamic lines that are enhanced by a graceful sloping hood and retractable headlamps. Grille, rear deck and recessed taillights are all new. Both coupe and convertible have a new ventilation system with full door glass styling. Concealed windshield wipers and light monitoring system are standard 1968 Corvette features.

DETROIT -- A new peak in individuality among Chevrolet's six car lines is reached for 1968, E. M. Estes, general manager, said today.

"Each member of our automotive 'family' has a distinct pace setting personality with features that fully span its market," Estes said. "This matches the growing customer desire for one-of-a-kind cars built in mass production."

A total of 41 new Chevrolet, Chevelle, Camaro, Chevy II, Corvair and Corvette models go on sale on Thursday, September 21. Highlights include:

-- All new advance design bodies for Chevelle, Chevy II and Corvette, with introduction of two wheelbases within the Chevelle line.

-- A longer, more luxurious regular Chevrolet, new sportiness for Camaro and continued stress on the special features offered only by Corvair.

Important safety improvements, exhaust emission controls, and anti-theft provisions are standard equipment on all models.

-- Improvements in ride, handling and performance including a larger base V-8 engine for the regular Chevrolet, Chevelle and Chevy II.

Introduction on several lines of full door windows without ventipanes, hidden windshield wipers and dual level "Astro" ventilation.

Heading a list of more than 400 options and accessories is a power vacuum door lock system, a lamp monitoring system to tell the driver if his front and rear lights are working, front disc brakes and added availability of stereo tape players.

Safety improvements range from energy-absorbing front seat backs and safety armrests positioned to shield door handles to seat belts for all passenger positions and exterior side marker lights. (See detailed separate list.)

Here are principal features of each Chevrolet line:

REGULAR CHEVROLET -- Increased length and new front, side and rear styling reinforce the "big car" image of the industry's top selling car, offered in 18 models in four series on a 119-inch wheelbase.

A new front bumper has a central bar that splits the grille horizontally. Concealed headlamps are introduced as an option for Caprice models. Windshield wipers hidden beneath the cowl when not in use are standard on all models. Left hand blades are articulated for increased wiping area on the driver's side.

The rear deck extends fully down to the flush-mounted bumper giving easy access to the trunk. Traditional Chevrolet taillight clusters are mounted for the first time in the new rear bumper.

Added prestige is styled into the exclusive square roofline of the Caprice Coupe. A new model-Impala Custom Coupe-offers this roofline to Impala hardtop buyers in addition to the "fastback" Impala Sport Coupe.

Door vent windows are eliminated on the Caprice Coupe. New dual level "Astro" ventilation providing continuous flow of outside air through the upper levels of the passenger compartment is standard on the Caprice Coupe, optional on other Caprice and Impala models. There is a different wood-like trim on Caprice Estate Wagons.

A full length body side molding on all Impala models features a black vinyl insert which in addition to adding distinctiveness also gives side body protection.

New luxury interiors offer both pattern cloth with vinyl and all-vinyl.

Refined body mounting and other chassis improvements gives a smoother, quieter ride. The base V-8 engine is increased to 307 cubic inches, developing 200 horsepower. A 327 cubic-inch V-8 which also uses regular gasoline is introduced.

A 250 cubic-inch base six and three other V-8's up to 427 cubic inches give a horsepower range from 155 to 385. Five transmissions include Turbo Hydra-Matic which is offered in 1968 with all V-8's on top of-the-line models.

CORVETTE -- An all new aerodynamic body incorporating the design of the experimental Mako Shark II is offered by America's only mass produced sports car in its 16th year on the market.

More than 7 inches longer and two inches lower while retaining the 98-inch wheelbase, Corvette comes in both a convertible and unique "semi-convertible" sport coupe which has removable roof panel sections and rear windows.

High-rise front fenders with functional louvers frame the long sloping hood. The grille, including front parking lights, is beneath the flush-mounted bumper. Vacuum operated retractable headlamps are concealed in the upper body surface.

New concealed windshield wipers are hidden beneath the power-operated cowl panel. Full door glass styling eliminates ventipanes and "Astro" ventilation is standard. So is Chevrolet's lamp monitoring system.

The slim-waisted fiberglass body sweeps back to a short deck with a flared rear spoiler. Large circular tail lamps retain Corvette's identity.

The all-new interior has aircraft-type instrumentation. Circular housings for speedometer and tachometer are recessed into the instrument panel. Improved, contour bucket seats have higher backrests for increased comfort.

A higher capacity electrical system, wider tread and wider wheels and tires are among engineering improvements. Four-wheel disc brakes again are standard.

Five V-8 engines offer a horsepower range from 300 to 435. Turbo Hydra-Matic is the automatic transmission option on 1968 Corvettes. Three-and four-speed fully synchronized transmissions are offered.

CHEVELLE -- The industry's intermediate leader gets its first all-new body since introduction in 1964, plus two distinct package sizes.

Sedans and station wagons are longer with wheelbases increased one inch to 116 inches. Coupe and convertible models are slightly shorter and have a 112-inch wheelbase that gives additional emphasis to Chevelle's new long hood, short deck design.

Fourteen models in four series include two new value leaders-a 300-Deluxe two-door hardtop and a two-seat station wagon named "Nomad" which replaces the Chevy II station wagon.

A luxury Concours option is offered for the Malibu sport sedan. The Concours station wagon has wood-grain trim. Popular SS 396 models again have a distinctive hood and other ornamentation.

The redesigned front end has a lower, fine grid grille with bold horizontal bars. The long hood flares over concealed windshield wipers, standard on Concours, SS 396, and Malibu models.

Back window, curved side glass and greater slope windshield have increased total area. The roofline flows into new rear quarters and rear deck. There are wraparound tail lamps and a wider, deep section bumper.

Chevelles have all new interiors. Instruments are in recessed square panels on either side of the steering column and are mounted at an angle toward the driver for improved visibility.

The perimeter frame and front and rear suspension are redesigned for an improved ride. On a number of models, brakes are improved through adoption of fined drums.

Chevrolet's new 307 cubic-inch engine is the base V-8 for all but SS models. Two sizes and six V-8's give horsepower from 140 to 350. Five transmissions are offered.

CAMARO -- After scoring a strong success in its first year on the market and climbing to second place in sales among all domestic small cars, Camaro has added appeal in 1968.

Again offered in a sport coupe and convertible on 108-inch wheelbase, Camaro has full door glass styling without vent windows and Chevrolet's new dual level "Astro" ventilation.

A new V-shape grille with strong horizontal lines adds depth to the front view. Special moldings accent the venturi-shape of the sides. Wheel trim covers and tail lamps are restyled. Camaro continues its exclusive feature in its class-concealed headlights available as part of the Rally Sport option.

More luxury has been added to all interiors. Expanded vinyl-softer and richer feeling-is used on all seat trim. The instrument panel has new dial faces, chrome accents and larger padding.

Relocation of shock absorbers and provision for greater ride travel are among chassis improvements. Two sixes and four V-8 engines with horsepower from 140 to 325 are available, plus four transmissions.

Camaro again offers a wide variety of options, accessories and "packages" including Super Sport options with 350 and 396 cubic-inch engines to allow the buyer to custom build his car.

CHEVY II -- Chevrolet's popular small family car gets its first all-new body since introduction in 1962. It is longer, wider, and lower and comes in two-and four-door Nova models. Wheelbase is one-inch longer at 111 inches.

Curved side glass and rounded contours give all-new look. Front fenders project slightly forward and the grille ends extend outside the single unit headlamps.

Softer, more flowing body lines are particularly evident from the rear. The deck lid extends up to the base of the back window. Tail lamps include integral back-up lamps.

The instrument panel is extensively redesigned. Gauges and controls are grouped in a compact recessed area immediately forward of the driver. There is more interior room.

Like Camaro, Chevy II offers a wide range of exterior and interior options so the customer can tailor his car to the desired degree of utility or luxury.

Chassis improvements such as new independent coil front suspension and rear shock absorbers plus a new unitized body give a smoother ride.

A four-cylinder, two sixes and three V-8 engines give horsepower from 90 to 295. There are three transmissions.

CORVAIR -- In its ninth year on the market, Corvair is again geared to the buyer who values its air-cooled engine and rear-engine traction and other special features.

Two sport coupes and a convertible on 108-inch wheelbase continue the distinctive styling which has shaped Corvair's personality. A new finer grain vinyl is used on Corvair interiors together with other refinements. An optional window defroster is introduced.

A new vapor return line for improved hot start and idle is added. Three six-cylinder engines from 95 to 140 horsepower are available, plus three transmissions.

Chevrolet offers 15 exterior colors -- 12 of them new -- for 1968. There are up to six two-tone combinations, black or white vinyl roof options and three convertible top colors.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)— Burleigh Arnold of Jefferson City was elected president of the Missouri Good Roads and Streets Association at its annual meeting Monday. He succeeds Henry Danuser of Fulton.

A highlight of the annual banquet was the naming of Rex M. Whitton as recipient of the association scroll of honor for outstanding contributions to the highway program.

Whitton, of Independence, is former federal highway administrator as well as former chief engineer of the Missouri Highway Department.

Other officers elected include vice presidents Lowell McCuskey of Linn, Dwight Wheelan of Montgomery City, and Carl Penzel of Jackson; treasurer Theodore Schmidt of Jefferson City and secretary J. Ed Travis Jr. of St. Charles.

Arnold, an attorney, is vice president and trust officer of Central Missouri Trust Co. in Jefferson City.

Library Summer Jobs Open to Young Interns

JEFFERSON CITY -- Ten college sophomores and juniors or young teachers will have the opportunity to learn about the library profession first hand, and also to work at an interesting job next summer. The Missouri State Library, collaborating with the Missouri Library Association, is continuing the library internship program. The purpose of the program is to give qualified young people an introduction to the profession of librarianship through the experience of working in public library.

During the summer of 1967 internships were awarded to Dorothy Edna Balkenhol of Jefferson City and Toni Lou Mooney of Cape Girardeau, who were employed by the Daniel Boone Regional Library, Columbia; Virginia Leigh Coleman and Mary Alison Lichius of Jefferson City who were employed by the Thomas Jefferson library system in Jefferson City; Myra K. Harms, Overland Park, Kas., at Mid-Continent Public Library Service, Independence; Marilyn Mildred Hudson, Granby, at Barry-Lawrence Regional Library, Monett; Carol Ann Phillips of Chillicothe at the Livingston County Library, Chillicothe; Gayle Elaine Robinett of Pleasant Hill at the Trails Regional Library, Warrensburg; Carol Sue Schulze of Hannibal at the University City public library; and Katherine Jane Schnell and Gwendolyn Schwartze of St. Louis, at the St. Louis public library.

A library internship is a summer position in a public library in Missouri, awarded on a competitive basis to a college sophomore or junior or to a young teacher who is interested in becoming a librarian.

To be eligible for one of the ten internships, college sophomores or juniors must have done acceptable scholastic work, be in good health, and have desirable personal qualifications. Young teachers under 35 years of age who are seriously interested in becoming public librarians may try the profession out during the summer vacation.

The position will be awarded on the basis of formal application, references and an interview.

The period of the internship will be three months on a full-time basis. Each position will carry a salary of approximately $225 to $275 per month, depending on local conditions.

Under the plan, interns may be placed on duty in libraries which have an administrative librarian who is a professional. Applications from participating libraries and prospective internees will be reviewed by the Missouri Library Association, and selections will be made on the basis of opportunities afforded for worthwhile experience under able supervision. Prospective internees should apply by February 15, 1968. Forms and additional information may be obtained by request from the Missouri State Library.

A PIOUS and venerable wise man, having lived a long and useful life, died and went to his reward. Years later, his most trusted follower departed this life and, upon arriving on the other side, went searching for his old teacher. To his delight, he found him sitting on a large cloud with a beautiful blonde on his lap. "How marvelous!" he exclaimed. "I am delighted to see that you have been given your just reward."

"Reward, my foot!" growled the old man. "I'm her punishment."

1968 Chevrolets

The 1968 Chevrolets are the very essence of modern design. Every line, every curve is in close harmony. It's a smooth, uncluttered look with roof lines compatible with body lines, grilles and bumpers that blend gracefully into long, rounded fenders. Clean, flowing, beautiful in their simplicity, these '68 Chevrolets are rich and advanced in styling beyond any you've ever seen.

A MORE SILENT RIDE

And for 1968, we've gone to every length to give you more peace and quiet inside. The most sophisticated computers have been used to strategically place body mounts and successfully isolate noise and vibration. Shock absorbers have been improved. The wheel stance on many models is wider for greater smoothness. Exhaust systems have been redesigned to make them whisper-quiet. Even the clocks tick more softly. A sound car is a silent car. The '68 Chevrolets are the most silent, highest quality cars we've ever built.

BETTER PERFORMANCE

There are new engines, a bigger standard Six and V8. There's a new 250-hp V8 you can order that runs on regular fuel. Many new engine components increase dependability and keep your new Chevrolet running stronger. There's a new rear axle ratio you can add for greater economy. On most engines equipped with automatic transmissions, there's a special heater for the carburetor which gives you more efficient performance in cold weather. And with every engine, you get the new GM exhaust emission control.

UNIQUE ASTRO VENTILATION

There's a whole new idea in ventilation, called Astro Ventilation, for Camaro, Corvette and the elegant Caprice Coupe. It's also available on many other models. By opening two new vent-ports on the instrument panel, you bring in outside air that can be directed where you want it. This way, you can leave your windows rolled up and add still more to your peace and quiet.

PROVED SAFETY FEATURES

You get the proved GM-developed energy absorbing steering column, folding front seat back latches, dual master cylinder brake system with warning light, plus many more new features. Among them: energy absorbing front seat backs, and safety armrests that shield the door handles.

MUCH MORE THAT'S NEW

There are new roof lines, some formal and graceful, others sporty and quick. There are new instrument panels, richly designed and all controls within easy reach. There are new interiors, new vinyls, new fabrics, new colors. There are models with Hide-A-Way windshield wipers and headlights that disappear behind grilles. There are new side marker lamps, new recessed taillights. There's even a new ignition alarm buzzer that reminds you not to walk away and leave your keys in the car.

These are the newest, the most different, the most dramatically changed Chevrolets ever. And they're at your Chevrolet dealer's now. You'll thoroughly enjoy slipping behind the wheel, experiencing the smooth new handling and library-quiet ride and, more than anything, seeing and feeling the even greater quality built into every new Chevrolet for 1968.

Sophisticated 1968 Corvette Coupe

Dramatically new and different is the 1968 Corvette. The revolutionary coupe roof design includes removable panels and rear window for sophisticated open-air driving. The Mako Shark-bred Corvette boasts of longer and lower aerodynamic lines that are enhanced by a graceful sloping hood and retractable headlamps. Grille, rear deck and recessed taillights are all new. Both coupe and convertible have a new ventilation system with full door glass styling. Concealed windshield wipers and light monitoring system are standard 1968 Corvette features.

DETROIT -- A new peak in individuality among Chevrolet's six car lines is reached for 1968, E. M. Estes, general manager, said today.

"Each member of our automotive 'family' has a distinct pace setting personality with features that fully span its market," Estes said. "This matches the growing customer desire for one-of-a-kind cars built in mass production."

A total of 41 new Chevrolet, Chevelle, Camaro, Chevy II, Corvair and Corvette models go on sale on Thursday, September 21. Highlights include:

-- All new advance design bodies for Chevelle, Chevy II and Corvette, with introduction of two wheelbases within the Chevelle line.

-- A longer, more luxurious regular Chevrolet, new sportiness for Camaro and continued stress on the special features offered only by Corvair.

Important safety improvements, exhaust emission controls, and anti-theft provisions are standard equipment on all models.

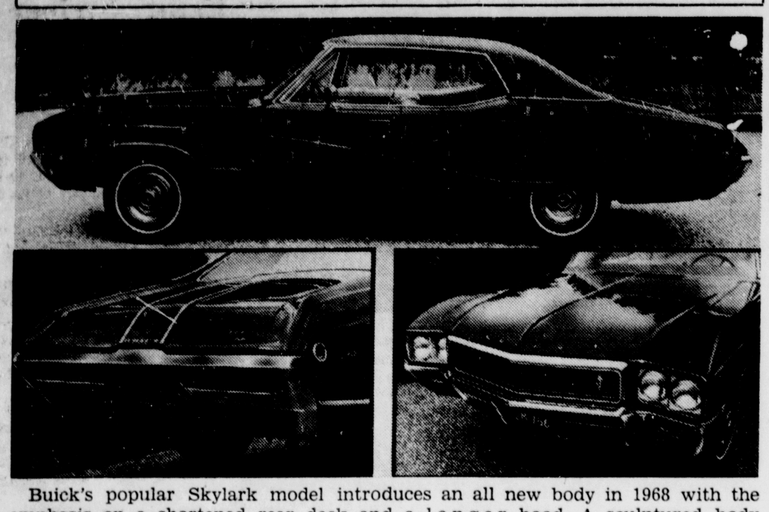
Buick Skylark Features All-New Body



Buick's popular Skylark model introduces an all new body in 1968 with the emphasis on a shortened rear deck and a longer hood. A sculptured body sweepline predominates the side view. The new grille is reminiscent of the Riviera and the new taillamps are designed into the large rear bumper. In the Skylark Custom model, such as the four door hardtop shown here, a 230 horsepower V-8 engine is standard equipment.

FLINT, MICH. -- Buick Motor Division introduced its 1968 cars with a completely new body for all intermediate size models, plus a wide array of new safety and styling features throughout the entire line.

The new styling for the Special Deluxe, Skylark and GS models features the contoured sweepline down the side, introduced on the upper series last year, longer hoods and shorter decks and a shorter wheelbase for two-door models.

Rivieras have been given a new look -- front and rear -- and the regular size cars in the line, Electra, Wildcat and LeSabre also have a new '68 appearance with new grilles, hoods, taillights, bumpers, instrument panels and interiors.

All 35 models in the line have new side marker lamps that operate with headlights. Windshield wipers are concealed within a space provided by the curved edge of the hood.

STYLING HIGHLIGHTS

Styling highlights for 1968 include these features:

ELECTRA 225: Most apparent change in front is the twin air intake grille, new hood top molding, which along with recessed windshield wipers accentuates the length of the hood. Taillamps are recessed in a new rear bumper to provide a smart looking change, and also giving more impact protection.

WILDCAT: This performance-minded series features new grilles, hoods, bumpers, and rear treatment. Width has been accentuated with the horizontal grille and wider headlamp housings.

LESABRE: The new front end treatment -- two separate horizontal grilles with the hood extension as the divider -- is unique to this series. Taillamps are extended and wrapped around the edge of the rear fenders to provide more dramatic day or night identification.

RIVIERA: The classic lines of the roof and profile are retained, but hoods, fenders, grille, and bumpers are new. The rear has been redesigned with new bumpers and recessed taillights. The front has treseye appeal with a new plastic front grille, set deeply within the steel frame. On the Riviera, the lower portion of the body is covered with optional stainless steel moldings. Headlamps are concealed in the outboard edges of the front grille.

SKYLARK: An all new body with the emphasis on a shortened rear deck and a longer hood. A sculptured body sweepline predominates the side view. Grille is a continuous loop design with headlamps located on both sides. A new rear bumper, offering impact protection and smarter styling, encloses the taillights. Skylark Custom models have rear wheels enclosed in fender skirts, plus distinguishing ornamentation.

SPECIAL DELUXE: All new body with new front, rear and side treatment to distinguish this series from others in the line. Side markers, ports and identification script complete the design that is predominately the Buick sweepline. This is the longest set of hood and front fenders ever used on this series.

SPORT WAGON: The popular wood grain side treatment continues as an option. The grille is new. A sleek new roof line with added glass area makes the new wagon look even lower. A new combination roof rack and back window air deflector is offered as a dealer installed option. Distinctive taillamp and rear bumper treatment provides a fresh new appearance.

GS 400: The shorter wheelbase on the coupe styles gives a more compact look to the body area and a longer hood appearance. Open wheel cuts, bordered by chrome molding, are featured. GS 400 styling's identification is immediate through ornamentation.

REDESIGNED INSTRUMENT PANEL

Instrument panels are distinctive in the Specials and Skylarks with knobs safety oriented and identified. Padded area has been increased with instrument cluster area and air conditioning outlets of crushable plastic.

In the regular size cars the entire impact surface of the instrument panel cluster area is shrouded with vinyl covered energy absorbing material. A break-away ignition key provides additional safety.

Safety features introduced last year, including the energy absorbing steering column and safety steering wheel, are continued.

In the interest of further passenger protection, Buick has added the following items: Improved door latch retention; larger outside rear view mirror; side marker lamps on front fenders and rear quarters; padded windshield corner posts; safety arm rests; and a buzzer that reminds driver to remove ignition key when the left front door is opened.

ALL NEW ENGINE

This year's line introduces an all-new 350 cubic inch V-8 engine, in two and four barrel carburetor versions. The two barrel carburetor is standard on all 350 cubic inch engine applications except the GS 350 which is equipped with a four barrel carburetor. Where the two barrel is standard, a four barrel is available as an option.

Along with increased displacement, the new 350 cubic inch engine offers new intake manifolds, cylinder heads and exhaust manifolds. The cylinder block, head gaskets, rocker arm cover and certain other components have been modified to accommodate these new parts.

A 250 cubic inch in-line six cylinder engine with single barrel carburetor will be introduced in the Special Deluxe and Skylark line. This rugged engine has an output of 155 horsepower with an 8.5 to 1 compression ratio.

The 400 cubic inch engine remains the exclusive standard power plant for GS 400 models, and is optional on the Sport Wagon.

The 430 cubic inch -- four-barrel quadrajet carburetor engine is standard on Wildcat, Electra and Riviera.

CHASSIS IMPROVEMENTS

Electra and Wildcat chassis have been completedly redesigned in rear suspension geometry, resulting in reduced road shock and improved handling stability.

Special Deluxe, Skylark and GS 400's have revisions in rear suspension geometry similar to those made on the larger cars. Although the chassis frames are entirely new, they continue the perimeter frame concept previously used.

An improved push -- button cruise control called "Cruise Master," is available for all models. The driver pushes the button at the speed he wants to maintain, and the cruise control takes over.

Fuel tank filler tubes are redesigned to withstand impact without puncturing or fracturing the joint at the tank.

Another improvement is the adoption of a new automatic transmission fluid which provides added durability, particularly for friction elements.

All manual transmissions, standard from Special Deluxe to Wildcat, have column -- mounted controls, except on the GS 400, which is a floor shift for both three and four speed manuals. This feature is also offered as an option on the GS 350, with either a three or four speed manual.

BETTER RIDE AND HANDLING

Riding and handling characteristics are improved by employing stiffer front coil springs, firmer shock absorber control, extra cushion shock absorber bushings and improved body mount insulators.

Other 1968 features include: Disc brakes and radial ply tires available as an option on all models.

The windshield wipe pattern is improved to effect approximately a 20 per cent increase in wiped area. A new washer pump delivers twice the volume and arms and blades have a brushed chrome finish to eliminate glare.

When the Indian chief, Seattle, for whom the city is named, died, the people of the city erected a monument in his honor because of his friendship for the white man.

Junior College Proposal Carries In Illinois

CAIRO -- Voters of five southern Illinois counties gave a junior college issue a comfortable margin of support Saturday and will go to the polls again within three months to select a board of education to operate the college.

Citizens of Alexander, Pulaski, Union, Johnson and Massac counties voted 4,237 to 1,969 in favor of establishing the Shawnee Junior college district.

Dr. George Otrich, Union County superintendent of schools, whose office conducted the election, said today that a date for the board election will be set soon. Illinois law, he said requires it to be held within 90 days after the district is established.

The board of education will be a seven-member body elected at large from the five-county district.

The location of the institution will be a mater for the board to decide-with the state junior college board's approval-but Dr. Otrich said it is almost certain that the college will not be located near any of the larger communities in the district, such as Cairo, Anna-Jonesboro or Metropolis.

All are near the edge of the district and the idea is to establish a commuter college, one no farther than 25 to 30 miles from any point in the district.

With the approval of the junior college district, the voters also authorized the levying of a maximum tax of 20 cents per $100 valuation for operation and five cents for building.

Two Take Public Health Nurse Training

MARTHA JEAN MCCOOL, a 19-year-old Memphis blond, will reign over the 1967 Mid South Fair, Friday through Sept. 30.

Blond Memphis Girl Is First Mid-South

MEMPHIS -- A beauteous blond with dimpled cheeks, flashing eyes and easy smile is the first Miss Mid-South.

Martha Jean McCool, a 19-year-old Memphis secretary, will reign over all activities of the Mid-South Fair which will run for nine days, Friday through Sept. 30.

Miss McCool was acclaimed the winner over 34 other candidates from Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee in the first Miss Mid-South Pageant at the Youth Center on the Fairgrounds. She succeeds Miss Yvonne Lowery of Newport, Ark., who was the last Fairest of the Fair. The name of the pageant and selection date of the winner were changed to better promote the Mid-South area.

The prime prize going to the winner is an expense-paid week in the Bahamas, as well as a wardrobe, use of an automobile during her reign and a huge trophy. Holiday Inns of America will be host to the winner at the new and luxurious Holiday Inn at Freeport, Grand Bahama Island.

Trophies went to first alternate Sherry Lynn Provost of Whitehaven and second alternate Susan Riley of Bartlett. The five finalists also included Jane Harasta of Brinkley, Ark. Other entries included Ann Richardson, Falkner, Miss.; Elaine Johnson, Jackson, Tenn.; Judith Mayo, Dresden, Tenn.; Judy Holliday, Ripley, Miss.; Diane Dotson, Winona, Miss.; Sandra Land, Winona, Miss.; Sandra Timmons, Charleston, Miss.; and Christie Ann South, Wynne, Ark.

'68 Buick. Now we're talking your language.

We changed the Skylark from front to rear, we gave it a whole new look, simply because we believe you want a car like this. In other words, we're talking your language.

We thought you'd like to have a little easier time parking. So we shortened the wheelbase of the two-door Skylark down to 112 inches.

The new 230-hp., V-8 engine runs on regular gas. It's standard on all Skylark Custom models.

We also refused to limit your choices. Skylark Custom comes in four models, 15 colors and 32 trim combinations. So talk to the man who talks your language, your Buick dealer.

All Buicks have a full line of General Motors safety features as standard equipment. For example, side marker lights and energy-absorbing steering column.

Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

The '68 Buicks are at your Buick-Opel dealer's now. He's ready to talk your language.

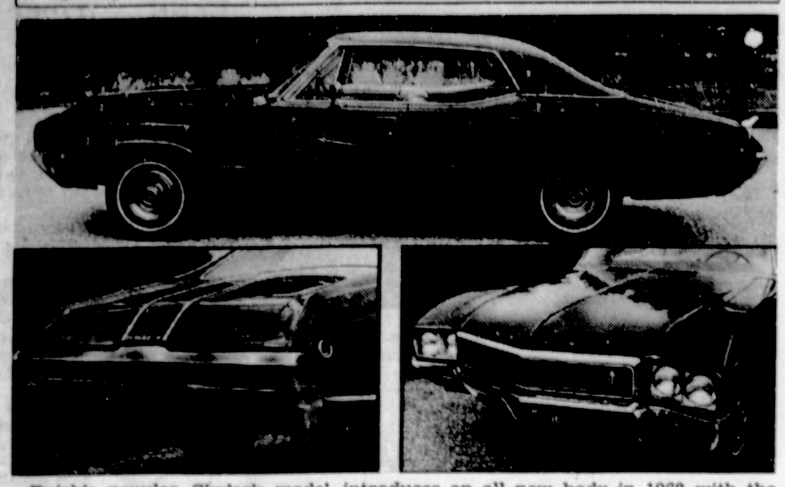
Buick Skylark Features All-New Body



Buick's popular Skylark model introduces an all new body in 1968 with the emphasis on a shortened rear deck and a longer hood. A sculptured body sweepline predominates the side view. The new grille is reminiscent of the Riviera and the new taillamps are designed into the large rear bumper. In the Skylark Custom model, such as the four door hardtop shown here, a 230 horsepower V-8 engine is standard equipment.

FLINT, MICH. -- Buick Motor Division introduced its 1968 cars with a completely new body for all intermediate size models, plus a wide array of new safety and styling features throughout the entire line.

The new styling for the Special Deluxe, Skylark and GS models features the contoured sweepline down the side, introduced on the upper series last year, longer hoods and shorter decks and a shorter wheelbase for two-door models.

Rivieras have been given a new look -- front and rear -- and the regular size cars in the line, Electra, Wildcat and LeSabre also have a new '68 appearance with new grilles, hoods, taillights, bumpers, instrument panels and interiors.

All 35 models in the line have new side marker lamps that operate with headlights. Windshield wipers are concealed within a space provided by the curved edge of the hood.

STYLING HIGHLIGHTS

Styling highlights for 1968 include these features:

ELECTRA 225: Most apparent change in front is the twin air intake grille, new hood top molding, which along with recessed windshield wipers accentuates the length of the hood. Taillamps are recessed in a new rear bumper to provide a smart looking change, and also giving more impact protection.

WILDCAT: This performance-minded series features new grilles, hoods, bumpers, and rear treatment. Width has been accentuated with the horizontal grille and wider headlamp housings.

LESABRE: The new front end treatment -- two separate horizontal grilles with the hood extension as the divider -is unique to this series. Taillamps are extended and wrapped around the edge of the rear fenders to provide more dramatic day or night identification.

RIVIERA: The classic lines of the roof and profile are retained, but hoods, fenders, grille, and bumpers are new. The rear has been redesigned with new bumpers and recessed taillights. The front has fresh eye appeal with a new plastic front grille, set deeply within the steel frame. On the Riviera, the lower portion of the body is covered with optional stainless steel moldings. Headlamps are concealed in the outboard edges of the front grille.

SKYLARK: An all new body with the emphasis on a shortened rear deck and a longer hood. A sculptured body sweepline predominates the side view. Grille is a continuous loop design with headlamps located on both sides. A new rear bumper, offering impact protection and smarter styling, encloses the taillights. Skylark Custom models have rear wheels enclosed in fender skirts, plus distinguishing ornamentation.

SPECIAL DELUXE: All new body with new front, rear and side treatment to distinguish this series from others in the line. Side markers, ports and identification script complete the design that is predominately the Buick sweepline. This is the longest set of hood and front fenders ever used on this series.

SPORT WAGON: The popular wood grain side treatment continues as an option. The grille is new. A sleek new roof line with added glass area makes the new wagon look even lower. A new combination roof rack and back window air deflector is offered as a dealer installed option. Distinctive taillamp and rear bumper treatment provides a fresh new appearance.

GS 400: The shorter wheelbase on the coupe styles gives a more compact look to the body area and a longer hood appearance. Open wheel cuts, bordered by chrome molding, are featured. GS 400 styling's identification is immediate through ornamentation.

REDESIGNED INSTRUMENT PANEL

Instrument panels are distinctive in the Specials and Skylarks with knobs safety oriented and identified. Padded area has been increased with instrument cluster area and air conditioning outlets of crushable plastic.

In the regular size cars the entire impact surface of the instrument panel cluster area is shrouded with vinyl covered energy absorbing material. A break-away ignition key provides additional safety.

Safety features introduced last year, including the energy absorbing steering column and safety steering wheel, are continued.

In the interest of further passenger protection, Buick has added the following items: Improved door latch retention; larger outside rear view mirror; side marker lamps on front fenders and rear quarters; padded windshield corner posts; safety arm rests; and a buzzer that reminds driver to remove ignition key when the left front door is opened.

ALL NEW ENGINE

This year's line introduces an all-new 350 cubic inch V-8 engine, in two and four barrel carburetor versions. The two barrel carburetor is standard on all 350 cubic inch engine applications except the GS 350 which is equipped with a four barrel carburetor. Where the two barrel is standard, a four barrel is available as an option.

Along with increased displacement, the new 350 cubic inch engine offers new intake manifolds, cylinder heads and exhaust manifolds. The cylinder block, head gaskets, rocker arm cover and certain other components have been modified to accommodate these new parts.

A 250 cubic inch in-line six cylinder engine with single barrel carburetor will be introduced in the Special Deluxe and Skylark line. This rugged engine has an output of 155 horsepower with an 8.5 to 1 compression ratio.

The 400 cubic inch engine remains the exclusive standard power plant for GS 400 models, and is optional on the Sport Wagon.

The 430 cubic inch -four-barrel quadrajet carburetor engine is standard on Wildcat, Electra and Riviera.

CHASSIS IMPROVEMENTS

Electra and Wildcat chassis have been completedly redesigned in rear suspension geometry, resulting in reduced road shock and improved handling stability.

Special Deluxe, Skylark and GS 400's have revisions in rear suspension geometry similar to those made on the larger cars. Although the chassis frames are entirely new, they continue the perimeter frame concept previously used.

An improved push -button cruise control called "Cruise Master," is available for all models. The driver pushes the button at the speed he wants to maintain, and the cruise control takes over.

Fuel tank filler tubes are redesigned to withstand impact without puncturing or fracturing the joint at the tank.

Another improvement is the adoption of a new automatic transmission fluid which provides added durability, particularly for friction elements.

All manual transmissions, standard from Special Deluxe to Wildcat, have column -mounted controls, except on the GS 400, which is a floor shift for both three and four speed manuals. This feature is also offered as an option on the GS 350, with either a three or four speed manual.

BETTER RIDE AND HANDLING

Riding and handling characteristics are improved by employing stiffer front coil springs, firmer shock absorber control, extra cushion shock absorber bushings and improved body mount insulators.

Other 1968 features include: Disc brakes and radial ply tires available as an option on all models.

The windshield wipe pattern is improved to effect approximately a 20 per cent increase in wiped area. A new washer pump delivers twice the volume and arms and blades have a brushed chrome finish to eliminate glare.

Pontiac . . . Styling Leader In 1968

ALL NEW FROM PONTIAC — Two of Pontiac Motor Division's newest and most distinctive 1968 models are shown above. In the foreground is the GTO convertible which features the exclusive Endura front bumper as standard equipment. The bumper is made of a special chemical compound which has an energy-absorbing quality. Also standard on GTO is a 400 cubic-inch engine and dual air scoops on the hood. Concealed headlamps and hood-mounted tachometer are among the GTO options. Also pictured is the Le Mans two-door hardtop coupe which reveals the new styling of all the 1968 Tempests. Featuring the popular long hood short deck styling, the Le Mans has a new roof line which blends into the rear section. Pontiac's overhead cam six cylinder engine is standard and there is an optional V-8, both with increased displacement and horsepower.

1968 PONTIAC LINE STORY

A new styling theme dominated by a bold front end design, engineering advancements which include another first in the industry and unexcelled safety are the characteristics of Pontiac Motor Division's 1968 models.

All Catalina, Executive, Bonneville and Grand Prix models carry a distinctive Pontiac oriented styling theme highlighted by a new wide peripheral front bumper with a strong and handsome center section.

Built-in safety features of every 1968 Pontiac include new side marker lamps, additional interior padding and crushable armrests.

"The safety, comfort and convenience of driving a new Pontiac are at their highest level," John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and Pontiac's general manager said.

The 1968 Pontiacs go on sale September 21.

MODEL LINE-UP

A total of 17 models in four series is available in 1968.

The volume-selling Catalina series offers a two-door sedan, four-door sedan, hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop, convertible, two-seat station wagon and three-seat station wagon.

Executive models include a four-door sedan, four-door hardtop, hardtop coupe, two-seat station wagon and three-seat station wagon.

Bonneville luxury is available in a hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop, convertible and three-seat station wagon.

A new hardtop coupe represents the Grand Prix series.

The popular Ventura custom trim option is offered on most Catalina models and the luxurious Brougham option is now available on Bonneville four-door hardtops, hardtop coupes and convertibles.

EXTERIOR STYLING

From every angle the 1968 Pontiacs reveal the look which has established Pontiac's styling trends as the ones to follow.

The new peripheral bumper integrates all front end components into one uncluttered design unit. Dual headlamps are placed horizontally within the bumper and appear wider apart with the new recessed horizontal ribbed design of the grille.

A familiar vertical Pontiac vee crest mounts on the bold center section of the bumper.

The Grand Prix front end features twin horizontally mounted headlamps that become visible when the lights are turned on.

All parking lamps are below the bumper and are teamed with side marker lamps in one housing to share a common lens that wraps around for side visibility. The parking lamps will be on when the headlamps are on.

Body sides emphasize the full length side peak line and are accented with an exclusive narrow molding which has a vinyl plastic insert on all models except the Grand Prix and Executive station wagon.

The vinyl molding insert guards against parking lot scratches and dents. It is offered in five different body colors to serve as a distinctive trim feature.

Rocker panel moldings enhance the side appearance of all Executive, Bonneville and Grand Prix models and they are offered with the decor option on all Catalinas.

The new look from the rear includes wide tail lamps which turn downward at the outboard ends to integrate body and bumpers on all models except the Grand Prix and station wagons. On the Grand Prix the lamps are in the rear bumper and they turn down at the inboard ends and extend outward with the bumper to provide wrap-around lighting to the sides. Station wagon lights are mounted in the rear quarter.

INTERIORS AND ACCESSORIES

All 1968 interiors are fully color-keyed to eliminate bright metal moldings and to minimize glare and annoyance.

The choice of colors for the Cordova or convertible tops have been increased to four and 13 of the 15 exterior colors are new for 1968.

Bi-level, tri-comfort air conditioning, AM-FM radio, stereo tape player and Pontiac's cruise control system are just a few in the long list of accessories and options which assure the maximum in driving pleasure.

SAFETY DEVICES

The instrument panel has additional thick foam padding that blends into the windshield pillars. This padding forms a large area of protection for front seat occupants. Full width padding has also been added to the center of the panel.

Other important standard interior safety features include a recessed ignition key and a newly designed cigarette lighter which will break away at a 90 pound load. Also standard are crushable arm rests, additional padding on the front seat backs, an energy-absorbing steering column and dual master cylinder brake system.

1968 FIREBIRD STORY

Pontiac Motor Division's 1968 Firebird has undergone an evolutionary styling change and latest engineering refinements provide greater customer comfort.

Front door vent windows have been eliminated and a new upper ventilation system, which provides draft-free circulation when the windows are closed, has been added.

In addition to its sports car appearance, the Firebird has improved sports-car ride and handling characteristics in 1968. New multi-leaf rear springs give the car a smoother, softer ride.

Shock absorbers are straddle mounted and the left shock is moved from the front to the rear of the axle while the right shock remains at the front of the axle. Arranged in this manner, and with the multi-leaf springs, the Firebird combines a soft ride with improved handling and stability while retaining its sports-car feel.

Both the standard overhead camshaft six-cylinder engine and the optional intermediate V-8 have displacement increases and the high performance 400 cubic-inch V-8 is also offered.

The Firebird interiors feature greater luxury and protection with the standard thinline bucket seats, a new and larger instrument panel, additional padding and refinements in appearance and lighting.

"The Firebirds, which have already established themselves in the personal sports car field, will meet with even greater acceptance in 1968," John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and Pontiac's general manager, said.

The Firebirds go on sale September 21.

LINE-UP

The Firebird is offered in a convertible and a hardtop coupe There is a custom option available on both models which includes deluxe wheel covers, wheel opening moldings, deluxe steering wheel and instrument panel assist grip.

The Firebirds are built on a 108.1-inch wheelbase and are 183.8 inches in overall length and 72.6 inches wide. The wide track is 60 inches front and rear.

Five engines are offered for the 1968 Firebirds. The standard overhead cam six-cylinder engine has been increased from 230 cubic-inch displacement to 250 cubic-inches and it is rated at 175 horsepower with one barrel carburetion.

Optional engines include the four-barrel OHC six-cylinder Sprint with 215 horsepower. In the V-8's the former 326 cubic-inch engine has been increased to 350 cubic inches with 265 horsepower and two-barrel carburetion. There is an HO version of this engine with a rating of 320 horsepower and four barrel carburetion.

The high performance 400 cubic-inch V-8 has a four barrel carburetor and wide oval red line tires and twin air scoops on a special hood are standard with this 330 horsepower engine. There are HO and Ram Air options with this engine also.

Transmissions include a three-speed manual as standard and a four-speed manual or two-speed automatic optional on all except the 400 cubic inch models where the automatic transmission is the three speed Turbo Hydra-Matic.

MONO-JET CARBURETOR

An all new Mono-Jet (one barrel) carburetor is standard on all Firebirds with manual transmissions and is designed to significantly reduce exhaust emission without requiring air injection reaction assistance.

Also standard on all overhead cam six-cylinder and V-8 engines is a new carburetor air preheater which provides almost instant warm air to the carburetor for smoother cold start operations by elimination of all carburetor icing conditions.

EXTERIORS

The absnece of the vent window post adds to the longer, lower roof line appearance of the new Firebirds. side lighting is assured in the front with a wrap-around lens which combines side markers and parking lamp. In the rear, Pontiac vee crest markers operating on the tail lamps circuit provide additional lighting.

The 1968 Firebirds carry distinctive Pontiac identity with a wide peripheral front bumper, strong vertical center and horizontally mounted dual headlamps.

Each model has a full width rocker molding and six vertical louvers on the front of the rear quarter, rear of the door opening.

At the rear is a protective wrap-around bumper. louver style tail lamps featuring chrome edged slits which also contain back-up lamps.

A new degre of luxury and comfort is apparent with the new Firebird interiors.

The instrument panel has new lenses of a shall conical design which allows for easier reading of the new block lettering on the instruments. The panel itself has a new blue shade for color balancing of the instruments and internal surfaces of the housings.

The standard bucket seats have specific styling with cushions and backs finished with attractive dielectric embossing in geniune expanded vinyl. There is a bench seat with center folding armrest optional on selected models.

An ignition key buzzer which sounds when the driver's door is opened with the keys in the ignition and in the off position is part of the standard safety package.

SAFETY DEVICES

Foam filled, molded windshield pillar moldings, side marker lamps, and crushable arm rests are new standard equipment safety items.

A new and larger instrument panel pad, soft vinyl door knobs and flexible door handles provide added protection. Every Firebird is equipped with an energy-absorbing steering column, dual master cylinder brake system and four-way hazard warning flasher.

1968 TEMPEST LINE STORY

Pontiac Motor Division's 1968 Tempests enter the new model year with the most extensive styling changes, engineering improvements and built-in safety since this popular series was introduced seven years ago.

An exclusive energy-absorbing fromt bumper for the GTO, separate wheelbases for two-door and four-door models, increased engine displacement and a new level of interior comfort and protection head a long list of 1968 Tempest, Tempest Custom, LeMans, Safari and GTO features.

For the first time the Tempest will be built on two wheelbases. All two-door coupes and convertibles will have a 112-inch wheelbase and the four-door models and station wagons will be built on a 116-inch base. The wide track has been increased to 60 inches at both the front and rear.

The Pontiac-inspired styling places particular emphasis on the venturi shpae, accentuating the long hood, short deck profile. A blending of new roof lines into the rear adds new grace to the overall styling theme.

Thick absorbing padding across the instrument panel, windshield pillars and along the top of the front seat backs are standard on every model.

"A new sports car atmosphere surrounds our 1968 Tempests," John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and Pontiac's general manager said.

The 1968 Tempests go on sale September 21.

MODEL LINE-UP

There are 15 models in the four Tempest series.

A sports coupe and four-door sedan make up the Tempest series.

The Tempest Custom series offers a sports coupe, hardtop coupe, four-door sedan, four-door hardtop, convertible and two-seat station wagon.

LeMans models include a sports coupe, hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop and convertible.

A separate series is the four-door, two-seat Tempest Safari station wagon.

There are two GTO models, a hardtop coupe and a convertible.

In addition the Sprint option is available on all models except station wagons and the GTO.

EXTERIOR STYLING

From bumper to bumper and roof to road the 1968 Tempest styling establishes a new form of identity and big car look throughout the entire line.

A full width peripheral front bumper carries the primary front end theme. Twin horizontally placed headlamps at the extreme ends of the ribbed grille are recessed inside the bumper. A Pontiac crest at the crown of the bumpers bold center section and the famous split grille give instant Pontiac identity.

The industry's first and Pontiac exclusive energy-absorbing front bumper is standard on all GTO models. It is the same color as the exterior body paint for a completely new and different front end appearance.

In addition, its absorbing feature makes it functionally superior to any metal bumper now in use.

GTO headlamps and grille are in a horizontal arrangement and concealed headlamps are optional for this series.

All Tempests have parking lamps below the bumper teamed wide side markr lamps in one housing that share a common lens and wrap around for side viewing.

Long hoods sweep up to the windshield wiper linkage adding to an even longer looking view. Dual simulated air inlets widely spaced on the GTO hood add a sports car touch.

Tempest body sides are all new with particular emphasis on a venturi shape accentuating the long hood, short deck style. Subtle blending of the new low roof lines into the quarter and rear adds grace to the profile.

All models are tastefully accented with long low rocker moldings. Side markers contribute to additional warning.

From the rear new Tempest styling reveals deep section bumpers housing three sectional stop, tail and back-up lamps at the outer ends. The GTO has its own distinctive dual stop and tail lamps spaced horizontally for a wider look to the already wide track stance.

COLORS AND INTERIORS

Comfort, added protection and a new plateau of quality are all apparent in the Tempest interiors.

A thickly padded full width instrument panel features deeply recessed instruments and controls. Foam filled padding added to the windshield pillars continues the protection theme.

Wood grain applique on the center section of the Safari and GTO instrument panel gives a quality appearl while a dark textured painted center enhances these panels on Tempests, Tempest Customs and LeMans.

Of significant note is the addition of padding on front seat back uppers, affording extra protection to rear seat passengers.

There are new crushable type armrests and the door locking knobs are soft vinyl and color keyed to the interiors.

There are 15 exterior colors available and 13 of these are new for 1968. The number of Cordova top colors has increased to four and the top will have new trim lines. Convertible tops will offer the same four color choices.

All Tempests will have as standard the new anti-theft package which includes an ignition key buzzer which sounds when the driver's door is opened with the keys in the ignition.

Details of Ho Interview Disclosed

By WILLIAM C. BAGGS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Word came in the afternoon that Ho Chi Minh wished to see us.

His office is in the frayed elegance of the palace which once accommodated the governors when France ruled this neighborhood of Southeast Asia.

The old gentleman was certainly prompt. We were ushered into a rather small room, decorated only with a single painting—of a brownish eagle—and we had not seated ourselves when he came in, walking in a mixture of a stride and a bounce.

After a few minutes of social conversation, Ho Chi Minh asked if we could talk "among ourselves." It was this suggestion that the talks should be private which could not permit a reporting of the conversation until now. Recent disclosures of the virtal parts of the talk have removed the prohibition.

Ashmore and I emphasized to our host that we could talk, but we pointed out that anything he said in the conversation would be reported to our government. We stressed that we did not represent the United States but were pledged to report the conversation in detail to Washington. He nodded.

There was no possibility of peace talks, he said, until the bombing of North Vietnam stopped. And, tapping his fingers together, he said no new American troops should be introduced into Vietnam during any peace talks.

Well then, we asked, could talks begin if the United States stopped the bombing?

He measured the question with much care, and said: "You are a businessman and I am a businessman, and I want to see the goods before the price is established."

During this portion of the conversation, Ho spoke in English and, through an interpreter, in French and Vietnamese.

Twice more we asked if talks could really begin if the bombing were concluded. And twice Ho said that talks could begin if the bombing stopped.

The Communist leader, involved in the nationalism of his country for almost half a century, said that we and all Americans should realize that his country had been at war for 25 years, against the Japanese and the French and the Americans, and they would never surrender their independence after so long a struggle.

Moreover, he continued, coming back to the subject of peace talks, he had no conditions for such talks except an end to the bombing. The meeting could be private or public, he said, and no agenda was necessary.

Ho referred to the bombings all through the conversation. He admitted the bombings hurt North Vietnam but pointed out that the bombings did not unreasonably hamper the military ability of the country.

Dark had crawled over Hanoi when we left the palace. We had talked two hours, and the next evening Ho sent a minister to see us and make certain we had an accurate record of what he had said. The minister seemed anxious that Ho's views not be misinterpreted, in the slightest degree, in the report of the talk to our government.

Candy Striper Instruction Will Begin

An instruction class for Candy Stripers at the Missouri Delta Community hospital will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the hospital.

The organization is open to all girls who are 16 years old and meet the requirements:

Have consent of parents, furnish a reference from a doctor, teacher, minister or business person, abide by the rules of the hospital and the Candy Striper organization and furnish own uniform.

This class will be for girls who are already Candy Stripers as well as girls who wish to join. No one will be eligible to work this year if she does not attend this class.

HIGHWAY 61 N. SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Pontiac . . . Styling Leader In 1968

ALL NEW FROM PONTIAC — Two of Pontiac Motor Division's newest and most distinctive 1968 models are shown above. In the foreground is the GTO convertible which features the exclusive Endura front bumper as standard equipment. The bumper is made of a special chemical compound which has an energy-absorbing quality. Also standard on GTO is a 400 cubic-inch engine and dual air scoops on the hood. Concealed headlamps and hood-mounted tachometer are among the GTO options. Also pictured is the Le Mans two-door hardtop coupe which reveals the new styling of all the 1968 Tempests. Featuring the popular long hood short deck styling, the Le Mans has a new roof line which blends into the rear section. Pontiac's overhead cam six cylinder engine is standard and there is an optional V-8, both with increased displacement and horsepower.

1968 PONTIAC LINE STORY

A new styling theme dominated by a bold front end design, engineering advancements which include another first in the industry and unexcelled safety are the characteristics of Pontiac Motor Division's 1968 models.

All Catalina, Executive, Bonneville and Grand Prix models carry a distinctive Pontiac oriented styling theme highlighted by a new wide peripheral front bumper with a strong and handsome center section.

Built-in safety features of every 1968 Pontiac include new side marker lamps, additional interior padding and crushable armrests.

"The safety, comfort and convenience of driving a new Pontiac are at their highest level," John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and Pontiac's general manager said.

The 1968 Pontiacs go on sale September 21.

MODEL LINE-UP

A total of 17 models in four series is available in 1968.

The volume-selling Catalina series offers a two-door sedan, four-door sedan, hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop, convertible, two-seat station wagon and three-seat station wagon.

Executive models include a four-door sedan, four-door hardtop, hardtop coupe, two-seat station wagon and three-seat station wagon.

Bonneville luxury is available in a hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop, convertible and three-seat station wagon.

A new hardtop coupe represents the Grand Prix series.

The popular Ventura custom trim option is offered on most Catalina models and the luxurious Brougham option is now available on Bonneville four-door hardtops, hardtop coupes and convertibles.

EXTERIOR STYLING

From every angle the 1968 Pontiacs reveal the look which has established Pontiac's styling trends as the ones to follow.

The new peripheral bumper integrates all front end components into one uncluttered design unit. Dual headlamps are placed horizontally within the bumper and appear wider apart with the new recessed horizontal ribbed design of the grille.

A familiar vertical Pontiac vee crest mounts on the bold center section of the bumper.

The Grand Prix front end features twin horizontally mounted headlamps that become visible when the lights are turned on.

All parking lamps are below the bumper and are teamed with side marker lamps in one housing to share a common lens that wraps around for side visibility. The parking lamps will be on when the headlamps are on.

Body sides emphasize the full length side peak line and are accented with an exclusive narrow molding which has a vinyl plastic insert on all models except the Grand Prix and Executive station wagon.

The vinyl molding insert guards against parking lot scratches and dents. It is offered in five different body colors to serve as a distinctive trim feature.

Rocker panel moldings enhance the side appearance of all Executive, Bonneville and Grand Prix models and they are offered with the decor option on all Catalinas.

The new look from the rear includes wide tail lamps which turn downward at the outboard ends to integrate body and bumpers on all models except the Grand Prix and station wagons. On the Grand Prix the lamps are in the rear bumper and they turn down at the inboard ends and extend outward with the bumper to provide wrap-around lighting to the sides. Station wagon lights are mounted in the rear quarter.

INTERIORS AND ACCESSORIES

All 1968 interiors are fully color-keyed to eliminate bright metal moldings and to minimize glare and annoyance.

The choice of colors for the Cordova or convertible tops have been increased to four and 13 of the 15 exterior colors are new for 1968.

Bi-level, tri-comfort air conditioning, AM-FM radio, stereo tape player and Pontiac's cruise control system are just a few in the long list of accessories and options which assure the maximum in driving pleasure.

SAFETY DEVICES

The instrument panel has additional thick foam padding that blends into the windshield pillars. This padding forms a large area of protection for front seat occupants. Full width padding has also been added to the center of the panel.

Other important standard interior safety features include a recessed ignition key and a newly designed cigarette lighter which will break away at a 90 pound load. Also standard are crushable arm rests, additional padding on the front seat backs, an energy-absorbing steering column and dual master cylinder brake system.

1968 FIREBIRD STORY

Pontiac Motor Division's 1968 Firebird has undergone an evolutionary styling change and latest engineering refinements provide greater customer comfort.

Front door vent windows have been eliminated and a new upper ventilation system, which provides draft-free circulation when the windows are closed, has been added.

In addition to its sports car appearance, the Firebird has improved sports-car ride and handling characteristics in 1968. New multi-leaf rear springs give the car a smoother, softer ride.

Shock absorbers are straddle mounted and the left shock is moved from the front to the rear of the axle while the right shock remains at the front of the axle. Arranged in this manner, and with the multi-leaf springs, the Firebird combines a soft ride with improved handling and stability while retaining its sports-car feel.

Both the standard overhead camshaft six-cylinder engine and the optional intermediate V-8 have displacement increases and the high performance 400 cubic-inch V-8 is also offered.

The Firebird interiors feature greater luxury and protection with the standard thinline bucket seats, a new and larger instrument panel, additional padding and refinements in appearance and lighting.

"The Firebirds, which have already established themselves in the personal sports car field, will meet with even greater acceptance in 1968," John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and Pontiac's general manager, said.

The Firebirds go on sale September 21.

LINE-UP

The Firebird is offered in a convertible and a hardtop coupe. There is a custom option available on both models which includes deluxe wheel covers, wheel opening moldings, deluxe steering wheel and instrument panel assist grip.

The Firebirds are built on a 108.1-inch wheelbase and are 188.8 inches in overall length and 72.6 inches wide. The wide track is 60 inches front and rear.

Five engines are offered for the 1968 Firebirds. The standard overhead cam six-cylinder engine has been increased from 230 cubic-inch displacement to 250 cubic-inches and it is rated at 175 horsepower with one barrel carburetion.

Optional engines include the four-barrel OHC six-cylinder Sprint with 215 horsepower. In the V-8's the former 326 cubic-inch engine has been increased to 350 cubic inches with 265 horsepower and two-barrel carburetion. There is an HO version of this engine with a rating of 320 horsepower and four barrel carburetion.

The high performance 400 cubic-inch V-8 has a four barrel carburetor and wide oval red line tires and twin air scoops on a special hood are standard with this 330 horsepower engine. There are HO and Ram Air options with this engine also.

Transmissions include a three-speed manual as standard and a four-speed manual or two-speed automatic optional on all except the 400 cubic inch models where the automatic transmission is the three speed Turbo Hydra-Matic.

MONO-JET CARBURETOR

An all new Mono-Jet (one barrel) carburetor is standard on all Firebirds with manual transmissions and is designed to significantly reduce exhaust emission without requiring air injection reaction assistance.

Also standard on all overhead cam six-cylinder and V-8 engines is a new carburetor air preheater which provides almost instant warm air to the carburetor for smoother cold start operations by elimination of all carburetor icing conditions.

EXTERIORS

The absnece of the vent window post adds to the longer, lower roof line appearance of the new Firebirds. side lighting is assured in the front with a wrap-around lens which combines side markers and parking lamp. In the rear, Pontiac vee crest markers operating on the tail lamps circuit provide additional lighting.

The 1968 Firebirds carry distinctive Pontiac identity with a wide peripheral front bumper, strong vertical center and horizontally mounted dual headlamps.

Each model has a full width rocker molding and six vertical louvers on the front of the rear quarter, rear of the door opening.

At the rear is a protective wrap-around bumper, louver style tail lamps featuring chrome edged slits which also contain back-up lamps.

A new degre of luxury and comfort is apparent with the new Firebird interiors.

The instrument panel has new lenses of a shall conical design which allows for easier reading of the new block lettering on the instruments. The panel itself has a new blue shade for color balancing of the instruments and internal surfaces of the housings.

The standard bucket seats have specific styling with cushions and backs finished with attractive dielectric embossing in geniune expanded vinyl. There is a bench seat with center folding armrest optional on selected models.

An ignition key buzzer which sounds when the driver's door is opened with the keys in the ignition and in the off position is part of the standard safety package.

SAFETY DEVICES

Foam filled, molded windshield pillar moldings, side marker lamps, and crushable arm rests are new standard equipment safety items.

A new and larger instrument panel pad, soft vinyl door knobs and flexible door handles provide added protection. Every Firebird is equipped with an energy-absorbing steering column, dual master cylinder brake system and four-way hazard warning flasher.

1968 TEMPEST LINE STORY

Pontiac Motor Division's 1968 Tempests enter the new model year with the most extensive styling changes, engineering improvements and built-in safety since this popular series was introduced seven years ago.

An exclusive energy-absorbing fromt bumper for the GTO, separate wheelbases for two-door and four-door models, increased engine displacement and a new level of interior comfort and protection head a long list of 1968 Tempest, Tempest Custom, LeMans, Safari and GTO features.

For the first time the Tempest will be built on two wheelbases. All two-door coupes and convertibles will have a 112-inch wheelbase and the four-door models and station wagons will be built on a 116-inch base. The wide track has been increased to 60 inches at both the front and rear.

The Pontiac-inspired styling places particular emphasis on the venturi shpae, accentuating the long hood, short deck profile. A blending of new roof lines into the rear adds new grace to the overall styling theme.

Thick absorbing padding across the instrument panel, windshield pillars and along the top of the front seat backs are standard on every model.

"A new sports car atmosphere surrounds our 1968 Tempests," John Z. DeLorean, a General Motors vice president and Pontiac's general manager said.

The 1968 Tempests go on sale September 21.

MODEL LINE-UP

There are 15 models in the four Tempest series.

A sports coupe and four-door sedan make up the Tempest series.

The Tempest Custom series offers a sports coupe, hardtop coupe, four-door sedan, four-door hardtop, convertible and two-seat station wagon.

LeMans models include a sports coupe, hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop and convertible.

A separate series is the four-door, two-seat Tempest Safari station wagon.

There are two GTO models, a hardtop coupe and a convertible.

In addition the Sprint option is available on all models except station wagons and the GTO.

EXTERIOR STYLING

From bumper to bumper and roof to road the 1968 Tempest styling establishes a new form of identity and big car look throughout the entire line.

A full width peripheral front bumper carries the primary front end theme. Twin horizontally placed headlamps at the extreme ends of the ribbed grille are recessed inside the bumper. A Pontiac crest at the crown of the bumpers bold center section and the famous split grille give instant Pontiac identity.

The industry's first and Pontiac exclusive energy-absorbing front bumper is standard on all GTO models. It is the same color as the exterior body paint for a completely new and different front end appearance.

In addition, its absorbing feature makes it functionally superior to any metal bumper now in use.

GTO headlamps and grille are in a horizontal arrangement and concealed headlamps are optional for this series.

All Tempests have parking lamps below the bumper teamed wide side markr lamps in one housing that share a common lens and wrap around for side viewing.

Long hoods sweep up to the windshield wiper linkage adding to an even longer looking view. Dual simulated air inlets widely spaced on the GTO hood add a sports car touch.

Tempest body sides are all new with particular emphasis on a venturi shape accentuating the long hood, short deck style. Subtle blending of the new low roof lines into the quarter and rear adds grace to the profile.

All models are tastefully accented with long low rocker moldings. Side markers contribute to additional warning.

From the rear new Tempest styling reveals deep section bumpers housing three sectional stop, tail and back-up lamps at the outer ends. The GTO has its own distinctive dual stop and tail lamps spaced horizontally for a wider look to the already wide track stance.

COLORS AND INTERIORS

Comfort, added protection and a new plateau of quality are all apparent in the Tempest interiors.

A thickly padded full width instrument panel features deeply recessed instruments and controls. Foam filled padding added to the windshield pillars continues the protection theme.

Wood grain applique on the center section of the Safari and GTO instrument panel gives a quality appearl while a dark textured painted center enhances these panels on Tempests, Tempest Customs and LeMans.

Of significant note is the addition of padding on front seat back uppers, affording extra protection to rear seat passengers.

There are new crushable type armrests and the door locking knobs are soft vinyl and color keyed to the interiors.

There are 15 exterior colors available and 13 of these are new for 1968. The number of Cordova top colors has increased to four and the top will have new trim lines. Convertible tops will offer the same four color choices.

All Tempests will have as standard the new anti-theft package which includes an ignition key buzzer which sounds when the driver's door is opened with the keys in the ignition.

By WILLIAM C. BAGGS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Word came in the afternoon that Ho Chi Minh wished to see us.

His office is in the frayed elegance of the palace which once accommodated the governors when France ruled this neighborhood of Southeast Asia.

The old gentleman was certainly prompt. We were ushered into a rather small room, decorated only with a single painting—of a brownish eagle—and we had not seated ourselves when he came in, walking in a mixture of a stride and a bounce.

Report From Washington

Stuart Symington

VIETNAM HEARINGS

The Senate Military Preparedness Subcommittee, of which I am a member, has now concluded for a time its hearings on the air war in North Vietnam. The testimony of the witnesses -- members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other military officials involved with the conduct of these air operations-- will be made available to the public in a few weeks.

Copies of the preliminary report, released August 31, are now available, and we would be glad to send one to anyone writing my office.

There is no one who believes more in civilian control of the military than do I, and if the decision of the top civilians of this administration has been and is against attacking many military targets located in North Vietnam, that policy should of course be followed by the military.

Unfortunately, however, it is becoming increasingly apparent that many people have been led to the inaccurate belief that all members of the Chiefs of Staff as well as the Commander in Chief of Pacific Forces -- CINCPAC, Admiral Sharp -- have approved and do approve the heavy limitations placed on the attacking of military targets over North Vietnam by civilian heads.

I would earnestly hope that all Americans interested in this problem, a problem so vitally important to the future of the security of the military posture essential to the security of the United States, would refrain from reaching conclusions in this matter until they have had the opportunity to read the testimony of these witnesses in these hearings.

Starting during the 10-day Congressional recess the first of September, I will be making a study tour of our military and political activities in the Far East, Southeast Asia, the Middle East and parts of Europe, returning to Washington the latter part of the month. This is my fifth trip into some of these areas in the last three years with detailed reports for the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committee.

FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION LOANS AND GRANTS

Efforts to create more job and business opportunities in rural areas can also serve to help urban areas by reducing the population pressures on the cities.

That is the purpose of a bill I co-sponsored that is designed to provide loans to farmers to help them supplement their incomes by authorizing loans to start small non-farm enterprises such as farm-located machine shops and processing plants. The bill has passed the Senate and awaits House action.

The bill increases total authorization for rural water and sewer system development grants from $50 million to $150 million. The annual limit on planning grants would be raised from $5 million to $25 million. Government loans for water and sewer projects would be made only if they were unavailable from private or cooperative sources.

In this same connection, I have written the Secretary of the Treasury telling him of the growing concern throughout Missouri that one of the most successful and popular programs to improve living conditions for rural America has been dealt a severe setback by the Treasury Department ruling cutting off Farmers Home Administration authority to make insured loans to Water and Sewer Districts.

This drastic reduction comes at a time when the program was just getting well started, and an ever-increasing number of areas in our state were applying for this type of assistance.

In view of the fact that the law passed by Congress authorizing this insured loan program is still in effect and that the insured loan program does not require federal appropriations, I am urging that the ruling be withdrawn and that the insured loan program be continued.

SENATE REDUCES FOREIGN AID

After reducing overall economic and military aid to other countries from a requested $3.4 billion, the Senate approved the Foreign Assistance Act of 1967. The House also has voted a reduction in the foreign aid program, and differences between the two bills are being studied by a joint Senate-House conference committee.

The reduction in the Senate came on the recommendation of the Foreign Relations Committee, of which I am a member. Our Committee expressed a strong view that American citizens should not be called upon to accept reductions in programs which affect their daily lives, see their taxes increased and war costs spiral, while the foreign aid program escapes unaffected and undiminished.

Under an amendment which I sponsored, economic assistance would be denied to any country diverting its resources to military expenditures to such an extent that it interferes with economic development or increases the danger of a regional arms race.

I supported the reduction of the authorized funds for foreign aid but voted against the passage of the bill in the belief that, for many reasons including fiscal and monetary ones, it would be well to suspend the programs at the present time.

Bill Approves Cash For Indian Tribes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed a bill Monday to distribute a $1,372,267 judgment to the Iowa Indian tribe of Kansas and Nebraska and the Iowa tribe of Oklahoma

Congress appropriated the money in 1965 and 1966 to satisfy a judgment given the Indians for lands in western Iowa and northwestern Missouri ceded to the federal government in 1836 and 1837.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, would give the Iowa tribe of Kansas and Nebraska 61.29 per cent of the funds and the Iowa tribe of Oklahoma 38.71 per cent.

Closer Watch Slated on State Construction

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — State Rep. E. J. (Lucky) Cantrell, D-Overland, said today the House Appropriations Committee is going to ride close herd on state building projects to eliminate unnecessary delay and cost.

Cantrell, who is appropriations chairman, called in the architects who have contracts for state building projects, the the heads of institutions getting new buildings and the State Division of Construction and Planning to tell them about the new procedure his group is starting.

He said monthly progress reports on construction will be required from the architects as well as from the heads of the institutions involved.

That way, he said, the committee will know whether to reappropriate for projects. He said delays and unnecessary cost will not be allowed.

In addition, he said, the committee will send out subcommittees without advance notice to inspect projects where delays are beyond the ordinary.

He said the heads of the institutions should be realistic at the outset and not ask for unneeded frills. And changes should not be made during the progress of the work in order to use up the full amount of the appropriation.

He said the state wants functional buildings, not objects of art.

He told the architects "when you get on those drawing boards don't be dreamers."

During the 30-minute session, Cantrell said most of the 300 state building projects now underway are moving along in good shape. But there are a few that need some prodding, he said, and the committee is ready to supply that.

Wallace Accepts Speaking Invitation

SMITHVILLE, Mo. (AP)— Mrs. Bea Lizar says George C. Wallace, former Alabama governor, has accepted an invitation to speak at her annual Democratic picnic Oct. 8 in the Paradise community.

Mrs. Lizar, president of the Clay County Women's Democratic Club, said she usually has about 500 persons at her picnics, "but I expect a few more this year." The picnics are held at her home.

A group of Paradise church women visited Alabama this year, hoping to have Wallace speak to them about his views on prayer in public schools. He was unable to at that time.

Mrs. Lizar wrote to Wallace later, inviting him to the picnic. He accepted, to her surprise.

Mitchell Ends Advanced Study

MT. PLEASANT, MICH.— Everett R. Mitchell, rural East Prairie, Mo., has completed a six-week Institute for advanced study in industrial arts at Central Michigan University.

The Institute, offered under the auspices of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and supported by the national defense education act, was devoted to the study of ferrous industry from raw material to finished product.

Union Battle May Lead to Airline Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle over union representation appeared to be an underlying issue in a strike threat by 7,000 workers against Pan American World Airways, biggest U.S. overseas air passenger and freight carrier.

The strike call was set for 12:01 a.m., Wednesday by the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks. The clerks union is fighting the Teamsters union for the right to represent the workers.

Clerks union President C.L. Dennis said Monday Pan Am refused to negotiate a new contract. He said a five per cent pay hike unilaterally granted by the company last week was "completely inadequate."

The workers, whose old contract expired in March, average between $110 and $120 weekly.

The Teamsters won an election to oust the Clerks but the results were ordered thrown out by the National Mediation Board, which cited its own errors in the election. The board ordered a new election.

Man Sought in Dorena Holdup Arrested

ST. LOUIS -- A young man identified as William H. Dees, 46, was arraigned Tuesday in St. Louis before U.S. Commissioner William R. O'Toole in connection with the robbert last Monday of the Citizens Bank of Gerald.

A total of $98,335 was taken in the bank robbery.

When picked up by highway patrolmen on Highway 50 near Leslie, Dunn had almost $14,000 concealed on his person. Part of the money and two car keys were found in Dunn's shoes.

Two suitcases, which officers said contained $84,400 were found on a farm owned by relatives of the man near Gerald in Franklin county. Franklin County Sheriff H. Bill Miller said one of the suitcases was found hidden in a pile of hay, the other in the separator of a threshing machine. Dunn's car was found concealed in a wooded area.

Mississippi County officers would also like to question the man about the robbery at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 2 of Campbell's store and the post office at Dorena. That robbery netted about $500 in cash, and a similar amount in checks. $124 of the total represented post office funds.

The man who robbed Campbell's store drove off in a red, 1965 Chevrolet automobile.

Dunn's parents live at Illmo, Mo.

The owner of Campbell's store drove to Franklin county Tuesday and identified Dunn as the Saturday night customer who held up his place of business.

Further questioning of the bank robbery suspect also revealed that he was the man who held up and robbed the East Prairie Kroger store in 1953. Soon thereafter Dunn held up a bank in West Tennessee, was captured, tried and sentenced to from six to eight years in prison.

(NO203) USS INTREPID (CVS-11 (FHTNC) — Airman Winford L. Beaird, (NMI), son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Beaird of 1013 Alpiegate St., and husband of the former Miss Marilyn K. Carter of 116 Broadway, all of Sikeston, Mo., saw his ship receive its third award for aviation safety and accident prevention, as a crewman aboard the anti-submarine warfare support aircraft carrier USS Intrepid operating in the Gulf of Tonkin off North Vietnam.

Vice Admiral John J. Hyland, Commander of the U. S. Seventh Fleet, presented the 1967 Admiral James H. Flatley Award to Intrepid's Commanding Officer Captain W. J. McVay, during formal ceremonies on the carrier's flight deck.

Admiral Thomas H. Moorer, Chief of Naval Operations, sent a statement from Washington for the occasion. The Admiral noted that the award is in "recognition of outstanding achievement in accident prevention during attack carrier operations." He further noted that "the accomplishment of this record is a direct testament to the effort which you have required of Intrepid's crew."

The Intrepid has previously won this award in 1961 and again in 1964.

Farmers Told to Try Collective Bargaining

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)— Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman said Monday that collective bargaining "offers the best and perhaps the only approach to full farmer prosperity with the widest measure of freedom."

He said farmers should take a hard look at collective bargaining. Freeman made his remarks at the convention of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

New programs are used to improve farm prices for next year, Freeman said, such as the downward adjustment of wheat acreage and probable adjustments in feed grains and soybean acreage.

He also said Commodity Credit corporation grain and soybean stocks are off the market, except in limited volume.

Rail Firm Plans To Reorganize

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Missouri - Kansas - Texas Railroad, which had a deficit of more than $7.8 million last year, told the Interstate Commerce Commission Monday that it plans to reorganize to get needed funds and to diversify its interests.

The railroad proposes to become a part of Katy Industries Inc., a holding company set up specially to run the railroad and to acquire other properties. Katy said its reorganization became necessary because its long term debt of about $14.4 million makes it difficult to obtain funds for modernization and acquisition of other investments, R said:

"Management and the principalstockholders of the railroad are thereby convinced that only by the formation of a holding company owning the stock of the railroad" will it be possible to acquire investments in nation's Company. Alarman non-transportation enterprises. Amelunke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Katy plans to issue one share Edwin Amelunke, Jackson, and of common stock in the holding company to the railroad stockholders in charge for each share of Stock in the railroad. The railroad also has made an agreement with Bangor Punta Operations, Inc., of New York under which Bangor will seek specific opportunities for broadening Katy's earning base.

Frazier to Be Panel Member

Cadets at the Air Force Academy are taught a healthy respect for commissioned officers, but their training didn't phase my friend Jerry.

During one of our summer leaves, Jerry and I hitchhiked to Europe and were attending a happy hour at the USAF Officers' Club in Wiesbaden, Germany. We were in our navy-blue cadet uniforms, which were not well known at the time.

While pushing our way through the crowd toward the bar, Jerry bumped into an Army Special Forces officer, dressed in the distinctive green beret and green fatigues of the U.S. Special Forces. The officer, a captain, looked at our cadet uniforms and exclaimed, "Well, what have we here, the Canadian Navy?"

With a scornful glance from head to toe of the captain's green uniform, Jerry retorted, "Well, what have we here, Robin Hood's Merry Men?"

Report From Washington

Stuart Symington

VIETNAM HEARINGS

The Senate Military Preparedness Subcommittee, of which I am a member, has now concluded for a time its hearings on the air war in North Vietnam. The testimony of the witnesses -- members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other military officials involved with the conduct of these air operations-- will be made available to the public in a few weeks.

Copies of the preliminary report, released August 31, are now available, and we would be glad to send one to anyone writing my office.

There is no one who believes more in civilian control of the military than do I, and if the decision of the top civilians of this administration has been and is against attacking many military targets located in North Vietnam, that policy should of course be followed by the military.

Unfortunately, however, it is becoming increasingly apparent that many people have been led to the inaccurate belief that all members of the Chiefs of Staff as well as the Commander in Chief of Pacific Forces -- CINCPAC, Admiral Sharp -- have approved and do approve the heavy limitations placed on the attacking of military targets over North Vietnam by civilian heads.

I would earnestly hope that all Americans interested in this problem, a problem so vitally important to the future security of the military posture essential to the security of the United States, would refrain from reaching conclusions in this matter until they have had the opportunity to read the testimony of these witnesses in these hearings.

Starting during the 10-day Congressional recess the first of September, I will be making a study tour of our military and political activities in the Far East, Southeast Asia, the Middle East and parts of Europe, returning to Washington the latter part of the month. This is my fifth trip into some of these areas in the last three years with detailed reports for the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committee.

FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION LOANS AND GRANTS

Efforts to create more job and business opportunities in rural areas can also serve to help urban areas by reducing the population pressures on the cities.

That is the purpose of a bill I co-sponsored that is designed to provide loans to farmers to help them supplement their incomes by authorizing loans to start small non-farm enterprises such as farm-located machine shops and processing plants. The bill has passed the Senate and awaits House action.

The bill increases total authorization for rural water and sewer system development grants from $50 million to $150 million. The annual limit on planning grants would be raised from $5 million to $25 million. Government loans for water and sewer projects would be made only if they were unavailable from private or cooperative sources.

In this same connection, I have written the Secretary of the Treasury telling him of the growing concern throughout Missouri that one of the most successful and popular programs to improve living conditions for rural America has been dealt a severe setback by the Treasury Department ruling cutting off Farmers Home Administration authority to make insured loans to Water and Sewer Districts.

This drastic reduction comes at a time when the program was just getting well started, and an ever-increasing number of areas in our state were applying for this type of assistance.

In view of the fact that the law passed by Congress authorizing this insured loan program is still in effect and that the insured loan program does not require federal appropriations, I am urging that the ruling be withdrawn and that the insured loan program be continued.

SENATE REDUCES FOREIGN AID

After reducing overall economis and military aid to other countries from a requested $3.4 billion, the Senate approved the Foreign Assistance Act of 1967. The House also has voted a reduction in the foreign aid program, and differences between the two bills are being studied by a joint Senate-House conference committee.

The reduction in the Senate came on the recommendation of the Foreign Relations Committee, of which I am a member. Our Committee expressed a strong view that American citizens should not be called upon to accept reductions in programs which affect their daily lives, see their taxes increased and war costs retard, while the foreign aid program escapes unaffected and undiminished.

Under an amendment which I sponsored, economic assistance would be denied to any country diverting its resources to military expenditures to such an extent that it interferes with economic development or increases the danger of a regional arms race.

I supported the reduction of the authorized funds for foreign aid but voted against the passage of the bill in the belief that, for many reasons including fiscal and monetary ones, it would be well to suspend the program at the present time.

Bill Approves Cash For Indian Tribes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed a bill Monday to distribute a $1,372,267 judgment to the Iowa Indian tribe of Kansas and Nebraska and the Iowa tribe of Oklahoma.

Congress appropriated the money in 1965 and 1966 to satisfy a judgment given the Indians for lands in western Iowa and northwestern Missouri ceded to the federal government in 1836 and 1837.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, would give the Iowa tribe of Kansas and Nebraska 61.29 per cent of the funds and the Iowa tribe of Oklahoma 38.71 per cent.

Closer Watch Slated on State Construction

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — State Rep. E. J. (Jack) Cantrell, D-Overland, said today the House Appropriations Committee is going to ride close herd on state building projects to eliminate unnecessary delay and cost.

Cantrell, who is appropriations chairman, called in the architects who have contracts for state building projects, the the heads of institutions getting new buildings and the State Division of Construction and Planning to tell them about the new procedure his group is starting.

He said monthly progress reports on construction will be required from the architects as well as from the heads of the institutions involved.

That way, he said, the committee will know whether to reappropriate for projects. He said delays and unnecessary cost will not be allowed.

In addition, he said, the committee will send out subcommittees without advance notice to inspect projects where delays are beyond the ordinary.

He said the heads of the institutions should be realistic at the outset and not ask for unneeded frills. And changes should not be made during the progress of the work in order to use up the full amount of the appropriation.

He said the state wants functional buildings, not objects of art.

He told the architects "when you get on those drawing boards don't be dreamers."

During the December session, Cantrell said most of the 300 state building projects now underway are moving along in good shape. But there are a few that need some prodding, he said, and the committee is ready to supply that.

SMITHVILLE, Mo. (AP)— Mrs. Bea Lizar says George C. Wallace, former Alabama governor, has accepted an invitation to speak at her annual Democratic picnic Oct. 8 in the Paradise community.

Mrs. Lizar, president of the Clay County Women's Democratic Club, said she usually has about 500 persons at her picnics, "but I expect a few more this year." The picnics are held at her home.

A group of Paradise church women visited Alabama this year, hoping to have Wallace speak to them about his views on prayer in public schools. He was unable to at that time.

Mrs. Lizar wrote to Wallace later, inviting him to the picnic. He accepted, to her surprise.

Man Sought in Dorena Holdup Arrested

ST. LOUIS -- A young man identified as William H. Dunn, 46, was arraigned Tuesday in St. Louis before U.S. Commissioner William R. O'Toole in connection with the robbert last Monday of the Citizens Bank of Gerald.

A total of $98,335 was taken in the bank robbery.

When picked up by highway patrolmen on Highway 50 near Leslie, Dunn had almost $14,000 concealed on his person. Part of the money and two car keys were found in Dunn's shoes.

Two suitcases, which officers said contained $84,400 were found on a farm owned by relatives of the man near Gerald in Franklin county. Franklin County Sheriff H. Bill Miller said one of the suitcases was found hidden in a pile of hay, the other in the separator of a threshing machine. Dunn's car was found concealed in a wooded area.

Mississippi County officers would also like to question the man about the robbery at 9:30 p.m. Sept. 2 of Campbell's store and the post office at Dorena. That robbery netted about $500 in cash, and a similar amount in checks. $124 of the total represented post office funds.

The man who robbed Campbell's store drove off in a red, 1965 Chevrolet automobile.

Dunn's parents live at [illegible] Ky.

The owner of Campbell's store drove to Franklin county Tuesday and identified Dunn as the Saturday night customer who held up his place of business.

Further questioning of the bank robbery suspect also revealed that he was the man who held up and robbed the East Prairie Kroger store in 1952. Soon thereafter Dunn held up a bank in West Tennessee, was captured, tried and sentenced to from six to eight years in prison.

Farmers Told to Try Collective Bargaining

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)— Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman said Monday that collective bargaining "offers the best and perhaps the only approach to full farmer prosperity with the widest measure of freedom."

He said farmers should take a hard look at collective bargaining. Freeman made his remarks at the convention of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

New programs are used to improve farm prices for next year, Freeman said, such as the downward adjustment in wheat acreage and probable adjustments in feed grains and soybean acreage.

He also said Commodity Credit corporation grain and soybean stocks are off the market, except in limited volume.

Rail Firm Plans To Reorganize

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Missouri - Kansas - Texas Railroad, which had a deficit of more than $7.8 million last year, told the Interstate Commerce Commission Monday that it plans a reorganization to get more bonds and to diversify its interests.

The railroad proposes to borrow from debt of about $114.4 million makes it difficult to obtain funds for modernization and acquisition of other investments, it said.

Frazier to Be Panel Member

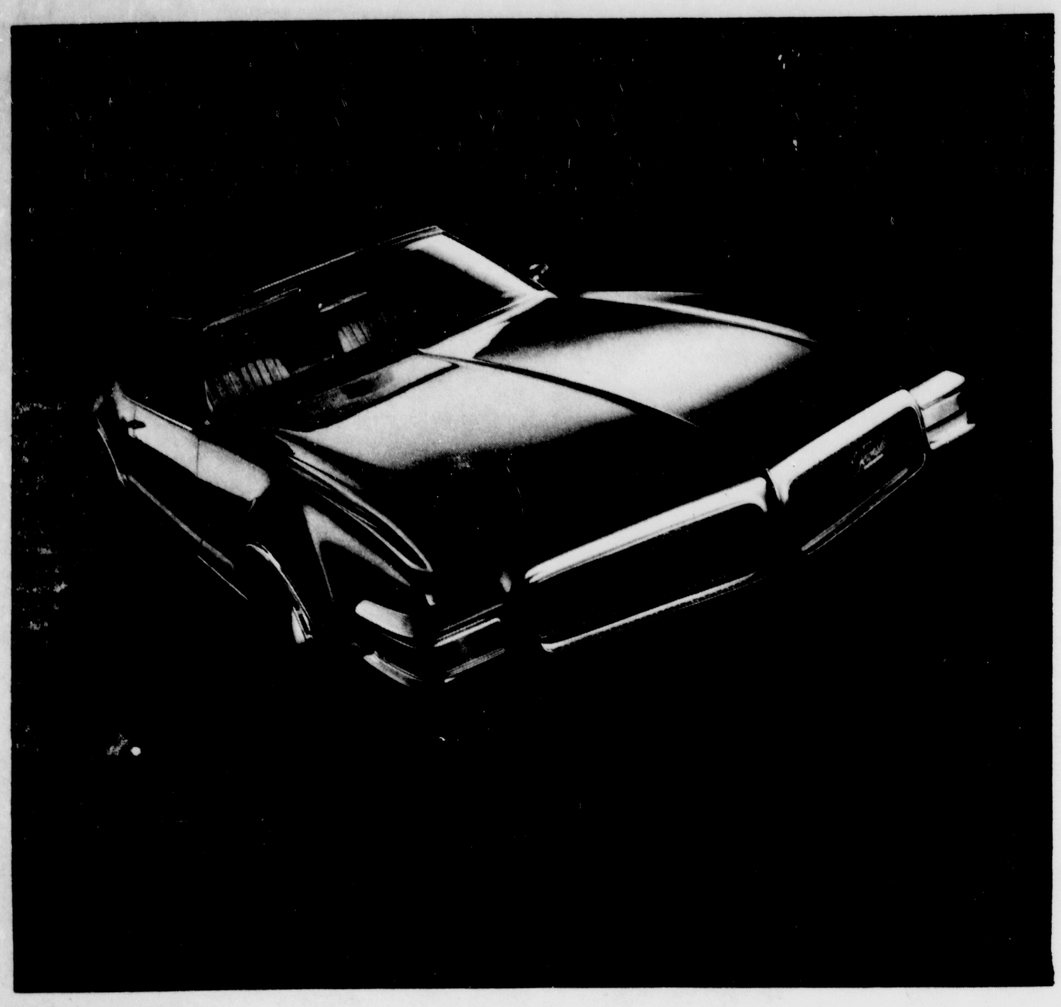
Cadets at the Air Force Academy are taught a healthy respect for commissioned officers, but this training didn't phase my friend Jerry.

During one of our summer leaves, Jerry and I had traveled to Europe and were attending a happy hour at the USAF Officers' Club in Wiesbaden, Germany. We were in our sy-duse cadet uniforms, which were not well known at the time.

While pushing our way through the crowd toward the bar, Jerry bumped into an Army Special Forces officer, dressed in the distinctive green beret and green fatigues of the U.S. Special Forces. The officer, a captain, looked at our cadet uniforms and exclaimed, "Well, what have we here, the Canadian Navy?"

With a scornful glance from head to foot of the captain's green uniform, Jerry retorted, "Well, what have we here, Robin Hood?" and I, J. Connors



1968 OLDSMOBILE TORONADO

Graceful lines and a sophisticated personalized look mark the 1968 Oldsmobile Toronado. Its all-new grille features head lamps concealed behind twin grille sections which retract upward when the lights are on. The revolutionary front wheel drive Toronado is powered by a 455-cu.-in. 4-barrel V-8, with an even higher performing force-air induction engine available as an option. Oldsmobile engineers have achieved a big gain in ride softness for the Toronado in 1968 while retaining all of the car's unexcelled handling characteristics.

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich.--A new power train concept for all 1968 model Oldsmobiles will give the owner additional benefits in mid-range performance, fuel economy, quietness of operation and durability, it was announced here by Oldsmobile General Manager Harold N. Metzel, at his division's National Press Preview.

In addition, he revealed a performance option and substantial styling improvements in the front-wheel drive Toronado, the development of a brilliant new front-end look for the 88's and 98's, and a completely changed appearance for the F-85, Cutlass, Cutlass Supreme, 4-4-2 and Vista Cruiser.

"Of particular interest," Metzel said, "are the two-door models in the Cutlass Series identified as 'S' Coupes. We expect this line of coupes, pillar, hardtop and convertible, to augment Oldsmobile's recent gains in the youth market.

"The Cutlass 'S' Coupe," he continued, "is youthfully styled, agile in performance and may be customized with the use of any one of 12 engine-transmission combinations. Deluxe interior trim and special exterior ornamentation are standard, while dual exhausts, a wood grained steering wheel and rally-type handling components are among the new car's options. Bucket seats, standard on the convertible, are optional on the closed coupes."

The high performance 4-4-2 becomes the top of the F-85 line in 1968, with an extension of identity features, dual exhaust outlets discharging through rear bumper cutouts, and 9 engine-transmission combinations.

Included is the availability of a ram-air performance option with a special high output camshaft, heat treated valve springs, and a special axle ratio. Boldly designed carburetor air intake scoops for this option are located below the front bumper.

In addition to the coupes, all other Cutlass Supreme, Cutlass, and F-85 models are completely restyled for 1968. Wheelbases for 4-door sedans and station wagons have been increased to 116 inches. The vent windows are now crank operated, replacing the friction type windows on former F-85 and Cutlass models.

"Important changes have also been designed into the 1968 Vista Cruiser," Metzel continued, "resulting in its becoming one of the most spacious station wagons in the industry. Built on a wheelbase of 121 inches, the Vista Cruiser features 1.3" more leg room for second seat passengers. With the larger luggage locker under the floor, 2 more cubic feet of storage area is available. Optional for the first time on the Vista Cruiser is Oldsmobile's 400 cubic inch engine.

"Oldsmobile's Delmont and Delta 88's, the Delta Custom, the 98's and the Toronado," he said, "have undergone substantial restyling, front and rear, including new grilles, new side moldings, and revised rear end treatment.

"The Toronado, in particular," Metzel said, "has taken on a more sophisticated personalized car look, with more graceful lines. Front and rear bumpers and lamps are new. Headlamps are concealed behind twin grilles which retract upward with lights on.

"A softer ride with smoother movement over bumps has been achieved in the 1968 Toronado," he said, "while retaining the unexcelled handling characteristics for which this car is noted."

The Toronado's engine option includes a cold-air induction system with a high-speed camshaft. In addition, a new simplified ring and pinion drive axle with higher torque capacity replaces the more complex 1967 planetary unit.

"An extremely important part of our 1968 product story," Metzel said, "is the engineering concept adopted for all Oldsmobile power trains, which provides better fuel economy, improvement in mid-range performance and quietness of engine operation."

He explained that displacement for engines powering the F-85, Cutlass and Delmont 88 models has been increased from last year's 330 cubic inches to 350. The bigger engines, used in Oldsmobile's other 88's, as well as 98's and the Toronado, are up for 425 to 455 cubic inches. The maximum torque of these engines is increased 30 ft. lbs. and 40 ft. lbs. respectively.

"In addition to the higher driving torque of the new engines," he continued, "transmissions have been re-calibrated for additional torque multiplication and drive axle ratios have been lowered. These changes result in better efficiency and lower engine operating speeds.

"As an example, the 98 develops the same drive-wheel turning effort at 1600 rpm's as the comparable 1967 model at 3200 rpm's," Metzel said.

"All new Oldsmobile engines meet the requirements of the 1968 federal emission law through use of the Oldsmobile-pioneered combustion control system. This system, modified for 1968, was first offered by Oldsmobile as an option called Climatic Combustion Control in 1967 models. In addition to reducing air pollution, it provides faster warmup and eliminates carburetor icing," he stated.

Also eliminated is the extra belt drive, air pump and the complexity of pipes and valves which were present in the former Air Injection Reactor system.

Oldsmobile's tilt and telescope steering wheel is equipped exclusively with a new type horn ring as an added convenience. To sound the horns, the driver may squeeze any part of a continuous contact strip circling the wheel's inner diameter. This is the first continuous horn ring to be offered in the industry which in no way interferes with driver vision.

Metzel said a long list of mechanical improvements includes larger diameter wheel cylinders for better overall brake effectiveness and balance in F-85, 88 and 98 models. On the Toronado, a tandem power booster increases the effectiveness of the power braking system.

Other improvements in all 1968 Oldsmobiles include big increases in windshield wiper coverage area and more fluid released per pulse by the windshield washer system. In addition, for the reduction of glare, the wipers on most Oldsmobile models are depressed below the driver's line of vision. A new convoluted fuel tank filler neck will bend and collapse, thus preventing fuel leaks due to rupture of the neck of the tank in case of a rear end collision.

Other safety-related improvements include redesigned armrests, lower profile control knobs and door handles, wiper vision outside rear view mirrors, shift levers built to bend upon impact, and the elimination of metal in the backs of seats.

Luggage capacity in 88 sedans has been increased from 17.1 to 19 cubic feet. A new, smaller stereo tape player is mounted under the instrument panel. In the Toronado, it is designed into the center of the instrument panel itself. For the first time the stereo tape player is offered in F-85 models.

Report From Washington
Stuart Symington

Editor's Note: Senator Symington is in Southeast Asia. In his absence this report was prepared by his office.

FARM AND FOOD PRICES

In 1966, one U. S. farmworker supplied the food and fibre needs of 40 persons according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture report on "Farm and Food Prices." This almost doubles the 23 persons supplied by one farmworker in the 1957-59 period.

At the same time, the amount consumers spend for food has dropped from 24.6 percent of disposable income in 1947-49 to 17.8 percent in 1966.

The American farmer not only has provided an abundant supply of food in this country, but also has made a major contribution to world trade with one out of four harvested acres going into export. Copies of this eight-page report may be obtained by writing this office.

FLOOD INSURANCE BILL

The Senate has passed the National Flood Insurance bill which would establish a partnership between the government and an association of private insurance companies to share the risk of underwriting damage caused by floods.

The House will continue hearings this week on a similar bill.

The insurance plan proposed in this bill would begin with coverage for one-to-four family residential property. If the program should prove successful, the government could extend coverage to agricultural and business property.

ELECTION REFORM

The first major election reform bill since enactment of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act of 1925 has passed the Senate unanimously.

The legislation relies on disclosure of sources and amounts of campaign expenditures for all Federal contests to improve the process, and repeals limitations on campaign spending.

However, contributions by any individual to the campaign of any federal candidate would be limited to $5,000 a year. Under an amendment, adopted on the floor, this provision would be extended to members of a candidate's family.

MEDICARE'S FIRST YEAR IN MISSOURI

More than 537,000 Missouri citizens 65 and over received benefits from the Medicare hospital insurance program in its first year of operation, Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) and Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Mo.) announced today.

An additional 486,000 Missouri elder citizens voluntarily enrolled for supplementary medical insurance benefits, or 90.4 percent of those eligible for this program, the Missouri Senators said.

These figures were provided for the Senators in a letter from E. Albert Kreek, Regional Assistant Commissioner of the Social Security Administration in Kansas City.

Symington and Long said to administer the Medicare program during its first year in Missouri, 170 hospitals with 28,900 available beds participated, in addition to 69 extended care facilities with 4,300 nursing beds and 19 home health agencies.

"Through the Medicare program, many who might have received care on a charity basis in the absence of the program have received it as insured patients with the dignity that goes with the ability to pay," the Senators said.

Romper Room Begins at Center

MORLEY--The Romper Room began Sept. 11 at the Central Scott County Neighborhood Service Center with 35 children attending.

Senior citizens met at the center Sept. 15 to organize a program for those in the area 50 and older. The coordinator Mrs. Bill Anderson gave a welcome address. Mrs. Bill Stephens, family service aide, explained the program.

A film, "Beyond These Hills," with Billy Graham and Sargent Shriver, was shown.

Mrs. Loretta Boley sang "Getting to Know You," "I Believe," and "You'll Never Walk Alone." Mrs. Polly Hatch, pianist, accompained her. Mrs. Boley and Mrs. S. A. Fowler sand "He Touched Me."

Mrs. Tom Hamilton, Mrs. Lillie Lockridge and Mrs. Harry Jones sang "Walk With Me." The group sang "He's Got the Whole World in His Hand," "Teach Me to Pray" and the meeting was closed by singing, "We'll Meet Again."

Punch and cookies were served. The next meeting will be Sept. 29.

The young women will meet each Wednesday for arts and crafts. The homemakers clinic is held at the center each Thursday afternoon. A cooking class will begin Thursday. Educational aides Mrs. Pauline Brock and Mrs. Louella Tucker will conduct the classes.

Detroit Schools Open Doors

DETROIT (AP)— School doors have swung open for 300,000 students in Detroit, ending a summer vacation that was prolonged by a 13-day teachers strike.

Teachers returned to their jobs Monday after winning an across-the-board raise over two years of $1,700.

In addition to the salary increase, $850 this year and $850 the next, the teachers won a reduction of the school year from 40 weeks to 39 and limitation of classes to 39 pupils. The ratification on Monday of the proposed contract, hammered out during early morning bargaining sessions, lowered to 13 the number of Michigan school districts where master contracts for teachers have not been reached.

In five of the unsettled school districts, teachers have been ordered back to work by court injunctions, although in one of them, Crestwood District in Dearborn Heights, most of the 211 teachers have resigned.

In the remaining eight districts, some 75,000 students are still out of school.

Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken on Monday asked the school boards in Bloomfield Hills, Oak Park, Dearborn and Menominee to get back-to-work orders from the courts.

Milliken, acting as governor during the absence of Gov. George Romney, said injunctions are being sought in Bridgeport, Highland Park, Hamtramck and North Dearborn Heights.

Detroit teachers, represented by Local 231, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, ratified their new contract by a vote of 3,316-376 after union leaders told them "that is the best we can do."

The teachers demanded a $1,700 boost immediately when negotiations opened.

FLOOD INSURANCE BILL

The Senate has passed the National Flood Insurance bill which would establish a partnership between the government and an association of private insurance companies to share the risk of underwriting damage caused by floods.

The House will continue hearings this week on a similar bill.

The insurance plan proposed in this bill would begin with coverage for one-to-four family residential property. If the program should prove successful, the government could extend coverage to agricultural and business property.

ELECTION REFORM

The first major election reform bill since enactment of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act of 1925 has passed the Senate unanimously.

The legislation relies on disclosure of sources and amounts of campaign expenditures for all Federal contests to improve the process, and repeals limitations on campaign spending.

However, contributions by any individual to the campaign of any federal candidate would be limited to $5,000 a year. Under an amendment, adopted on the floor, this provision would be extended to members of a candidate's family.

MEDICARE'S FIRST YEAR IN MISSOURI

More than 537,000 Missouri citizens 65 and over received benefits from the Medicare hospital insurance program in its first year of operation, Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) and Sen. Edward V. Long (D-Mo.) announced today.

An additional 486,000 Missouri elder citizens voluntarily enrolled for supplementary medical insurance benefits, or 90.4 percent of those eligible for this program, the Missouri Senators said.

These figures were provided for the Senators in a letter from E. Albert Kreek, Regional Assistant Commissioner of the Social Security Administration in Kansas City.

Symington and Long said to administer the Medicare program during its first year in Missouri, 170 hospitals with 28,900 available beds participated, in addition to 69 extended care facilities with 4,300 nursing beds and 19 home health agencies.

"Through the Medicare program, many who might have received care on a charity basis in the absence of the program have received it as insured patients with the dignity that goes with the ability to pay," the Senators said.

Romper Room Begins at Center

MORLEY--The Romper Room began Sept. 11 at the Central Scott County Neighborhood Service Center with 35 children attending.

Senior citizens met at the center Sept. 15 to organize a program for those in the area 50 and older. The coordinator Mrs. Bill Anderson gave a welcome address. Mrs. Bill Stephens, family service aide, explained the program.

A film, "Beyond These Hills," with Billy Graham and Sargent Shriver, was shown.

Mrs. Loretta Boley sang "Getting to Know You," "I Believe," and "You'll Never Walk Alone." Mrs. Polly Hatch, pianist, accompanied her. Mrs. Boley and Mrs. S. A. Fowler sand "He Touched Me."

Mrs. Tom Hamilton, Mrs. Lillie Lockridge and Mrs. Harry Jones sang "Walk With Me." The group sang "He's Got the Whole World in His Hand," "Teach Me to Pray" and the meeting was closed by singing, "We'll Meet Again."

Punch and cookies were served. The next meeting will be Sept. 29.

The young women will meet each Wednesday for arts and crafts.

The homemakers clinic is held at the center each Thursday afternoon. A cooking class will begin Thursday. Educational aides Mrs. Pauline Brock and Mrs. Louella Tucker will conduct the classes.

Detroit Schools Open Doors

DETROIT (AP)— School doors have swung open for 300,000 students in Detroit, ending a summer vacation that was prolonged by a 13-day teachers strike.

Teachers returned to their jobs Monday after winning an across-the-board raise over two years of $1,700.

In addition to the salary increase, $850 this year and $850 the next, the teachers won a reduction of the school year from 40 weeks to 39 and limitation of classes to 39 pupils. The ratification on Monday of the proposed contract, hammered out during early morning bargaining sessions, lowered to 13 the number of Michigan school districts where master contracts for teachers have not been reached.

In five of the unsettled school districts, teachers have been ordered back to work by court injunctions, although in one of them, Crestwood District in Dearborn Heights, most of the 211 teachers have resigned.

In the remaining eight districts, some 75,000 students are still out of school.

Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken on Monday asked the school boards in Bloomfield Hills, Oak Park, Dearborn and Menominee to get back-to-work orders from the courts.

Milliken, acting as governor during the absence of Gov. George Romney, said injunctions are being sought in Bridgeport, Highland Park, Hamtramck and North Dearborn Heights.

Detroit teachers, represented by Local 231, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, ratified their new contract by a vote of 3,316-376 after union leaders told them "that is the best we can do."

The teachers demanded a $1,700 boost immediately when negotiations opened.

Exterior changes in the 1968 Cadillac, as shown on this Coupe de Ville (top), include a new grille and larger parking lights redesigned cornering lights and new marker lights on the side plus a new deck lid and all chrome rear bumper. Among the safety related product improvements in all models are: a new concealed windshield wiper and washer system, recessed door handles and added cushioning in the instrument panel and front seat backs. Dramatic styling changes to Cadillac's 1968 Fleetwood Eldorado (bottom) include new parking lamps located in the leading edge of the front fenders, a new hood 4½ inches longer and redesigned tailights. All 1968 Cadillac models are powered by a new 375 h.p. — 472 cubic inch engine which produces 525 foot pounds of torque — the highest of any production passenger car engine in the world.

India-Born Sitar Player Stunned by U.S. Attention

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — To the Western eye, the instrument seems absurd, the bulbous gourds on each end making it look like some mixed-up barbell. But from the 19 strings of the sitar India-born Ravi Shankar can evoke harmony and dissonance that astound the ear.

His appearance recently on ABC's "Hollywood Palace" added to the clamor over soft-spoken, strong-willed Shankar, of whom Life magazine proclaimed, "His Sitar Sound Rocks the U.S." The musician is getting what appears to be a saturation campaign, including dates at the Monterey Folk Festival, Hollywood Bowl, Expo 67 and this week at Philharmonic Hall in New York's Lincoln Center.

The rage over Ravi's ragas— free-swinging improvisations that can last two or three hours— was started two years ago when Beatle George Harrison became enamored with the sitar sound. He made a pilgrimage to India to study under Shankar, and Indian tones began seeping into the Beatle numbers.

This caused Shankar to become elevated to minor saint-hood in pop music. Teeny-boppers, flower children and other juvenile types began appearing at Shankar's American concerts, bestowing on him the homage usually reserved for guitar plunkers in tight pants.

The attention alternately pleases and appalls Shankar.

"I see no harm in using the sitar for pop music," he explained. "It is a versatile instrument that can be used for many things, just as the guitar can be played by everyone from Segovia to folk singers.

"But I would hate to see the sitar used solely to produce a pop sound. That is why in my concerts I stress the fact that it can be used for the classical form."

He may or may not be getting the message across to his most devoted followers, the hippies. They apparently enjoy his music for its fantasmagorical sound, rather than its classical quality.

"I love hippies," Shankar declared outright. "I love them not because they are admirers of my music, but because of their philosophy, their awareness. But one thing I do not approve: their use of drugs.

"I learned from my guru that true contentment must come from within, and so I do not believe in smoking or drinking. Many of the hippies who come to my concerts are obviously stoned. They are so overcome by LSD or marijuana that they cannot possibly appreciate the music.

"Often during the performance they will light up— and usually it is not tobacco. Then I must stop and announce that smoking is not allowed. I only want them to give me a chance to present my music properly, and for that I must have a couple of hours of sobriety."

Ravi Shankar is a 5-feet-3 man of 47 with curly black hair and a broad, brown face with deep, dark-rimmed eyes. He is enormously disciplined and can sit cross-legged playing the four-foot sitar for three uninterrupted hours. Both his religious training and his lengthy career prevent his being overwhelmed by his newfound fame.

"Since the age of 9 I have been traveling," said the musician, who toured Europe and the United States as part of a dance troupe. At the age of 15 he turned to the sitar and led a monastic life of 12 punishing hours daily practice until he mastered the instrument. For almost 20 years he has toured western capitals, playing his ragas to increasing crowds.

"Usually I would return home to India after four or five months," he said. "But this time I will stay a year, returning in February or March. They ask me at home why I spend so much time outside.

"It is for this reason: I feel responsible for starting the sitar movement in this country, and I would like to see it properly appreciated."

Besides his concerts, television and records— recent release: "East Meets West" with Yehudi Menuhin— Shankar has founded a school in Los Angeles where he teaches Indian culture as well as the sitar. He also will score "Charlie," the next film by Ralph Nelson ("Lillies of the Field"). Among his other scores: the "Pather Panchali" films of India's Satyajit Ray, "Alice in Wonderland" for British television, the forthcoming "Chappaqua" of Conrad Rooks.

12 Teachers To Attend Workshop

Sikeston teachers and administrators who will attend an adult basic education teacher training workshop Friday and Saturday at the University of Missouri at St. Louis are Wade Bedwell, Alvin Fields, John Scott, Louis Evans, Mary and Dick Fussell, Donald Fulton, Evelyn Barnett, Christine Davis, Phylis Lowe, Earnest Brooks and Norma Marks.

THE 1968 CADILLAC

Major engineering advancements combined with distinctive Cadillac styling result in new standards of performance, durability, safety and comfort in the 1968 Cadillac.

Calvin J. Werner, general manager of Cadillac Motor Car Division and vice president of General Motors, in announcing the 1968 models, said they would go on sale in dealer showrooms on September 21.

"Heart of the performance-durability story for the 1968 models, said they would go on sale in dealer showrooms on September 21.

"Heart of the performance-durability story for the 1968 models is Cadillac's completely new engine. We has capitalized on our 53 years of V-8 engine design and manufacturing experience to produce an engine to satisfy the needs of our Cadillac owners," Mr. Werner pointed out. "The new engine has a displacement of 472 cubic inches and torque of 525 foot pounds-- both the highest of any standard production passenger car engine in the world."

Rated at 375 horsepower, the new 1968 engine is standard in all 11 models.

While wheelbase, height and width remain unchaged, all except the Eldorado are 7-10 of an inch longer. The Eldorado remains at 221 inches in length.

STYLING--STANDARD MODELS

Cadillac's 1968 styling adds new distinctiveness to all 11 models. The front end features a new grille with a new header bar and thinner and narrower grille fins. These provide a more finely-tailored appearance although retaining the traditional cross-hatch design. Larger parking lamps are fitted into the ends of the grille and operate whenever headlights are on. Complementing the front end is a new hood - 6½ inches longer — which sweeps in an unbroken line to the windshield and conceals the new windshield wiper system.

The side view is accented by a strong design line which starts at the top of the front fender and extends downward to the rear of the car.

Rear styling features a new fully chromed bumper and a new deck lid, similar to the Eldorado which provides added luggage space.

STYLING--ELDORADO

Dramatic front and end styling changes to Cadillac's 1968 Fleetwood Eldorado include new parking lamps located in the leading edges of the front fenders. The hood is 4-½ inches longer to provide cover for the new windshield wiper system.

New and larger taillights, accented by finely-tailored chrome trim, provide greater light output from side and rear.

SAFETY-RELATED FEATURES

For 1968 Cadillac offers even greater emphasis on product improvements related to safety. In the interior, door handles are recessed into the side of the arm rests to prevent inadvertent opening of doors and to provide clean and uncluttered arms rests. All models will have stronger door hinges.

Sun visors, already padded, now have edge - crush provisions, instrument panels have additional padding and interior bright finishes have controlled reflectivity. The center automatic climate control outlet is now deeply recessed and made of impact absorbing plastic with breakaway retainers.

The inside rear view mirror will bend away from either a forward or side impact. And for increased protection for rear seat passengers, all front seat backs will have additional padding.

Ventilator window crank handles are flatter with rounder edges and will bend away upon side impact. Door locking buttons are made of flexible material.

In the Eldorado the rear remore door handle for rear seat passengers will be on the right side only to encourage exiting on the safe side.

On the outside, a new windshield wiper and washer system cleans a larger portion of the windshield, particularly at the base of the windshield pillars. The improved higher capacity washer starts to deliver water to the glass before the first cycle of the wipers.

New side marker lights have been added for 1968. The front marker lights are located in the new cornering light and show amber when the lights are on. The rear side markers on all models other than the Eldorado, the rear marker lights are located within the wreath and crest emblem just ahead of the rear bumper.

ENGINEERING

The over-all dimensions for the all - new V-8 engine are basically the same as its 1967 counterpart, requiring only minor changes in the chassis. The design incorporates an integral exhaust emission system and provides mountings for all engine accessories.

The new power plant is designed to take full advantage of advanced processes and materials including a cast ductile iron crankshaft and cast Armasteel connecting rods.

Another innovation and unique to this engine is a metal temperature monitoring device. This device sounds a buzzer and activates a red warning light if engine overheating occurs for any reason. Unlike former devices based on water temperature alone, this system responds to any failure in the cooling system.

Front wheel disc brakes are optional on all 1968 Cadillacs. The regular line will feature a new single - piston floating caliper design. The Eldorado will continue with the four-piston floating caliper design. The Eldorado will continue with the four-piston caliper design which was offered in 1967, but with a tandem booster for improvement performance.

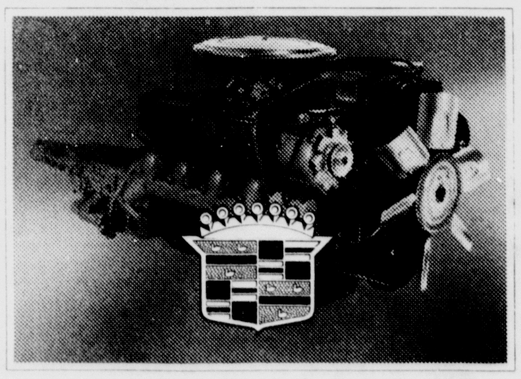
And the "inside story" for 1968 starts with the biggest, smoothest V-8 engine ever put into a production motor car.



Brilliant new styling · Dramatic new interiors · Totally new instrument panel · Concealed windshield wipers · Improved variable ratio power steering · New disc brakes available · Choice of eleven exciting body styles.

Now, enter a new era of luxury car performance—with the biggest and smoothest engine ever put into a production passenger car—the completely new Cadillac 472 V-8. This new V-8 has the greatest torque, or usable power, of any passenger car engine and has the newest combination of engine components since Cadillac pioneered the V-8 fifty-three years ago. You will notice a brilliant improvement in passing performance that in no way compromises a huge reserve of power to efficiently operate power steering, power brakes and other Cadillac conveniences.

You will also be impressed with its amazing quiet—so remarkable that only its nimble responsiveness reminds you that a great new engine is hidden beneath the hood.

Cadillac for 1968 provides, in addition, its well-proved triple braking system with finned drums that delivers smooth, straight stopping power. Front disc brakes are available for those who prefer the further refinement of an advanced disc-and-drum combination, and this year they're standard on Eldorado. You may also choose a greatly improved air conditioning system that moves more air more quietly.

Whether your preference is for one of the more traditional models—or the classic beauty of the Eldorado—come discover new elegance and excitement in luxury car motoring!
